Red 'Outrages' Forced Counter Attack, U.S. Says

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States charged today that continuing "aggressions and outrages" by Communist forces in South Viet Nam compelled the U.S. and South Vietnamese governments to strike anew at Red infiltration bases in North Viet Nam.

A statement by the White House asserted "our desire to avoid spreading the conflict" in Viet Nam but added that because of "provocations" by North Viet Nam the United States and South Viet Nam felt compelled to strike back by air for the third time this week.

Reprisal raids, carried out by about four dozen American and Vietnamese aircraft, had been announced earlier in Saigon.

The counterstrokes at the Communists presumably were ordered as a result of decisions made by President Johnson at a National Security Council meeting Wednesday afternoon. There was no announcement following that two-hour session and officials said privately that decisions would be made known only through action.

The White House statement this morning dealt with the new air assault as a limited reprisal action rather than as part of a developing air offensive against North Viet Nam. The reference to avoidance of spreading the war was evidently designed to indicate to the Communist side that the United States is still prepared to confine the struggle if the Communist strategy makes that possible.

The statement also left no doubt, however, that the unwillingness often displayed here in the past to hit North Viet Nam

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—About 150 U.S. and South Vietnamese warplanes ripped targets in North Viet Nam with bombs and rockets today in reprisal for the latest in a series of Viet Cong attacks.

The Red attacks were capped Wednesday night by the blasting of a U.S. enlisted men's barracks at Qui Nhon, in which 22 Americans are believed to have been killed.

More than 100 carrier-based planes of the U.S. 7th Fleet attacked from the South China Sea in this third and heaviest reprisal strike since Sunday. They hit at Chang Hoa and Chap Le.

Three of the Navy planes went down, but apparently not directly from enemy fire. Two fell in the sea and one crash-landed at the Da Nang base. Two of the pilots were rescued.

Twenty - eight Vietnamese fighter-bombers and an escort of 20 U.S. Air Force F100 jet fighters struck across the 17th parallel at points near the border.

Heavy columns of smoke streamed up from the target areas.

All the land-based craft returned safely. There were believed to have been no casualties aboard them.

Beatles' Ringo Marries Teenage Bride in London

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP) — Ringo Starr, the Beatles' drummer, married 18-year-old Maureen Cox today. Ringo is 24.

A spokesman said the parents of both Ringo and his bride were present for the civil ceremony at the London's Caxton Hall registry office.

Ringo and Maureen were married at 8:15 a.m. After the ceremony they left London for a short honeymoon at an undisclosed place.

The spokesman said Ringo had to be back in London Monday for movie work.

Barry Digweed, superintendent registrar of Caxton Hall, performed the ceremony.

The Beatles' manager, Brian Epstein, was best man.

Also present at the ceremony — which took about five minutes — were two Beatles, John Lennon and George Harrison. Lennon was accompanied by his wife.

Ringo's wedding leaves two Beatles unmarried — Harrison and Paul McCartney.

The only outsider at the ceremony was John Fitzpatrick, a janitor at Caxton Hall.

"I saw them drive up in a Rolls Royce," said Fitzpatrick, "and I opened the door for them. Then when they went into get hitched, I was a witness.

School Boundary Plan Protested By Parent Group

In a mildly heated discussion over the recently announced Boundary lines for the three high schools which will be in operation in Colorado Springs the District 11 School Board promised to take under further study a petition from a group of persons whose children will be affected by the move.

The petitioners, who are from an area west of Monument Creek and north of Fontanero street, are all parents of students who will be seniors next fall, and who are being asked to do their senior year work in Wasson High School rather than Palmer High School. The petition was signed by 74 parents and 35 students from 46 separate families.

Steve Robertson, 2603 Greenridge Dr., was one of the spokesmen for the group. He said those students who would have to switch from Palmer High School to Wasson High School had "sown fields for two years, and now wouldn't be able to harvest." He said the situation was entirely different from that in which seniors would be switched from either Palmer or Wasson to the new Billy Mitchell High School, because those who would attend the new school would all be on the same footing. However, he added,

Two Soldiers Pulled Alive From Ruins

By PETER ARNETT

QUI NHON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Sweating and crying American rescue workers pulled two American soldiers alive today from the rubble of a U.S. enlisted man's hotel destroyed by Viet Cong terrorists.

One of the young American survivors was dragged out of a tunnel dug through the debris after a Korean doctor amputated his leg to free him.

The doctor, a member of a Korean medical team stationed at Qui Nhon, crawled into the tunnel smashed into the rocks by U.S. Army engineers and rescue workers.

Faint cries from the trapped man were heard at 2:30 a.m., about six hours after Viet Cong bombs crumpled the four-story concrete building. The soldier was in the rubble for 18 hours before he was pulled out.

By late Thursday, the toll from the blast was:

One American killed in the hotel when a bomb went off in the hotel bar. Another died later in the hospital. Sixteen Americans were wounded but survived and got out. Four escaped

Reds Place Stranglehold On Road to Viet Capital

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Viet Cong troops, virtually unhindered by South Vietnamese government operations, have placed a stranglehold on the only overland route from Saigon to the border of Communist North Viet Nam.

There is evidence that corrupt local officials, acting in collusion with large and aggressive Communist forces, may have made the situation even worse.

Viet Cong toll booths on arterial Route 1, only 50 miles east of Saigon, have been operating openly and freely since November, apparently with no fear of major government interference.

These toll booths are believed to have financed the Communist offensive at Binh Gia in December. That operation cost government forces 500 casualties, including a score of Americans, and netted the Viet Cong quantities of arms and equipment.

The locations of the main toll booths in jungled Long Khanh Province are well known. Four toll and check points operate daily between road markers 1774 and 1780 — 56 air miles east of Saigon. A fairly wide trail leads four miles south from the main road at this point to a Viet Cong hamlet called Tra Cut, center of enemy road operations in the area.

An area just south of Tra Cut is a key Viet Cong rest and training camp. The force that fought the Binh Gia campaign is believed to be refitting there now.

Failure of Combat Guard Is Charged in Viet Nam

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — (Special) — Deeply embedded in the latest Viet Nam crisis is a long-standing inner administration controversy over assigning U.S. combat forces to guard U.S. military training personnel, planes, airfields, barracks and other vulnerable installations.

Had this been done, as strongly advised by the Joint Chiefs of Staff months ago, there is every reason to believe the surprise Viet Cong attack on the Pleiku airbase, with the heavy toll in dead and wounded, would not have occurred.

Certainly there can be no question of a direct relation between this tragic "bloody nose" and the lack of adequate security measures.

More than six months ago General William Westmoreland, U.S. commander in South Viet Nam, after a first - hand inspection, urgently recommended that a large contingent of Marines or Army special forces be sent there expressly to protect U.S. personnel and important installations.

Ambassador Maxwell Taylor, fully concurring in this proposal, communicated it immediately to Secretary of State Rusk and Defense Secretary McNamara.

They turned it down — over opposition of the Joint Chiefs.

'Best Snow of Winter' Covers Peak Region

"The best snow of the winter" has brought much-needed moisture to the city's watershed areas on Pikes Peak but kept street department crews working through the night in the metropolitan area.

Roy Knull, caretaker for the South Slope, reported 17 inches of snow containing .66 of an inch of moisture. Knull said the amount of moisture indicated the snow was not a "wet" one.

Temperatures in that area plunged to 15 below early this morning.

The North Slope received about a foot of snow, Ted Dobbie reported, and the low temperature reached minus 10.

The Northfield watershed reported 16 inches of snow containing .62 of an inch of moisture.

Meanwhile, through the night city street crews hauled 341 truckloads of snow from the downtown area.

Street Superintendent Dan Lawrie said the department dumped 123 yards of sand and 13 tons of salt on city streets to improve driving conditions.

Twenty-four accidents in the past 24 hours, involving a total of 43 cars and $3,670 damage, were reported by the State Patrol.

The accidents, almost all of which were the fender-bender variety, were caused by the heavy snowfall in the area. Patrolman G. W. Hubbard said the majority of the accidents occur-

Giant Winter Snowstorm Roams Over Western U.S.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A giant storm roamed over the western United States today, dumping heavy snow on Colorado and Arizona while rain and snow struck much of the eastern half of the country.

Livestock warnings were in effect for western Nebraska and Kansas. Cold weather and snow harassed New England. Thunderstorms struck from Texas to the Carolinas.

A 6-inch snow fell Wednesday on Colorado's parched eastern plains, a dryland winter wheat area in the grip of a three-year drought. It was the first major precipitation of the winter on the eastern prairies and raised hopes for wheat farmers.

More than 6 inches of snow fell in Denver. Pueblo in southern Colorado had more than 8 inches and several other cities reported 6-inch accumulations.

A 4-inch blanket of snow in Tucson, Ariz., Wednesday was the third heaviest snowfall in history for the winter resort.

Two to four inches of snow fell over portions n Wyoming.

The Hastings-Grand Island area in central Nebraska had 12 to 20 inches of snow on the ground — a blessing for winter wheat.

Heavy fall in the Idaho panhandle area of northern New Mexico and mountainous portions of the state. Eastern portions of the state, while cold, moved in from the West. Two schools were closed on the outskirts of Albuquerque. Twenty-six inches of snow was on the ground at Sandia Crest east of Albuquerque.

Anniston, Ala., was soaked by .57 inch of rain and College Station, Tex., had .80 inch.

A treacherous sleet storm closed 200 schools and many business establishments in Minnesota. The Minnesota Highway Department said driving conditions ranged from "deplorable to treacherous."

A bus carrying 20 pupils slid into a ditch in Austin, Minn., but there were no injuries.

Thirty-one inches of snow covered Duluth, Minn., with 15 inches falling in a 24-hour period.

All highways out of Sioux Falls, S.D., were listed as impassable. Rock Rapids, Iowa, was covered by seven inches of snow.

Drivers spilled out of their cars in Indiana lowlands, after two and three inches of rain.

Thirteen horses were locked in a Mississippi River ice jam in southern Illinois after they were cut loose from their moorings by heavy ice.

Six inches of snow fell in

New $2 Million Apartment Project Sought

The El Paso County Planning Commission voted late Wednesday afternoon to hold a special public hearing at 4 p.m. Feb. 18 to consider two petitions, one preliminary plat and two vacations, including a petition involving the construction of an estimated $2 million, multi-story high rise apartment building.

J. L. Williams, B. J. Chafin, James C. Hadsell and Jim Green have petitioned the commission for permission to change a C-4 Neighborhood Business District to a C-2 Suburban Business District for the purpose of building the new apartment unit structure. The property involved contains about 7.84 acres and is located south of Arcturus Drive and adjacent to Skyway Park Addition No. 3.

White Committee Probers Arrive At Air Academy

Two members of the White Committee arrived this morning at Peterson Field to begin a probe into cadet life at the Air Force Academy.

After embarking from an Air Force jet, Gen. White told reporters the committee would talk to "A good many cadets."

Gen. White said the five-man blue ribbon committee would not concern itself specifically with the classroom cheating scandal—instead it will review over-

Jury Decides Hermanitz Is Legally Sane

Othmer Hermanitz has been found legally sane by a district court jury that deliberated for six hours. His attorney, William T. Eckhart, was given 20 days by Judge Hunter Hardeman to file a motion for a new trial on the sanity question which was the issue of the nine day hearing that ended Wednesday.

The case went to the jury Wednesday night at 9:30 but more than three hours later no verdict had been reached and the jury went to bed and deliberations were resumed this morning at 9:30.

Hermanitz, 50, Fountain, is accused of the slaying of William E. Lucas, 44, 2223 Lockhaven Dr., at the Wayside Inn Aug. 8. Lucas died from a gunshot wound.

Almost the entire trial has revolved round the question of the defendant's sanity. Three doctors for the defense have insisted Hermanitz was insane, but on Wednesday two psychiatrists for the prosecution said he was sane.

First witness of the day was Dr. Kenneth O. Koenig, a psy-

No Correlation Is Found Between Vowels, Status

By MARGARET SCHERF

CHICAGO (AP) — The "rain in Spain" bit would have been wasted had Professor Henry Higgins been trying to create his Fair Lady in the United States instead of England.

The results of a study by Dr. Raven I. McDavid, University of Chicago professor of English, and several assistants indicates there is no correlation between vowels and social status in the United States.

In the study, financed by a grant from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, graduate students were asked to judge certain characteristics of four persons on the basis of their recorded pronunciation.

The conclusion, McDavid said in an interview Wednesday: "In this country, people are not able to distinguish a person's background by listening to him."

Items:

The majority of the students rated a Southern white as Negro, rural and uneducated, but McDavid knew the man to be "highly educated and cultured."

The Southerners, one Negro and the other white, were rated highest in respectability.

The students rated McDavid himself rural and uneducated after hearing his voice mixed in with the other tapes.

"It appears that even sophisticated listeners aren't really sure what kind of person they're listening to," said McDavid.

The test also indicated, he said, that "there's a great deal of folklore in people's appraisal of speech."

For instance, the high masculinity rating given the Southerners — both thought to be Negro — stemmed from "the Southern tradition of danger to white femininity from the more masculine Negro," he said.

"Apparently this is a pretty widely distributed myth," said McDavid.

'Walking Snake Venom Factory' Saves Victim

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Bitten by a deadly snake, John B. Lewis lay paralyzed and near death — until a walking venom factory came to his aid.

Lewis, 43, a chronic alcoholic heavier, reported to the hospital Tuesday, eight hours after being bitten by a coral snake in the garden of his home.

His arm was swollen and his lips were discolored by the venom, which attacks the nervous and respiratory system.

By Wednesday, Lewis was completely paralyzed and near death. Doctors performed a tracheotomy to ease his breathing.

Meantime, Bill Hazel, owner of the Miami Serpentarium, heard of Lewis' plight, and flew here.

He offered a pint of blood, saying five other snake bite victims had recovered after transfusions of his blood, particularly two bitten by coral snakes.

Hazel says he has been milking venom from deadly reptiles, including 22 types of cobras. He said his blood contained antibodies which might help Lewis.

Doctors decided to give it a try.

A few hours later, Lewis was breathing easier and was moving, a definite sign of improvement, doctors said.

He was still listed in critical condition early today "and not out of the woods yet."

"It's hard to discount the possibility," said a doctor when asked if Hazel's blood might have been responsible for the improvement.

'Best Snow of Winter' Covers Peak Region

"The best snow of the winter" has brought much-needed moisture to the city's watershed areas on Pikes Peak but kept street department crews working through the night in the metropolitan area.

Roy Knull, caretaker for the South Slope, reported 17 inches of snow containing .66 of an inch of moisture. Knull said the amount of moisture indicated the snow was not a "wet" one.

Temperatures in that area plunged to 15 below early this morning.

The North Slope received about a foot of snow, Ted Dobbie reported, and the low temperature reached minus 10.

The Northfield watershed reported 16 inches of snow containing .42 of an inch of moisture.

Meanwhile, through the night city street crews hauled 341 truckloads of snow from the downtown area.

Street Superintendent Dan Lawrie said the department dumped 183 yards of sand and 13 tons of salt on city streets to improve driving conditions.

Twenty-four accidents in the past 24 hours, involving a total of 43 cars and $3,670 damage, were reported by the State Patrol.

The accidents, almost all of which were the fender-bender variety, were caused by the heavy snowfall in the area. Patrolman G. W. Hubbard said the majority of the accidents occur-

Giant Winter Snowstorm Roams Over Western U.S.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A giant storm roamed over the western United States today, dumping heavy snow on Colorado and Arizona while rain and snow struck much of the eastern half of the country.

Livestock warnings were in effect for western Nebraska and Kansas. Cold weather and snow harassed New England. Thunderstorms struck from Texas to the Carolinas.

A 6-inch snow fell Wednesday on Colorado's parched eastern plains, a dryland winter wheat area in the grip of a three-year drought. It was the first major precipitation of the winter on the eastern prairies and raised hopes for wheat farmers.

More than 6 inches of snow fell in Denver. Pueblo in southern Colorado had more than 8 inches and several other cities reported 6-inch accumulations.

A 4-inch blanket of snow in Tucson, Ariz., Wednesday was the third heaviest snowfall in history for the winter resort.

Two to four inches of snow fell over southeast Wyoming.

The Hastings-Grand Island area in central Nebraska had 12 to 16 inches of snow on the ground — a blessing for winter wheat.

Snow fell in the higher elevations of northern New Mexico and thunderstorms pounded the eastern section of the state while cold moved in from the West. Two schools were closed on the outskirts of Albuquerque. Twenty-six inches of snow was on the ground at Sandia Crest east of Albuquerque.

Anniston, Ala., was soaked by .87 inch of rain and College Station, Tex., had .80 inch.

A treacherous sleet storm closed 200 schools and many business establishments in Minnesota. The Minnesota Highway Department said driving conditions ranged from "deplorable to treacherous."

A bus carrying 20 pupils slid into a ditch in Austin, Minn., but there were no injuries.

Thirty-one inches of snow covered Duluth, Minn., with 15 inches falling in a 24-hour period.

All highways out of Sioux Falls, S.D., were listed as impassable. Rock Rapids, Iowa, was covered by seven inches of snow.

Rivers spilled out of their banks in Indiana lowlands, after rain and three inches of rain.

Thirteen barges were locked in a Mississippi River ice jam in Southern Illinois after they were torn loose from their moorings by heavy ice.

Six inches of snow fell in southeastern Idaho.

A heavy fog over much of Maryland caused flights bound for Friendship International Airport to be diverted to Dulles International Airport in Chantilly, Va., near Washington.

New $2 Million Apartment Project Sought

The El Paso County Planning Commission voted late Wednesday afternoon to hold a special public hearing at 4 p.m. Feb. 18 to consider two petitions, one preliminary plat and two vacations, including a petition involving the construction of an estimated $2 million, multi-story high rise apartment building.

J. L. Williams, B. J. Chafin, James C. Hadsell and Jim Green have petitioned the commission for permission to change a C-4 Neighborhood Business District to a C-2 Suburban Business District for the purpose of building the new apartment unit structure. The property involved contains about 7.84 acres and is located south of Arcturus Drive and adjacent to Skyway Park Addition No. 3.

Attorney Donald E. LaMora, representing residents of the area, and Mrs. Mary B. Gadd, 927 Skyway Blvd., lodged com-

White Committee Probers Arrive At Air Academy

Two members of the White Committee arrived this morning at Peterson Field to begin a probe into cadet life at the Air Force Academy.

They were Gen. Thomas D. White (ret.), former Air Force Chief of Staff, and Dean Hardy Dillard, professor of law at the University of Virginia.

After embarking from an Air Force jet, Gen. White told reporters the committee would talk to "A good many cadets."

He would not comment on the cadet honor code other than to say, "I think it's early to make comments on anything."

Gen. White said the five-man blue ribbon committee would not concern itself specifically with the classroom cheating scandal—instead it will review over-

Jury Decides Hermanitz Is Legally Sane

Othmer Hermanitz has been found legally sane by a district court jury that deliberated for six hours. His attorney, William T. Eckhart, was given 20 days by Judge Hunter Hardeman to file a motion for a new trial on the sanity question which was the issue of the nine day hearing that ended Wednesday.

The case went to the jury Wednesday night at 9:30 but more than three hours later no verdict had been reached and the jury went to bed and deliberations were resumed this morning at 9:30.

Hermanitz, 50, Fountain, is accused of the slaying of William E. Lucas, 44, 2223 Lockhaven Dr., at the Wayside Inn Aug. 8. Lucas died from a gunshot wound.

Almost the entire trial has revolved round the question of the defendant's sanity. Three doctors for the defense have insisted Hermanitz was insane, but on Wednesday two psychiatrists for the prosecution said he was sane.

First witness of the day was Dr. Kenneth O. Koenig, a psy-

By MARGARET SCHERF

CHICAGO (AP) — The "rain in Spain" bit would have been wasted had Professor Henry Higgins been trying to create his Fair Lady in the United States instead of England.

The results of a study by Dr. Raven I. McDavid, University of Chicago professor of English, and several assistants indicates there is no correlation between vowels and social status in the United States.

In the study, financed by a grant from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, graduate students were asked to judge certain characteristics of four persons on the basis of their recorded pronunciation.

The conclusion, McDavid said in an interview Wednesday: "In this country, people are not able to distinguish a person's background by listening to him."

Items:

The majority of the students rated a Southern white as Negro, rural and uneducated, but McDavid knew the man to be "highly educated and cultured."

The Southerners, one Negro and the other white, were rated highest in masculinity.

The students rated McDavid himself rural and uneducated after hearing his voice mixed in with the other tapes.

"It appears that even sophisticated listeners aren't really sure what kind of person they're listening to," said McDavid.

The test also indicated, he said, that "there's a great deal of folklore in people's appraisal of speech."

For instance, the high masculinity rating given the Southerners — both thought to be Negro — stemmed from "the Southern tradition of danger to white femininity from the more masculine Negro," he said.

"Apparently this is a pretty widely distributed myth," said McDavid.

'Walking Snake Venom Factory' Saves Victim

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Bitten by a deadly snake, John B. Lewis lay paralyzed and near death — until a walking venom factory came to his aid.

Lewis, 48, a former circus snake handler, reported to the hospital Tuesday, eight hours after being bitten by a coral snake in the garden of his home.

His arm was swollen and his lips were discolored by the venom, which attacks the nervous and respiratory system.

By Wednesday, Lewis was completely paralyzed and near death. Doctors performed a tracheotomy to ease his breathing.

Meantime, Bill Haast, owner of the Miami Serpentarium, heard of Lewis' plight, and flew here.

He offered a pint of blood, saying five other snake bite victims had recovered after transfusions of his blood, including two bitten by coral snakes.

Haast said he has been bitten numerous times by deadly reptiles, including 37 times by cobras. He said his blood contained antibodies which might help Lewis.

Doctors decided to give it a try.

A few hours later, Lewis was breathing easier and was moving, a definite sign of improvement, doctors said.

He was still listed in critical condition early today "and not out of the woods yet."

"It's hard to discount the possibility," said a doctor when asked if Haast's blood might have been responsible for the improvement.

Divers Continue Search for Wreck of Plane

NEW YORK (AP) — Sonar, underwater television, and divers aided in the search today for the wreckage of an Eastern Air Lines plane that plunged into the Atlantic Ocean with 84 persons aboard.

The plane crashed Monday night, five minutes after takeoff from Kennedy Airport. There were no survivors.

A number of bodies and debris from the four-engined propeller-driven airliner have been found, but not the main wreckage.

Government experts say they need to recover the wreckage to determine the cause of the crash, so far a mystery.

The search area has been cut down to about six miles square off Jones Beach, on Long Island's South Shore.

The sonar and underwater television camera were kept working all night, as searchers took advantage of the fairly good weather. Divers said it was too dark in the 85-foot-deep water to see at night, but they stood by in case the electronic devices turned up a good clue.

Dr. Alan Berman, director of Columbia University's Hudson Laboratories at Dobbs Ferry, N.Y., headed a party of civilians operating the side-scanning sonar.

"Don't expect them to go out and in a day or two say, 'Here it is'," Dr. Berman said. "It may be a fairly difficult search."

Cub Scouts Hold Slumber Party

The nine Cubs in Den 1, Pack 5, had a slumber party recently, complete with sleeping bags and a "traveling supper." Festivities began at 5:45 p.m. at the home of one of the den mothers, Mrs. Charles McCreight.

Supper included: appetizer in the home of Mrs. Charlotte Shields; hamburgers in the Elmer Britain's home; potatoes and catsup at the William Roche's; Mrs. Jonhn Goldston served hot dogs; at the Adolph Zamarripa's, the cubs enjoyed sherbet cones; and the Bill Pages topped off the supper with cream puffs and punch.

The Cubs returned to the McCreight home, and at midnight, a snack was enjoyed. The Alfred Romans sent the snack.

Friday morning, breakfast was served by the den mothers, Mrs. McCreight and Mrs. Carl Markel.

The Cubs are graduating into the Webelos Den in February, and have had the same two den mothers for 2½ years — so this was a good opportunity to visit in each home before going into Webelos, and on into Boy Scouts.

The following boys make up Den 1: Grover Brittain, Gordon Goldston, Kenneth Markel, David McCreight, Deane Messina, Peter Page, Mark Roche, Thomas Roman, and Mike Shields.

VALENTINE VACUUM

LONDON (UPI)—The post office isn't issuing special Valentine's greeting telegrams this year because the day falls on a Sunday. A more realistic reason probably is the fact that the number sent has dwindled from a passionate 50,000 before World War II to a miserable 3,861 last year.

CAPITOL STUFF

WASHINGTON — Freshmen in the seniority conscious U.S. Senate are expected to know their place, and most of them are glad to keep their feet planted under their desks until they learn the tricky Senate ropes. But Robert F. Kennedy is no ordinary newcomer, and last week he showed that he has no time to waste on Senatorial foldered.

And so the manner in which Bobby made a splashy debut on the Senate floor last week was studied with more than passing interest by all Kennedy-watchers. The word "brash" was heard in the cloakrooms.

From every angle except the view from The Senate floor Bobby pulled off a coup. Up for action on Monday was the $1.1 billion aid bill designed to relieve poverty in the 11-state region known as Appalachia. The program was several years in the making.

Then up popped the new Democratic Senator from New York. It was his maiden speech and it was only momentarily disconcerting to be recognized as "the Senator from Massachusetts" by the presiding officer — Sen. Joseph Montoya (D-N.M.), who as a fellow liberal and fellow newcomer should have known better.

Kennedy began his speech, then realized he was being tagged as a carpetbagger, and said with a wry grin: "Mr. President, will the record show that it is the Senator from New York."

Bobby then sprang a surprise amendment to the bill. He noted that the state of New York had been left out of the Appalachia program although nearly 12 per cent of the families in 13 counties of the state's Southern Tier have incomes under $2,000 a year. His amendment would direct the Appalachia commission to "study and consider" the inclusion of New York counties which border on the Appalachia region and then decide whether to invite New York into the program.

Here Kennedy took a swipe at New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, who has been opposed to putting his state into the poverty program and has refused to attend any governors' meeting leading to its formation.

A THORNY SITUATION FOR JAVITS

"It is my hope," the Senator said dryly, "as it is the hope of the communities of southern New York, that the governor will reconsider his position and allow them to develop their lagging economies. Should he do so, the bill would not prevent them."

While Bobby was thus undermining Rocky, the other New York Senator, Jacob K. Javits, was frantically calling his GOP pal, the governor on the telephone. Javits had had only 15 minutes advance notice of the Kennedy amendment, he knew he was being mouse-trapped — he could hardly afford to vote against the Kennedy amendment, yet as a Republican he had to try to salvage something for Rocky.

After checking with the governor, Javits hurried on to the Senate floor and offered a proposal to modify the Kennedy amendment; among other things, it would direct the Appalachia commission to make its study on New York "in consultation with the governor of the state of New York.

Now Kennedy did the smart thing. After putting a few questions to Javits, he accepted the proposal, thus incorporating it into his own amendment without taking a vote. If he had opposed the Javits change, Javits would have attacked the Kennedy amendment, a showdown would have been forced, all Senators would have been called to the floor, and anything might have happened.

BAD FORM BUT GOOD HEADLINES

Kennedy of course had the votes to win a straight party-line division, but it might not have gone that way. In the interest of preserving tradition, some of the senior Democrats might have sided with the Kennedy-plagued senior Senator from New York.

Kennedy's amendment then was passed by a voice vote and in the headlines he got credit for outwitting what he called a "short-sighted" governor. Within the Senate, however, there were those who saw Bobby's maneuver as a "party play." Incidentally, it [illegible] all that long on a Democratic Senator in this area where Republican governor [illegible] a problem [illegible] with who will begin [illegible] preceding with an amendment that affects their state.

Javits showed his irritation with the Kennedy style by pointedly treating him as a new boy. Once, when Bobby told the presiding officer he would "yield" the rest of his time on the amendment, Javits called across the chamber advice to him to "reserve" it instead. Kennedy flushed and agreed to the suggestion.

Javits also told Kennedy his amendment had been "loosely drawn." In a strictly paternal way, of course, the former attorney general of New York was giving lessons to the former Attorney General of the United States.

In an interview yesterday, Kennedy shrugged off the chance that he might have slapped on some Senatorial toes. If he had upset the Senate seniority system, he pointed out, his main responsibility was still to "represent the state of New York."

Also he was obviously enjoying putting Rockefeller on the spot. His amendment would open the way for inclusion of the New York counties, Bobby said, and if he gets through the House it will then be Rocky's responsibility if he still chooses to be heartless about those counties.

'72 Don't Mean Nothing,' Jimmy Says

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Durante celebrated his 72nd birthday Wednesday.

"Seventy-two don't mean nothing'," he commented in the midst of a busy working day, topped off by a birthday party into the early morning hours. He is playing two shows a night at the Copacabana.

Jimmy says his health is his greatest present and at 72 he is not thinking of retirement. He's booked for weeks to come on the nightclub circuit. "Seventy or 72 or 50, it's all the same," Durante remarked.

AMSTERDAM — Holland has a new tourist plan.

CAPITOL STUFF

WASHINGTON — Freshmen in the seniority conscious U.S. Senate are expected to know their place, and most of them are glad to keep their feet planted under their desks until they learn the tricky Senate ropes. But Robert F. Kennedy is no ordinary newcomer, and last week he showed that he has no time to waste on Senatorial folderol.

And so the manner in which Bobby made a splashy debut on the Senate floor last week was studied with more than passing interest by all Kennedy-watchers. The word "brash" was heard in the cloakrooms.

From every angle except the view from The Senate floor Bobby pulled off a coup. Up for action on Monday was the $1.1 billion aid bill designed to relieve poverty in the 11-state region known as Appalachia. The program was several years in the making.

Then up popped the new Democratic Senator from New York. It was his maiden speech and it was only momentarily disconcerting to be recognized as "the Senator from Massachusetts" by the presiding officer — Sen. Joseph Montoya (D-N.M.), who as a fellow liberal and fellow newcomer should have known better.

Kennedy began his speech, then realized he was being tagged as a carpetbagger, and said with a wry grin: "Mr. President, will the record show that it is the Senator from New York."

Bobby then sprang a surprise amendment to the bill. He noted that the state of New York had been left out of the Appalachia program although nearly 12 per cent of the families in 13 counties of the state's Southern Tier have incomes under $2,000 a year. His amendment would direct the Appalachia commission to "study and consider" the inclusion of New York counties which border on the Appalachia region and then decide whether to invite New York into the program.

Here Kennedy took a swipe at New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, who has been opposed to putting his state into the poverty program and has refused to attend any governors' meeting leading to its formation.

A THORNY SITUATION FOR JAVITS

"It is my hope," the Senator said dryly, "as it is the hope of the communities of southern New York, that the governor will reconsider his position and allow them to develop their lagging economies. Should he do so, the bill would not prevent them."

While Bobby was thus undermining Rocky, the other New York Senator, Jacob K. Javits, was frantically calling his GOP pal, the governor on the telephone. Javits had had only 15 minutes advance notice of the Kennedy amendment, he knew he was being mouse-trapped — he could hardly afford to vote against the Kennedy amendment, yet as a Republican he had to try to salvage something for Rocky.

After checking with the governor, Javits hurried on to the Senate floor and offered a proposal to modify the Kennedy amendment; among other things, it would direct the Appalachia commission to make its study on New York "in consultation with the governor of the state of New York.

Now Kennedy did the smart thing. After putting a few questions to Javits, he accepted the proposal, thus incorporating it into his own amendment without taking a vote. If he had opposed the Javits change, Javits would have attacked the Kennedy amendment, a showdown would have been forced, all Senators would have been called to the floor, and anything might have happened.

BAD FORM BUT GOOD HEADLINES

Kennedy of course had the votes to win a straight party-line division, but it might not have gone that way. In the interest of preserving tradition, some of the senior Democrats might have sided with the Kennedy-plagued senior Senator from New York.

Kennedy's amendment then was passed by a voice vote and in the headlines he got credit for outwitting what he called a "short-sighted" governor. Within the Senate, however, there were those who saw Bobby's maneuver as a "nasty play." Traditionally, it is not considered good form for a freshman Senator to bash his own state's governor. Senatorial courtesy also dictates that a junior ought to go for a freshman Senator outside with his colleagues before proceeding with an amendment that affects their state.

Javits showed his irritation with the Kennedy style by pointedly treating him as a new boy. Once, when Bobby told the presiding officer he would "yield" the restof his time on the amend the rest of his time on the amendment, Javits called across the chamber advice to him to "reserve" it instead. Kennedy flushed and agreed to the suggestion.

Javits also told Kennedy his amendment had been "loosely drawn." In a strictly paternal way, of course, the former attorney general of New York was giving lessons to the former Attorney General of the United States.

In an interview yesterday, Kennedy shrugged off the chance that he might have stepped on some Senatorial toes. If he had upset the Senate seniority system, he pointed out, his main responsibility was still to "represent the state of New York."

Also he was obviously enjoying putting Rockefeller on the spot. His amendment would open the way for inclusion of the New York counties, Bobby said, and if he gets through the House it will then be Rocky's responsibility if he still chooses to be heartless about those counties.

School Boundary Plan Protested By Parent Group

those who were being asked to switch from Palmer to Wasson would enter a school where most of the honors that go with being a senior had already been awarded to present students of the school, and that those who would be seniors and first time students of Wasson this fall would be "left out in the cold."

Wilbur Marshall, president of the board, responded to Robertson by saying that the boundaries were drawn "as objectively as possible, and long study has gone into the preparation of these boundaries." He said that no matter where the boundaries were drawn, some students were "bound to be hurt by the decision."

Thomas Doherty, superintendent of schools in District 11, said that "the school program was given priority in the drawing up of these boundaries, and the pep clubs, athletics, and other extracurricular activities of the students were given secondary consideration."

He continued that "the most difficult problem is to relieve the student population situation at Palmer High School, and to this end we drew the boundaries as objectively as possible." It was pointed out that 800 students from Wasson and 300 from Palmer were to go to Billy Mitchell High School, to make up most of the student population there.

When the subject of special permits issued to students to attend a particular school was brought up by the petitioners, Marshall responded that "the feelings of your group are perfectly natural, but we (the board) have to be hard boiled on the issuance of permits."

According to the petitioners, one boy who will be affected by the boundaries drawings has already been elected a co-captain of Palmer's football team for next year, and now will have to attend Wasson High School. It was the feeling of the Board that the boy would be able to play next year on Wasson's team, and that because two co-captains are elected there he would have a chance to become one of them, since only one has been selected so far and the other will be elected by the team after a considerable amount of pre - season practice next fall.

The petitioners said that the parents of children who will be going to Billy Mitchell High School next fall were not too concerned because their children will be making new traditions. They added that only those students who are changing from one established school to another (Palmer to Wasson, or vice versa) have objections.

The board concluded the discussion by saying that they would take the matter under further study. Marshall added that "we're not going to play favorites with you people at the expense of other people of the city who are similarly affected."

In other action, the board presented Wilbur Marshall with an award from the American Association of School Administrators for outstanding contributions to the people of District 11 in his 10 years as a member of the school board.

The board also heard a report on the progress of the new Billy Mitchell High School, and learned that all units under construction are in good shape except for the auditorium. Strong winds recently blew off sections of the roof of that structure and caused quite extensive damage. Although the damage will be paid for by insurance, there is now some doubt as to whether the building will be completed by the beginning of the 1965-66 school year.

The rest of the units are expected to be completed between the end of May and the early part of August, according to the report.

Personal Injury Suit Filed in District Court

A $56,217.54 personal injury suit was filed in district court Wednesday by Elaine W. and Ruth E. Breitwieser, 119 N. Lawrence Ave., against Joseph H. V. Cimmino, Alamo Hotel.

According to the complaint Blaine Breitwieser claims he was permanently injured and disabled when Cimmino drove his car into the Breitwieser vehicle in the 900 block of East Costilla Street Feb. 6, 1964.

It is further alleged that the plaintiff will be deprived of his ability to earn a living for the remainder of his life. The disablement is said to be an aggravation of a pre-existing heart condition.

There old tires are cut up into sandals for the guerrillas — new tires are too thick. Engines are converted for use in jungle arms factories and to generate electric power. Instruments taken from cars are used for making time bombs.

Nearly all cars, buses and trucks are stopped at the toll points and charged $2 to $10, depending on the weight of the vehicle, its cargo and so on. Since November, an estimated $40,000 has been collected.

Passengers are checked closely. During the recent holiday season, uniformed soldiers without weapons were allowed through the checkpoint but were stripped of their uniforms. Viet Cong troops in the area all wear government uniforms.

At other times, government officials and soldiers travel at their peril.

Lawrence Cowen Died Wednesday At Hospital

Lawrence M. Cowen, 10 Cheyenne Mountain Blvd., founder and president of the Cowen Transfer and Storage Co. and widely known for a miniature railroad at his home, on which he gave children free rides, died Wednesday at a local hospital.

He was the son of the late W. W. Cowen, long Colorado Springs agent for the Wells Fargo and later Railway Express Company, city councilman and member of the State Legislature. Lawrence Cowen was quick to see the coming importance of trucking for transfer business and built up a large company with many trucks from a small beginning. But he retained his interest in railroads and pursued miniature railroading as a hobby for the delight of children,, thousands of whom have enjoyed rides on his City of Sunshine Railroad at his home.

Mr. Cowen was born in Springfield, Mo. Nov. 4, 1896. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Marjorie Dryhurst Cowen; a son, Lawrence D. Cowen and daughter, Mrs. Marjorie Cowen Lynch, all of Colorado Springs.

all aspects of the honor system.

The committee was greeted by Academy Superintendent Maj. Gen. Robert Warren, who had just arrived from San Francisco.

The three other committee members were not on the plane: Lt. Gen. J. J. Nazzaro, vice commander of the Strategic Air Command, was grounded by weather in Omaha, Neb.; Dr. Robert L. Stearns, former president of the University of Colorado, will drive to the Academy this afternoon; and Dr. Charles B. Thornton, Litton Industries president, will arrive this afternoon by private plane.

The probe is expected to take four days. The committee was named by Secretary of the Air Force Eugene M. Zuckert in the wake of the cheating scandal in which 105 cadets resigned.

Among the five areas it will study is the question: "Is the honor code unreasonable and unrealistic, in whole or in part?"

Gen. White said the findings of the committee will be turned directly over to the Air Force Secretary, and will not be released by Academy officials without Zuckert's okay.

Jury to Decide Sanity Issue in Hermanitz Trial

chiatrist at Colorado Psychopathic Hospital. The doctor told the court he believed the defendant was able to refrain from doing wrong, and that the predominant mental feature of the accused man at the time of the offense was "intoxication to the point of being drunk."

The witness went on to say Hermanitz had a personality disorder, and a passive personality with overwhelming helplessness in time of stress, but this could not be considered a mental disease, and the doctor found no evidence of a mental disease.

The defendant was very dependent on his wife, the doctor went on, and at times felt a deep sense of rejection and severe anxiety. The doctor then quoted him as having said he had been drinking all day Aug. 7, the day immediately preceding the shooting. Hermanitz had said he did not remember getting home Aug. 7 but on Aug. 8, a Saturday, he got up and started drinking again.

It was at this point, the witness said, that Hermanitz had noticed his wife was not there, and immediately he imagined she "had left him for good and that this was the end of the world." His recollections of the remainder of that day was interspersed with blanks.

The doctor said the defendant recalled going to the inn, being kidded about feeding steak to his dogs and shooting Lucas in the side who "turned around looking surprised."

Dr. Koenig told the court that Hermanitz had not told him of the hallucinations he allegedly experienced. Earlier in the trial the defendant took the stand and recounted a number of visual hallucinations he had undergone before the shooting.

Explaining the apparent lapses of memory suffered by Hermanitz on Aug. 8, Dr. Koenig called them "alcoholic amnesia" elaborating that excessive use of alcohol frequently resulted in a "patchy quality" with "islands of memory here and there."

No other psychotic condition, said the witness could give this quality, although acute alcoholism could result in hallucinations, but there was no evidence to show Hermanitz had been suffering from delirium tremens.

In cross examination conducted by defense attorney William Eckhart, Dr. Koenig said that during his stay in the hospital Hermanitz had felt very strongly he was insane and was afraid the doctors would do something to make him appear sane.

The accused did not want to use soap or shampoo as he felt it contained medication which he had asked the doctors not to administer. "Is he a normal, healthy man?" Eckhart asked. "He is not a normally, mentally healthy man," was the reply.

Dr. John Aycrigg, also a psychiatrist at the Colorado Psychopathic Hospital took the stand and corroborated much of the testimony of the previous witness.

Dr. Aycrigg said Hermanitz told him he remembered pointing the gun at Lucas and shooting him. This was in direct contradiction to testimony given previously by the defendant. Hermanitz had gone on to say he could not recall the reason for the shooting.

Throughout the entire trial no testimony or evidence of any motive for the killing has been presented.

Hermanitz told the witness that he felt it "was not his real self involved in the shooting."

The doctor believed the defendant was not so diseased in mind that he did not know right from wrong and that he could abide by the right. Dr. Aycrigg had told Hermanitz at the hospital that he believed he was sane and he then appeared "unhappy, angry, despairing and accusing." "He had an attitude," concluded the witness, "of how could I do this to him."

District Attorney Bob Russel and Assistant District Attorney Bob Isaac are prosecuting. Judge Hunter D. Hardeman is on the bench.

The blast also buried 12 Vietnamese house servants working in the hotel. The mangled leg of one could be seen protruding from the rubble.

A family of seven Vietnamese living in a nearby house were all killed.

All the Americans in the hotel were Army enlisted men serving with 149th Maintenance Detachment except for the American killed in the bar. He was a Special Forces man.

Soon after the first cries for help, the cries of three other men in the rubble were heard. One of them was pulled out, leaving two others trapped late Thursday.

One of the heroes of the bloody night killed two of the Viet Cong attackers and survived himself.

Spec. 5 Robert K. Marshall was on the second floor of the building when the attack began. Viet Cong squads poured machine-gun fire into the building.

Marshall rushed onto the balcony of the building with his carbine and emptied his magazine at two terrorists firing from a street across the way.

almost regardless of what happened in the South has now given way; whatever protection of privileged sanctuary the North had enjoyed until last weekend seemed to be disappearing fast.

The U.S.-Vietnamese strike was, however, once more directed against positions described in the White House statement as "infiltration bases."

As to the provocations charged against the Communists, the statement said that in recent days "large numbers of South Vietnamese and United States personnel have been killed in an increased number of Viet Cong ambushes and attacks."

Cited among costly Communist blows was the terrorist bombing Wednesday at the town of Qui Nhon which took a heavy toll of lives in the destruction of an enlisted men's hotel. The statement also said the Reds have overrun a district town in Thoue Long province inflicting Vietnamese and American casualties. Attacks on railroads and a wave of assassinations of South Vietnamese officials were also charged against the Communists.

$60,000 Suit Filed In District Court

A $60,000 personal injury suit was filed in district court this morning by Edward V. Lawrence, 2927 N. Chestnut St., against Richard R. Johnson, 1401 W. Cheyenne Rd.

It is alleged Lawrence was a passenger in an ambulance which was struck by the Johnson car at Cheyenne Rd. and Nevada Ave. Jan. 31, 1964.

It is further alleged the plaintiff received severe injuries and is permanently partially disabled.

County Planners Vote Against New Sign Law

The El Paso County Planning Commission voted 3-2 Wednesday against the controversial billboard ordinance, after hearing pros and cons from eight persons present at the hearing.

Opposition to the proposed ordinance, which if passed would have banned signs within 660 feet of any controlled access highway in the county, included the 102-member motel association.

Kenneth Howard, motel manager representing the association, said the ordinance is "rather ridiculous" and that highway signs are part of the motel manager's business. He said 65 per cent of their business comes from highway traffic. Howard said he was in favor of controlling highway signs, but that they should be allowed at a "reasonable" distance from a business and should not be governed by the 660-foot setback.

A. Earl Bryson, representing the Colorado Springs Area Beauty Association, said esthetics should be considered.

"Beauty is a business aspect. We want industry, but we want industry of the right kind," he told the commission.

"This problem is not a local problem," he said. "People generally are awakening to the fact that our natural beauty is being destroyed."

He also cited the relationship between billboards and accidents. Signs, Bryson said, "are a very definite hazard."

Vern Johnson of Johnson Pontiac said advertising is important to business and signs are instrumental for identification purposes. He said motorists have shown an interest in a sign his firm has near Nevada Avenue. It is about 50 feet high and 36 feet wide, Johnson said.

Two travelers from Pueblo told him that the "sign loomed up like a lighthouse in the fog" when they were halted on their trip by a vehicle breakdown.

Johnson said they "were never so glad to see the sign in their life."

Mrs. Oren V. Shaw also cited the relationship between signs and auto accidents. Motel operators, she said, "are unduly alarmed" by the ordinance. Flashing and moving parts of signs are distractful to motorists, Mrs. Shaw said.

J. D. Hill of radio station KSSS and representing the Pikes Peak Advertising Assn. opposed the ordinance based on esthetics and the danger to the natural beauty of the region.

Douglas Naegele of Naegele Outdoor Advertising Co. said the tourist trade to the area is a $100 million business annually.

"If this proposed ordinance is adopted, you would legislate us out of business," he said. "This is in effect signing a death notice to business in the area."

"The thing that is crippling and intolerable in the ordinance is that you ask advertisers to remove their structures after a five-year period. The old dog won't hunt. You can't do that," Naegele told the commission.

He said it has never been substantially proven that accidents are caused by billboards and offered evidence to support his statement.

Naegele said volunteer action on the part of advertisers could be initiated to clean up the "clutter" on highways.

The joint sign committee which prepared the ordinance was comprised of members of the city and county planning commissions and it applied only to controlled access highways in El Paso County and Colorado Springs.

A majority of the committee voted to recommend more stringent advertising signs in the county than in the city. The proposal prohibited advertising signs from within 660 feet of a controlled access highway and the city ordinance prohibits signs from within 440 feet.

Suggested compromises to the 660-foot restriction were that smaller signs be closer to roads, less severe restrictions in sparsely populated areas and spacing of signs.

Stolen Car Returns With Items Missing

A car valued at $900 was stolen between 3 p.m. Tuesday and 6 a.m. Wednesday, and then returned sometime before 11:30 a.m. Wednesday minus $400 worth of bowling equipment and clothing.

Georgia M. Thomas, 1405 Lauretta Dr., told police she left the keys in the ignition of her car when she parked it Tuesday. She also said she had a bowling ball and bag, and a pair of bowling shoes, worth a total of $70 in the car. She also left a cashmere sweater worth $35 in the car, she said.

When the car was returned Wednesday, the bowling equipment and sweater were gone, and the gas tank of the car was almost empty.

planners opposing the construction of the apartment building before the commission Wednesday. Laliberte said water supply in the area might be exhausted if the apartment is constructed and Skyway School probably would become overcrowded by children who would live in the new unit. An addition is planned for the school, he said, but it does not presently exist.

Mrs. Gadd said she is opposed to the building and questioned the need for such a structure in the area. The land should be left undisturbed, she said, and if the building goes up, it would cut sunlight off from her home.

A second petition to be heard next Thursday is by the Woodmoor Corp. requesting permission to change an A-5 Rural District to an R-Residential District located south of Cemetery Road and west of Furrow Road. The area contains about 320 acres.

The petition will be heard with a preliminary plat by Woodmoor located south of Cemetery Road and west of Furrow Road containing about 320 acres and surveyed by United Western Engineers.

Vacations tabled by the commission Wednesday are by Elmer L. and Catherine M. Maloney to vacate an existing 30-foot drainage easement in an area located at the south end of Lakeview Lane, and by Earl E. and Jewel M. Gruber to vacate an existing 12-foot utilities easement in an area on the south side of Mt. Herman Road at the west end of Panoramic Acres Subdivision.

Not heard at the hearing Wednesday was a petition by John B. Jiron to change an R-2 Residential District to a C-2 Suburban Business District located in Ekland's Addition to Oakview and measuring 50 foot by 150 foot. The petitioner was not present at the hearing and his request will be taken up later by the planning commission.

In the most serious accident, one person was injured in a two-car collision at 7:10 a.m. Wednesday, at the Breed Underpass on Interstate 25, three miles north of the city.

Carol J. Stephens, 30, of Monument, suffered a whiplash neck and bruises, and was released at the scene.

Mrs. Stephens was slowing down for a vehicle that was crossway to the road and a truck behind her collided with her car. Paul J. Barnes, 64, Route Three, Colorado Springs, was the driver of the truck.

Mrs. Stephens' vehicle and the Barnes vehicle both had $300 damage, according to the patrol.

The U.S. Weather Bureau at Peterson Field measured five inches of snow on the ground this morning. Total snowfall recorded by the weathermen was 5.6 inches.

However, many areas in Colorado Springs and the region counted 10 to 12 inches in some spots.

Weathermen said the moisture content of the snow came to .41 inch. This, added to the .14 inch recorded during January, gives a total of .55 inch thus far this year.

February's normal of .33 inch was passed during the snow storm that began Tuesday afternoon and ended late Wednesday night. This normal plus the .29 inch normal of January adds up to .62 inch so weathermen say the region is a little above normal so far. Expectations are that by the end of the month, precipitation should pass the normal figures.

More snow is predicted for the coming week, possibly on Monday.

Snow flurries are expected throughout the day and the northerly winds will continue with some blowing and drifting. Temperatures are also expected to be cold for the remainder of the week.

Fire Department Made 85 Runs Last Month

The Colorado Springs fire department answered 85 alarms last month, six were false and two due to faulty alarm systems.

Additionally, Fire Chief Fred H. Lausch said, 88 bicycles were licensed, two boats inspected for permits, four tank permits were issued and 2,610 radio transmissions handled.

Cars traveled 3,610 miles during the month and trucks 600 miles.

those who were being asked to switch from Palmer to Wasson would enter a school where most of the honors that go with being a senior had already been awarded to present students of the school, and that those who would be seniors and first time students of Wasson this fall would be "left out in the cold."

Wilbur Marshall, president of the board, responded to Robertson by saying that the boundaries were drawn "as objectively as possible, and long study has gone into the preparation of these boundaries." He said that no matter where the boundaries were drawn, some students were "bound to be hurt by the decision."

Thomas Doherty, superintendent of schools in District 11, said that "the school program was given priority in the drawing up of these boundaries, and the pep clubs, athletics, and other extracurricular activities of the students were given secondary consideration."

He continued that "the most difficult problem is to relieve the student population situation at Palmer High School, and to this end we drew the boundaries as objectively as possible." It was pointed out that 800 students from Wasson and 300 from Palmer were to go to Billy Mitchell High School, to make up most of the student population there.

When the subject of special permits issued to students to attend a particular school was brought up by the petitioners, Marshall responded that "the feelings of your group are perfectly natural, but we (the board) have to be hard boiled on the issuance of permits."

According to the petitioners, one boy who will be affected by the boundaries drawings has already been elected a co-captain of Palmer's football team for next year, and now will have to attend Wasson High School. It was the feeling of the Board that the boy would be able to play next year on Wasson's team, and that because two co-captains are elected there he would have a chance to become one of them, since only one has been selected so far and the other will be elected by the team after a considerable amount of pre-season practice next fall.

The petitioners said that the parents of children who will be going to Billy Mitchell High School next fall were not too concerned because their children will be making new traditions. They added that only those students who are changing from one established school to another (Palmer to Wasson, or vice versa) have objections.

The board concluded the discussion by saying that they would take the matter under further study. Marshall added that "we're not going to play favorites with you people at the expense of other people of the city who are similarly affected."

In other action, the board presented Wilbur Marshall with an award from the American Association of School Administrators for outstanding contributions to the people of District 11 in his 10 years as a member of the school board.

The board also heard a report on the progress of the new Billy Mitchell High School, and learned that all units under construction are in good shape except for the auditorium. Strong winds recently blew off sections of the roof of that structure and caused quite extensive damage. Although the damage will be paid for by insurance, there is now some doubt as to whether the building will be completed by the beginning of the 1965-66 school year.

The rest of the units are expected to be completed between the end of May and the early part of August, according to the report.

Personal Injury Suit Filed in District Court

According to the complaint Blaine Breiswiser claims he was permanently injured and disabled when Cannone drove his car into the Breitwiser vehicle in the 800 block of East Costilla Street Feb. 8, 1964.

It is further alleged that the plaintiff will be deprived of his ability to earn a living for the remainder of his life. The disablement is said to be an aggravation of a pre-existing heart condition.

There old tires are cut up into sandals for the guerrillas — new tires are too thick. Engines are converted for use in jungle arms factories and to generate electric power. Instruments taken from cars are used for making time bombs.

Nearly all cars, buses and trucks are stopped at the toll points and charged $2 to $10, depending on the weight of the vehicle, its cargo and so on. Since November, an estimated $40,000 has been collected.

Passengers are checked closely. During the recent holiday season, uniformed soldiers without weapons were allowed through the checkpoint but were stripped of their uniforms. Viet Cong troops in the area all wear government uniforms.

At other times, government officials and soldiers travel at their peril.

Lawrence Cowen Died Wednesday At Hospital

Lawrence M. Cowen, 10 Cheyenne Mountain Blvd., founder and president of the Cowen Transfer and Storage Co. and widely known for a miniature railroad at his home, on which he gave children free rides, died Wednesday at a local hospital.

He was the son of the late W. W. Cowen, long Colorado Springs agent for the Wells Fargo and later Railway Express Company, city councilman and member of the State Legislature. Lawrence Cowen was quick to see the coming importance of trucking for transfer business and built up a large company with many trucks from a small beginning. It is the oldest family owned transfer and storage business in the city. But he retained his interest in railroads and pursued miniature railroading as a hobby for the delight of children, thousands of whom have enjoyed rides on his City of Sunshine Railroad at his home.

Mr. Cowen was born in Springfield, Mo. Nov. 4, 1896. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Marjorie Dryhurst Cowen; a son, Lawrence D. Cowen and daughter, Mrs. Marjorie Cowen Lynch, all of Colorado Springs.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 a.m. Saturday at the Law Drawing Room. Dr. Lehmberg, pastor of the First Methodist Church, will officiate. Burial will be in Evergreen Cemetery.

The committee was greeted by Academy Superintendent Maj. Gen. Robert Warren, who had just arrived from San Francisco.

The three other committee members were not on the plane: Lt. Gen. J. J. Nazzaro, vice commander of the Strategic Air Command, was grounded by weather in Omaha, Neb.; Dr. Robert L. Thornton, Litton Industries president, will arrive this afternoon by private plane.

The probe is expected to take four days. The committee was named by Secretary of the Air Force Eugene M. Zuckert in the wake of the cheating scandal in which 105 cadets resigned.

Among the five areas it will study is the question: "Is the honor code unreasonable and unrealistic, in whole or in part?"

Gen. White said the findings of the committee will be turned directly over to the Air Force Secretary, and will not be released by Academy officials without Zuckert's okay.

chiatrist at Colorado Psychopathic Hospital. The doctor told the court he believed the defendant was able to refrain from doing wrong, and that the predominant mental feature of the accused man at the time of the offense was "intoxication to the point of being drunk."

The witness went on to say Hermanitz had a personality disorder, and a passive personality with overwhelming helplessness in time of stress, but this could not be considered a mental disease, and the doctor found no evidence of a mental disease.

The defendant was very dependent on his wife, the doctor went on, and at times felt a deep sense of rejection and severe anxiety. The doctor then quoted him as having said he had been drinking all day Aug. 7, the day immediately preceding the shooting. Hermanitz had said he did not remember getting home Aug. 7 but on Aug. 8, a Saturday, he got up and started drinking again.

It was at this point, the witness said, that Hermanitz had noticed his wife was not there, and immediately he imagined she "had left him for good and that this was the end of the world." His recollections of the remainder of that day was interspersed with blanks.

The doctor said the defendant recalled going to the inn, being kidded about feeding steak to his dogs and shooting Lucas in the side who "turned around looking surprised."

Dr. Koenig told the court that Hermanitz had not told him of the hallucinations he allegedly experienced. Earlier in the trial the defendant took the stand and recounted a number of visual hallucinations he had undergone before the shooting.

Explaining the apparent lapses of memory suffered by Hermanitz on Aug. 8, Dr. Koenig called them "alcoholic amnesia" elaborating that excessive use of alcohol frequently resulted in a "patchy quality" with "islands of memory here and there."

No other psychotic condition, said the witness could give this quality, although acute alcoholism could result in hallucinations, but there was no evidence to show Hermanitz had been suffering from delirium tremens.

In cross examination conducted by defense attorney William Eckhart, Dr. Koenig said that during his stay in the hospital Hermanitz had felt very strongly he was insane and was afraid the doctors would do something to make him appear sane.

The accused did not want to use soap or shampoo as he felt it contained medication which he had asked the doctors not to administer. "Is he a normal, healthy man?" Eckhart asked. "He is not a normally, mentally healthy man," was the reply.

Dr. John Aycrigg, also a psychiatrist at the Colorado Psychopathic Hospital took the stand and corroborated much of the testimony of the previous witness.

Dr. Aycrigg said Hermanitz told him he remembered pointing the gun at Lucas and shooting him. This was in direct contradiction to testimony given previously by the defendant. Hermanitz had gone on to say he could not recall the reason for the shooting.

Throughout the entire trial no testimony or evidence of any motive for the killing has been presented.

Hermanitz told the witness that he felt it "was not his real self involved in the shooting."

The doctor believed the defendant was not so diseased in mind that he did not know right from wrong and that he could abide by the right. Dr. Aycrigg had told Hermanitz at the hospital that he believed he was sane and he then appeared "unhappy, angry, despairing and accusing." "He had an attitude," concluded the witness, "of how could I do this to him."

District Attorney Bob Russel and Assistant District Attorney Bob Isaac are prosecuting. Judge Hunter D. Hardeman is on the bench.

The blast also buried 12 Vietnamese house servants working in the hotel. The mangled leg of one could be seen protruding from the rubble.

A family of seven Vietnamese living in a nearby house were all killed.

All the Americans in the hotel were Army enlisted men serving with 140th Maintenance Detachment except for the American killed in the bar. He was a Special Forces man.

Soon after the first cries for help, the cries of three other men in the rubble were heard. One of them was pulled out, leaving two others trapped late Thursday.

Spec. 5 Robert K. Marshall was on the second floor of the building when the attack began. Viet Cong squads poured machine-gun fire into the building.

almost regardless of what happened in the South has now given way; whatever protection of privileged sanctuary the North had enjoyed until last weekend seemed to be disappearing fast.

The U.S.-Vietnamese strike was, however, once more directed against positions described in the White House statement as "infiltration bases."

As to the provocations charged against the Communists, the statement said that in recent days "large numbers of South Vietnamese and United States personnel have been killed in an increased number of Viet Cong ambushes and attacks."

Cited among costly Communist blows was the terrorist bombing Wednesday at the town of Qui Nhon which took a heavy toll of lives in the destruction of an enlisted men's hotel. The statement also said the Reds have overrun a district town in Thouc Long province inflicting Vietnamese and American casualties. Attacks on railroads and a wave of assassinations of South Vietnamese officials were also charged against the Communists.

It is further alleged the plaintiff received severe injuries and is permanently partially disabled.

County Planners Vote Against New Sign Law

The El Paso County Planning Commission voted 3-2 Wednesday against the controversial billboard ordinance, after hearing pros and cons from eight persons present at the hearing.

Opposition to the proposed ordinance, which if passed would have banned signs within 660 feet of any controlled access highway in the county, included the 102-member motel association.

Kenneth Howard, motel manager representing the association, said the ordinance is "rather ridiculous" and that highway signs are part of the motel manager's business. He said 82 per cent of their business comes from highway traffic. Howard said he was in favor of controlling highway signs, but that they should be allowed at a "reasonable" distance from a business and should not be governed by the 660-foot setback.

A. Earl Bryson, representing the Colorado Springs Area Beauty Association, said esthetics should be considered.

"Beauty is a business aspect. We want industry, but we want industry of the right kind," he told the commission.

"This problem is not a local problem," he said. "People generally are awakening to the fact that our natural beauty is being destroyed."

He also cited the relationship between billboards and accidents. Signs, Bryson said, "are a very definite hazard."

Vern Johnson of Johnson Pontiac said advertising is important to business and signs are instrumental for identification purposes. He said motorists have shown an interest in a sign his firm has near Nevada Avenue. It is about 50 feet high and 38 feet wide, Johnson said.

Two travelers from Pueblo told him that the "sign loomed up like a lighthouse in the fog" when they were halted on their trip by a vehicle breakdown.

Johnson said they "were never so glad to see the sign in their life."

Mrs. Oren V. Shaw also cited the relationship between signs and auto accidents. Motel operators, she said, "are unduly alarmed" by the ordinance. Flashing and moving parts of signs are distractful to motorists, Mrs. Shaw said.

J. D. Hill of radio station KSSS and representing the Pikes Peak Advertising Assn. opposed the ordinance based on esthetics and the danger to the natural beauty of the region.

Douglas Naegele of Naegele Outdoor Advertising Co. said the tourist trade to the area is a $100 million business annually.

"If this proposed ordinance is adopted, you would legislate us out of business," he said. "This is in effect signing a death notice to business in the area."

"The thing that is crippling and intolerable in the ordinance is that you ask advertisers to remove their structures after a five-year period. The old dog won't hunt. You can't do that," Naegele told the commission.

He said it has never been substantially proven that accidents are caused by billboards and offered evidence to support his statement.

Naegele said volunteer action on the part of advertisers could be initiated to clean up the "clutter" on highways.

The joint sign committee which prepared the ordinance was comprised of members of the city and county planning commissions and it applied only to controlled access highways in El Paso County and Colorado Springs.

A majority of the committee voted to recommend more stringent advertising signs in the county than in the city. The proposal prohibited advertising signs from within 660 feet of a controlled access highway and the city ordinance prohibits signs from within 440 feet.

Suggested compromises to the 660-foot restriction were that smaller signs be closer to roads, less severe restrictions in sparsely populated areas and spacing of signs.

Stolen Car Returns With Items Missing

A car valued at $900 was stolen between 3 p.m. Tuesday and 6 a.m. Wednesday, and then returned sometime before 11:30 a.m. Wednesday minus $185 worth of bowling equipment and clothing.

Georgia M. Thomas, 1405 Lauretta Dr., told police she left the keys in the ignition of her car when she parked it Tuesday. She also said she left a bowling ball and bag, and a pair of bowling shoes, worth a total of $70 in the car. She also left a cashmere sweater worth $35 in the car, she said.

When the car was returned Wednesday, the bowling equipment and sweater were gone, and the gas tank of the car was almost empty.

red at stop signs and stop lights, because of the excessive speed of the vehicles under hazardous road conditions.

In the most serious accident, one person was injured in a two-car collision at 7:10 a.m. Wednesday, at the Breed Underpass on Interstate 25, three miles north of the city.

Carol J. Stephens, 30, of Monument, suffered a whiplash neck and bruises, and was released at the scene.

Mrs. Stephens was slowing down for a vehicle that was crossway to the road and a truck behind her collided with her car. Paul J. Barnes, 64, Route Three, Colorado Springs, was the driver of the truck.

Mrs. Stephens' vehicle and the Barnes vehicle both had $300 damage, according to the patrol.

The U.S. Weather Bureau at Peterson Field measured five inches of snow on the ground this morning. Total snowfall recorded by the weathermen was 5.6 inches.

However, many areas in Colorado Springs and the region counted 10 to 12 inches in some spots.

Weathermen said the moisture content of the snow came to .41 inch. This, added to the .14 inch recorded during January, gives a total of .55 inch thus far this year.

February's normal of .33 inch was passed during the snow storm that began Tuesday afternoon and ended late Wednesday night. This normal plus the .29 inch normal of January adds up to .62 inch so weathermen say the region is a little above normal so far. Expectations are that by the end of the month, precipitation should pass the normal figures.

More snow is predicted for the coming week, possibly on Monday.

Snow flurries are expected throughout the day and the northerly winds will continue with some blowing and drifting. Temperatures are also expected to be cold for the remainder of the week.

Fire Department Made 85 Runs Last Month

The Colorado Springs fire department answered 85 alarms last month, six were false and two due to faulty alarm systems.

Twelve resuscitator calls were made and 1,488 man hours were spent by firemen in training, drill and study.

Additionally, Fire Chief Fred H. Lausch said, 58 bicycles were licensed, two boats inspected for permits, four tank permits were issued and 3,618 radio transmissions handled.

Cars traveled 3,618 miles during the month and trucks 600 miles.

Sanborn Appointed To County Board

Nick Sanborn, a native of Cascade and employed by Johnson Pontiac, 740 E. Pikes Peak Ave., has been appointed to the El Paso County Board of Adjustment, the county planning director's office said Wednesday.

The appointment was made by the county Board of Commissioners Monday and was announced Wednesday.

plaints opposing the construction of the apartment building before the commission Wednesday. LaMora said water supply in the area might be exhausted if the apartment is constructed and Skyway School probably would become overcrowded by children who would live in the new unit. An addition is planned for the school, he said, but it does not presently exist.

Mrs. Gadd said she is opposed to the building and questioned the need for such a structure in the area. The land should be left undistrubed, she said, and if the building goes up, it would cut sunlight off from her home.

A second petition to be heard next Thursday is by the Woodmoor Corp. requesting permission to change an A-5 Rural District to an R-Residential District located south of Cemetery Road and west of Furrow Road. The area contains about 320 acres.

The petition will be heard with a preliminary plat by Woodmoor located south of Cemetery Road and west of Furrow Road containing about 320 acres and surveyed by United Western Engineers.

Vacations tabled by the commission Wednesday are by Elmer L. and Catherine M. Maloney to vacate an existing 30-foot drainage easement in an area located at the south end of Lakeview Lane, and by Earl E. and Jewel M. Gruber to vacate an existing 12-foot utilities easement in an area on the south side of Mt. Herman Road at the west end of Panoramic Acres Subdivision.

Not heard at the hearing Wednesday was a petition by John B. Jiron to change an R-2 Residential District to a C-2 Suburban Business District located in Eklund's Addition to Oakview and measuring 50 foot by 150 foot. The petitioner was not present at the hearing and his request will be taken up later by the planning commission.

Car Damages In City Total $1.2 Million

Property damage to vehicles involved in auto accidents last year in Colorado Springs was about $1.2 million.

That was the approximation made by Lt. Herb Tinsley, Colorado Springs police department traffic bureau commander, in his annual traffic report to Police Chief Cecil J. McKissick.

There were 3,375 traffic accsecond. during 1964, in which six persons were killed and another Tinsley also reported that more accidents occured on Fridays 953 injured.

Of the 3,375 total, he said, 592 happened on Fridays and 557 on Saturdays. There were only 347 on Sundays. Accidents during other days of the week ranged from 457 on Mondays to 496 on Tuesdays.

Most dangerous hour of the day for accidents was between 4 and 5 p.m. There were 394 accidents during that rush-hour period last year. The 3 to 4 p.m. period was second high with 365. The least number of accidents, only 11, occurred between 5 a.m. and 6 a.m.

Tinsley also reported that 11,-506 regular traffic ticket citations were issued last year, with 8,939 of those issued to males and 2,567 to females.

More tickets were issued to females 538 in the 25 to 34 year-old age group than any other while for males the 20-24 age group got the most citations, 2,-231.

There were 33 motor scooter accidents last year, resulting in injuries to 30 persons. Seventeen of the accidents were caused by the motor scooter operator.

GAZETTE-TELEGRAPH

Your Freedom Newspaper

Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an ever better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Reply to Blaisdell

We would like to congratulate George Blaisdell of Ft. Carson for his exceptionally fine letter and the conclusions he has reached. However, we believe we can penetrate a little beyond the points he has set forth.

First, he states flatly that "the only way to protect a right is to hold the threat and the means of retaliation against aggression. . ."

This we deny. Threats and the use of force never yet have "protected" anyone. Retaliation, by definition, can occur ONLY after protection has not been provided. Thus, it should not be equated with protection. Protection is what you have that PREVENTS an act of aggression from occurring. And it is not threat or force that prevents aggression. It is the fundamental understanding of the individual.

If we grant that a threat of possible retaliation may serve a protective function (and we will grant this), such threats are never total enough or certain enough to protect to any particular degree. There are now so many people in the world and so much property is available to be trespassed, that if protection were only a matter of threat or retaliation, there would be far more trespass than there is. People and property are safe in this world, not because of possible retaliation (and it is never more than barely possible), but because most people are neither murderers nor thieves. And the reason they are not is because they do not believe in murdering or in robbing. Person and property are safe to the degree that people in the vicinity of the person or property do not commit aggression.

Take Colorado Springs. Here we have at least 80,000 persons and at least 25,000 pieces of real property and millions of items of personal property. Yet theft is so rare, considering the numbers of possible thefts, that when an act of theft occurs it usually is reported in the newspaper. That is, out of 80,000 people in Colorado Springs, probably less than 500 of them will commit an act of theft during a given year. This means that 79,500 were controlling themselves.

The statistics for murder are even more encouraging. Out of 80,000 possible murderers, probably fewer than six murders will be performed in a given year. That means that there are 79,994 persons who will not murder.

But the records concerning retaliation are rather clear, too. Most of the murderers of the past remain uncaught. Most of the thieves remain uncaught. Therefore, the reason nearly 80,000 people do not steal or murder cannot relate to possible retaliation for if they were to be checked by this alone, the evidence would suggest that they need not fear retaliation. And still they do not commit these crimes. Why? They are not criminals.

It follows that if retaliation can only occur AFTER THE FACT of the commision of a crime, then if a person and his property are protected in fact, retaliation is impossible. If retaliation occurred prior to the commission of a crime, it would not be retaliation but rather it would be aggression.

So we should see at the outset that protection and retaliation are OPPOSITES. If one exists, the other cannot exist. Yet, Mr. Blaisdell lumps them together.

By allocating to government the power of retaliation, we do NOT protect our rights. Rather, as Mr. Blaisdell correctly observes, government attacks us as innocent persons and robs us of our money. How, if we are victimized by a legal use of force against us, are our rights secure?

But in the second half of his letter, Mr. Blaisdell comes to grips with the problem. He says correctly that if a way can be found to finance government without government aggression, then the whole argument against government would be thrown out. Precisely. But we will change terms here. If a way can be found to finance PROTECTION without granting government a monopoly power over us, then the problem would be solved.

We have, on numerous occasions, pointed out that we are not opposed to government per se. Actually, we are not too interested in government. Our concern is with the rights of man; specifically, the rights of man to own property and to be secure in his person and effects. If Mr. Blaisdell can devise a government which will NOT have the power to invade our rights, we'll be delighted with it.

We will suggest that if Mr. Blaisdell finds an instrument which will NOT violate our rights but which will protect us (not retaliate after we have been victimized), we will probably want to call it something other than government.

GOVERNMENT NECESSARY

To the Editor:

Thank you for your two fine editorials of January 24, 1965: "The Proper Role of Government," and "Aggression and Retaliation." They clearly explain why you are against government. Your position stated two important points: Government cannot protect rights since rights must be violated before government can step in, and all government action is possible only through government agression in the form of involuntary (to some) taxes.

Consider the first point. The only way to protect a right is to hold the threat and the means of retaliation against aggression (the initiation of the use of force). If there is no retaliation possible, as in the case of superior strength against weakness, or the mob against the individual, aggression, immediately and materially, will be quite profitable. (As long as there is someone to loot.) This road leads to feudalism. By allocating to government the means and, of course, threat, of retaliation ONLY, we are able to objectively protect our rights. Thus, we grant any man or nation its choice: they may deal with us by either force or reason, and we will answer them accordingly. It can only be concluded then that government is necessary to maintain our rights. Now, to your second point, which raises the question: Is government a necessary evil?

You answer is that government is evil, because to exist and function it must tax, and since taxes are aggressions, government is evil, so remove government.

We'd better take a close look at that major premise: Government must tax. If a way could be devised to finance government without government aggression, the whole argument against government could be thrown out.

Unfortunately, I am not a philosopher of law, and this endeavor falls under that category. However, some governments are financed without taxes by the use of a government lottery. There are other possibilities, such as direct payment for government services. Many difficulties will arise under this type of system, most of which I do not have answers for. Many government services (Armed Forces, police), do not directly benefit the individual, and could not thereby be charged against individuals. However, in all legal contracts, the government enforces the contracts. This now is a free service and could be charged for directly against the contracting parties. They could choose whether or not they wanted the government to enforce the contract, but if they did not, they would not be able to enforce it at all. A small fee on every contract in the U.S. would easily pay for all the proper functions of government. Still, many problems arise, and perhaps this idea (originated by Ayn Rand), would have to be discarded. Nevertheless, this is the right direction for financing government in a free, individualistic, capitalistic society.

We cannot ban government just because of the technical difficulties which arise in financing it. If government is necessary, as it appears to be, there must be a rational way to achieve it (aggression being described as irrational), so let's discover and-or devise the means proper to the end.

Fights City Hall—And Wins

We haven't heard of a man biting a dog lately, but we have heard something that we consider just as newsworthy, and that is fighting city hall and winning.

The battle was waged in the council room of the City Hall the morning of February 9 between Stuart Richter, director of parks and recreation and the City Council on one side and members of the South End Improvement Society, led by its secretary, Mrs. George H. Reed, on the other.

The bone of contention was the ban on artificial flowers in the city's cemeteries that was put into effect last year by the council at the request of Richter. The cemetery falls under his jurisdiction and he claimed many of his men had been injured and lost much time from such injuries, from the wires in the artificial flowers coming into contact with power mowers and other equipment. According to his reports, these wires were very dangerous and represented a constant danger to cemetery employees, as well as doing great damage to the city council maintenance equipment.

Without further investigation into the matter, the council passed two ordinances prohibiting the use of artificial flowers in public cemeteries in the city council committee.

[illegible] was very supportive with those who owned plots and had loved ones buried there. There are several advantages in using artificial flowers instead of cut flowers or plants for this sort of decoration. The main one, of course, is that they look nicer for a much longer period of time. Another is that they require little care and it isn't necessary to worry over whether they are being watered often enough, as with plants. A third reason is their economy. As fine a looking wreath, or even finer, can be had in artificials as in real flowers, which would last only a few days at the most, generally one.

To leave several dollars worth of flowers on a grave and go back in a couple or three days and find them completely wilted and just the opposite of decorative is disheartening. But to leave half that much worth of artificial flowers and go back in two or three weeks and find them looking as fresh and pretty as ever, gives one a lift beyond measure. And with artificials cheaper, the cemetery really looked nicer when they were being used.

We recall one remark made by a city councilman after the ban ordinance was passed that displeased many people who had loved ones buried in city cemeteries. The councilman said, simply, or supercilliously (probably not politely), "If you don't buy cut flowers for your loved ones, you're in the wrong cemetery."

We are happy to learn that the bans have been lifted, mainly through the efforts of Mrs. Reed who gathered testimony proving Richter was sadly misinformed, or at least had misinformed the councilmen when he complained the wires were a serious occupational hazard to city employees. Mrs. Reed ran down every case of reported injuries and found that many had never happened at all and none were serious. One man who reportedly spent a month in the hospital actually lost less than one day's work. These are the sort of things we should learn to expect from a politically operated cemetery.

We believe that if the city sold its cemeteries to private enterprisers they would be run more efficiently and the owners would make more of an effort to please its customers. What business has the city hall running cemeteries in the first place, or any other business that properly belongs in the hands of private enterprise?

We are pleased that the city fathers now see fit to repeal these ordinances. But they have called the city attorney to draw up a new one, so we won't be too comfortable in our graves until we see what it's

The Local Scene

Total Education?

By RUFUS L. PORTER

There is something missing from the American scene and it has bothered me for quite awhile. That is the old time, small town, village philosopher. He could be found almost any day, when the sun was shining, sunning himself in front of the barber shop, the bank or the general store where people were apt to gather for a moment's conversation in the busy rounds of their day.

The philosopher was never busy. He had spent a useful and productive life and was resting on his laurels. He may have been a retired farmer who had sold the farm and bought a place in town, or a retired merchant or a workingman who had been frugal and thrifty and was now "coasting" through his twilight years on his savings.

Whatever he had been, he now held a respected place in the town's society. He was the village philosopher. He had a lot of knowledge stored under his graying thatch of hair and more than a little wisdom in his heart. But one thing he didn't have was a college education. Chances are he had been a dropout in the fifth or sixth grade, and it was more than a sure bet that he never attended high school. But he had made his mark in the world and had, in most instances, raised a family and "Gave them a better start in life than I had," to quote him.

People from all walks of life sought out the philosopher for his opinion and advice on a thousand and one things pertaining to their daily lives. He settled arguments between neighbors with great kindness and finesse. He saved many a hotheaded pip-squeak from hauling his neighbor into court over some trivial matter, until, as often happened, he was himself elected as justice of the peace. People called him "Judge" but thought of him as friend, and he continued to philosophize in court. And he patched up family squabbles faster than a Reno judge could hand out divorces.

His philosophy had a homespun quality and his grammar wasn't the best, but he knew more about life and living than many of our college educated "Doctors of Philosophy" nowadays.

And where is he now? He has vanished into the limbo of forgotten things.

Education, with a capital E, has pushed him from the scene. Now everybody is educated just enough to think that the few old time philosophers that are left, perhaps a hundred in the entire nation, are crackpots, old fossils, goops, kookes or squares from squaresville. But they are not educated enough to have half the knowledge and the know-how of living, or the understanding of the human heart that those old fossils possess.

I am not knocking education, and I did go through high school. But that was way back there, and I can recall many happy, interesting and instructive hours listening to some old village philosopher expounding his views on practically any subject that came up that didn't require a lot of "book-learnin'." He knew his limitations. But in my time, even educated folks looked up to the village philosopher, they recognized his value to the community and he was never scorned or ridiculed.

Nowadays, he is shunted off to a rest home or cooped up in an apartment house for the elderly or, as they say in modernese, "senior citizens," where the young can never find him.

This is a mistake, for he should be a part of their education. I know several extremely intelligent elderly men who are spending their last years practically retired from the human race, not because they want to be, but because smartness, smugness, "education" and changes in our living habits have left them in the back-wash where the stream of life flows around them.

The village philosopher has disappeared from the stage and we will never see his likes again. In a world of total education, who needs homespun philosophy? With everybody being forced to attend school at least through high school and soon through college, when the "Great Society" gets organized, who is going to get time to do some plain, honest living and pick up a lot of practical, worldly knowledge and a little earthy wisdom before the "bones get set in their heads?"

One thing is certain. Total education will never be achieved. In fact, the attempt to provide total education is very apt to result in total ignorance. Quality is going to have to be sacrificed to quantity. In the future, more than ever, we are going to need our village philosophers, but they won't be around. We have plowed them under.

The village philosophers were not all found in villages. Many inhabited the larger towns, but they kept their small town simplicity about them. Colorado Springs had dozens of them 40 or 50 years ago.

If the Giants Possessed Courage

By GEORGE BOARDMAN

As of now, the giants of industry and finance in this country are in a position from which positive action could drive the socialist conglomerate to take cover. It requires no crystal ball to predict that the giants will NOT take necessary action because those same giants have previously demonstrated the collective courage of a dessicated louse. Actually, it would have been impossible for the socialist mob to gain a foothold in the beginning had the giants of business and industry refused to succumb to any of the various bribes which are the socialist's stock in trade.

Generally speaking, industry and business never get a second chance after socialism gets a toe hold. In this country, however, the market place has withstood the challenge to support more than 80 foreign governments, proving that even badly managed capitalism can operate with outstanding success. At this particular moment in history if the giants of business and industry could find the small amount of courage required to withdraw just the moral support it provides for a completely immoral system, bureaucrats would line up, hats in hand, and ask, "Okeh, gentlemen. What do you want us to do?"

I hope you can read the signs which illustrate with graphic clarity that the bureaucracy, from top to bottom, is more than merely frightened. The boss runs home to Texas at every opportunity. From there, efforts are being made to try to stabilize our almost worthless currency and every move made so far has been a complete waste of time as far as restoring confidence in the American dollar. The economy in this country, as it is mismanaged by the bureaucracy, is closer to bankruptcy than at any time in modern history. Confiscatory taxes brought the logical laws of diminishing returns into action and no bureaucrat can halt the trend short of eventual disaster. ONLY the market place is capable of producing for profit to stem the tide.

When the president of your government offers more and more of something for nothing and bills it as a state of the union message, the chips are down. When millions of Americans turn off their TV and radio sets instead of permitting their minds to be bombarded with political hog wash, the purveyor of the hog wash is in big trouble, politically. The disinterest in that state of the union message was tremendous and the two major giants of radio and TV know that even the efforts to blanket the airwaves was a waste of time. Too many people just did not bother to listen.

The disinterest in political gobble and gobble has been growing for some time. After political experts repeat the same old dull and tiresome Keynesian line long enough, even the most casual and unsophisticated addicts of TV and radio begin to fall asleep. But let me provide you with one relatively unnoticed statistic which is worthy of notice. From one end of the country to the other, up, down and across, tables of pool and billiard tables for home use are climbing steadily. We can be quite right mind tries to shoot a game of pool while watching TV.

Listening to various state officials around the country, I get the feel many citizens are involved with such give away games and gimmicks which are designed to [illegible] the [illegible] citizens [illegible] their [illegible] are [illegible] ily trying to sell prime time to even very small local advertisers. The top brass should be aware of these facts and many more and it looks like the boss is aware, anxious and hoping for different signs which will tell him which way to jump. If the giants of business and industry wanted to bear down hard right now their actions would certainly produce a profound effect.

At every level government is running wild, without restraint, as if to test the mettle of the market place to resist. Opposition is of vital importance but the place to find it today is in the dictionary. At the moment the giants are just jumping through the hoops and looking silly.

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

Profits and Investment Prerequisites for Economic Growth

From American Institute For Economic Research

The Bureau of Labor Statistics had intimated that 26 million young workers will enter the labor market during the 1960's and that a net gain of 11.5 million jobs will be needed between 1964 and the end of 1970. Mr. Robert C. Tyson of the United States Steel Corporation recently described some of the economic conditions necessary for providing these additional jobs. We reprint some of his comments below.

". . .The war and postwar babies of World War II are entering the labor market in increasing numbers, and many a new young job-holder or job-seeker is filled with the blissful expectation that his income will steadily rise more or less regardless of effort on his part. I think it is important that these young people — and their parents and grandparents — be reminded that the real American wage scales are not and cannot be the gift of genie-like government — nor, for that matter, of magnanimous business management or of aggressive union leadership. The real and enduring compensations are, instead, the consequence of a dynamic and highly productive free enterprise system which has invested tremendous sums of capital per worker. Similar or even greater sums will have to be invested in order to equip jobs for the war babies now reaching employable ages.

". . .If we assume, conservatively, an average capital cost of $18,000 for each new job — industrial and commercial, blue-collar and white-collar — it follows that for our economy to sustain employment and pay scales an investment is required in the magnitude of $207 billion in the seven-year period from this year through 1970, or an average of $30 billion a year, over and above capital replacement needs. . ."

After pointing out that the Government cannot, "create, create capital, as if out of thin air," Mr. Tyson noted that ". . . investment depends upon saving — the voluntary restriction of current consumption to less than is produced — thus permitting the important shift from consumption spending to investment spending. . .But the big question — perhaps I should say the $30 billion question — is, why should the investor forego the pleasurable consumption of goods today for the more remote and uncertain consumption of goods tomorrow? Why, in other words, should people invest and bear the burden of profit — the possibility of loss? The answer to this question that I think, in a single word: profit.

"The prospect of profit in this competitive world supplies the capital funds for the more dated and out into others, why some industries rise and others fall, why funds and investors migrate to supply funds where they are needed and why some of the companies can't make a profit. In a way a capital fund is very much like [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Reply to Blaisdell

We would like to congratulate George Blaisdell of Ft. Carson for his exceptionally fine letter and the conclusions he has reached. However, we believe we can penetrate a little beyond the points he has set forth.

First, he states flatly that "the only way to protect a right is to hold the threat and the means of retaliation against aggression. . ."

This we deny. Threats and the use of force never yet have "protected" anyone. Retaliation, by definition, can occur ONLY after protection has not been provided. Thus, it should not be equated with protection. Protection is what you have that PREVENTS an act of aggression from occurring. And it is not threat or force that prevents aggression. It is the fundamental understanding of the individual.

If we grant that a threat of possible retaliation may serve a protective function (and we will grant this), such threats are never total enough or certain enough to protect to any particular degree. There are now so many people in the world and so much property is available to be trespassed, that if protection were only a matter of threat or retaliation, there would be far more trespass than there is. People and property are safe in this world, not because of possible retaliation (and it is never more than barely possible), but because most people are neither murderers nor thieves. And the reason they are not is because they do not believe in murdering or in robbing. Person and property are safe to the degree that people in the vicinity of the person or property do not commit aggression.

Take Colorado Springs. Here we have at least 80,000 persons and at least 25,000 pieces of real property and millions of items of personal property. Yet theft is so rare, considering the numbers of possible thefts, that when an act of theft occurs it usually is reported in the newspaper. That is, out of 80,000 people in Colorado Springs, probably less than 500 of them will commit an act of theft during a given year. This means that 79,500 were controlling themselves.

The statistics for murder are even more encouraging. Out of 80,000 possible murderers, probably fewer than six murders will be performed in a given year. That means that there are 79,994 persons who will not murder.

But the records concerning retaliation are rather clear, too. Most of the murderers of the past remain uncaught. Most of the thieves remain uncaught. Therefore, the reason nearly 80,000 people do not steal or murder cannot relate to possible retaliation for if they were to be checked by this alone, the evidence would suggest that they need not fear retaliation. And still they do not commit these crimes. Why? They are not criminals.

It follows that if retaliation can only occur AFTER THE FACT of the commision of a crime, then if a person and his property are protected in fact, retaliation is impossible. If retaliation occurred prior to the commission of a crime, it would not be retaliation but rather it would be aggression.

So we should see at the outset that protection and retaliation are OPPOSITES. If one exists, the other cannot exist. Yet, Mr. Blaisdell lumps them together.

By allocating to government the power of retaliation, we do NOT protect our rights. Rather, as Mr. Blaisdell correctly observes, government attacks us as innocent persons and robs us of our money. How, if we are victimized by a legal use of force against us, are our rights secure?

Fights City Hall—And Wins

We haven't heard of a man biting a dog lately, but we have heard something that we consider just as newsworthy, and that is fighting city hall and winning.

According to his reports, these wires were very dangerous and represented a constant danger to cemetery employees, as well as doing great damage to the city owned maintenance equipment.

Without further investigation into the matter, the council passed the ordinance prohibiting the use of artificial flowers for grave decorations in the city owned cemeteries.

This move was very unpopular with those who owned plots and had loved ones buried there. There are several advantages in using artificial flowers instead of cut flowers or plants for this sort of decoration. The main one, of course, is that they look nicer for a much longer period of time. We are pleased that the city fathers saw fit to repeal these ordinances. But they have asked the city attorney to draw up a new one, so we won't be too lavish in our praise until we see what it's like.

GOVERNMENT NECESSARY

To the Editor:

Thank you for your two fine editorials of January 24, 1965: "The Proper Role of Government," and "Aggression and Retaliation." They clearly explain why you are against government. Your position stated two important points: Government cannot protect rights since rights must be violated before government can step in, and all government action is possible only through government agression in the form of involuntary (to some) taxes.

Consider the first point. The only way to protect a right is to hold the threat and the means of retaliation against aggression (the initiation of the use of force). If there is no retaliation possible, as in the case of superior strength against weakness, or the mob against the individual, aggression, immediately and materially, will be quite profitable. (As long as there is someone to loot.) This road leads to feudalism. By allocating to government the means and, of course, threat, of retaliation ONLY, we are able to objectively protect our rights. Thus, we grant any man or nation its choice: they may deal with us by either force or reason, and we will answer them accordingly. It can only be concluded then that government is necessary to maintain our rights. Now, to your second point, which raises the question: Is government a necessary evil?

You answer is that government is evil, because to exist and function it must tax, and since taxes are aggressions, government is evil, so remove government.

We'd better take a close look at that major premise: Government must tax. If a way could be devised to finance government without government aggression, the whole argument against government could be thrown out.

Unfortunately, I am not a philosopher of law, and this endeavor falls under that category. However, some governments are financed without taxes by the use of a government lottery. There are other possibilities, such as direct payment for government services. Many difficulties will arise under this type of system, most of which I do not have answers for. Many government services (Armed Forces, police), do not directly benefit the individual, and could not thereby be charged against individuals. However, in all legal contracts, the government enforces the contracts. This now is a free service and could be charged for directly against the contracting parties. They could choose whether or not they wanted the government to enforce the contract, but if they did not, they would not be able to enforce it at all. A small fee on every contract in the U.S. would easily pay for all the proper functions of government. Still, many problems arise, and perhaps this idea (originated by Ayn Rand), would have to be discarded. Nevertheless, this is the right direction for financing government in a free, individualistic, capitalistic society.

We cannot ban government just because of the technical difficulties which arise in financing it. If government is necessary, as it appears to be, there must be a rational way to achieve it (aggression being described as irrational), so let's discover and-or devise the means proper to the end.

The Local Scene

Total Education?

By RUFUS L. PORTER

There is something missing from the American scene and it has bothered me for quite awhile. That is the old time, small town, village philosopher. He could be found almost any day, when the sun was shining, sunning himself in front of the barber shop, the bank or the general store where people were apt to gather for a moment's conversation in the busy rounds of their day.

The philosopher was never busy. He had spent a useful and productive life and was resting on his laurels. He may have been a retired farmer who had sold the farm and bought a place in town, or a retired merchant or a workingman who had been frugal and thrifty and was now "coasting" through his twilight years on his savings.

Whatever he had been, he now held a respected place in the town's society. He was the village philosopher. He had a lot of knowledge stored under his graying thatch of hair and more than a little wisdom in his heart. But one thing he didn't have was a college education. Chances are he had been a dropout in the fifth or sixth grade, and it was more than a sure bet that he never attended high school. But he had made his mark in the world and had, in most instances, raised a family and "Gave them a better start in life than I had," to quote him.

People from all walks of life sought out the philosopher for his opinion and advice on a thousand and one things pertaining to their daily lives. He settled arguments between neighbors with great kindness and finesse. He saved many a hotheaded pip-squeak from hauling his neighbor into court over some trivial matter, until, as often happened, he was himself elected as justice of the peace. People called him "Judge" but thought of him as friend, and he continued to philosophize in court. And he patched up family squabbles faster than a Reno judge could hand out divorces.

His philosophy had a homespun quality and his grammar wasn't the best, but he knew more about life and living than many of our college educated "Doctors of Philosophy" nowadays.

And where is he now? He has vanished into the limbo of forgotten things.

Education, with a capital E, has pushed him from the scene. Now everybody is educated just enough to think that the few old time philosophers that are left, perhaps a hundred in the entire nation, are crackpots, old fossils, goops, kookes or squares from squaresville. But they are not educated enough to have half the knowledge and the know-how of living, or the understanding of the human heart that those old fossils possess.

I am not knocking education, and I did go through high school. But that was way back there, and I can recall many happy, interesting and instructive hours listening to some old village philosopher expounding his views on practically any subject that came up that didn't require a lot of "book-learnin'." He knew his limitations. But in my time, even educated folks looked up to the village philosopher, they recognized his value to the community and he was never scorned or ridiculed.

Nowadays, he is shunted off to a rest home or cooped up in an apartment house for the elderly or, as they say in modernese, "senior citizens," where the young can never find him. This is a mistake, for he should be a part of their education. I know several extremely intelligent elderly men who are spending their last years practically retired from the human race, not because they want to be, but because smartness, smugness, "education" and changes in our living habits have left them in the back-wash where the stream of life flows around them.

The village philosopher has disappeared from the stage and we will never see his likes again. In a world of total education, who needs homespun philosophy? With everybody being forced to attend school at least through high school and soon through college, when the "Great Society" gets organized, who is going to get time to do some plain, honest living and pick up a lot of practical, worldly knowledge and a little earthy wisdom before the "bones get set in their heads?"

One thing is certain. Total education will never be achieved. In fact, the attempt to provide total education is very apt to result in total ignorance. Quality is going to have to be sacrificed to quantity. In the future, more than ever, we are going to need our village philosophers, but they won't be around. We have plowed them under.

The village philosophers were not all found in villages. Many inhabited the larger towns, but they kept their small town simplicity about them. Colorado Springs had dozens of them 40 or 50 years ago.

QUESTION: Do American girls have the best legs?

DWIGHT GRIESS, 1206 Falcon Ave., "Well. . .I'm going with one, and as far as I'm concerned, they're the best. Oh, I watch 'em everywhere."

CHARLES SHIVERDECKER, 1506 E. Cheyenne Rd., "You bet. I've seen a few others, but Americans are tops in my book. Well, I like to watch'em every chance I get."

LOWELL POST, 1114 Montrose, "I guess I should be patriotic. Yes I suppose they're the best. I think they're darn good, anyway. I've never been out of the country, so I don't know about other country's legs."

CHARLIE BADER, 1223 Rockwood, "I guess so. I'm just as much a leg man as anybody else, and I don't see anything wrong with American girl's legs. Oh, sometimes you see a pretty sad pair, but not usually."

JERRY GAMILL, 1606 E. Cheyenne Rd., "Darn right they are the best. I've got eyes haven't I? I think the others are too fat or muscular. I watch 'em all the time, sure."

BRUCE LINDSEY, 629 Columbia Rd., "Yes, I think so. The models have nice legs anyway, and the foreign girls can't beat 'em. I like to watch 'em runnin' around school. I like nice calves slim but curvy."

"Have a Seat, I'll Be Right With You!"

By GEORGE BOARDMAN

As of now, the giants of industry and finance in this country are in a position from which positive action could drive the socialist conglomerate to take cover. It requires no crystal ball to predict that the giants will NOT take necessary action because those same giants have previously demonstrated the collective courage of a dessicated louse. Actually, it would have been impossible for the socialist mob to gain a foothold in the beginning had the giants of business and industry refused to succumb to any of the various bribes which are the socialist's stock in trade.

Generally speaking, industry and business never get a second chance after socialism gets a toe hold. In this country, however, the market place has withstood the challenge to support more than 80 foreign governments, proving that even badly managed capitalism can operate with outstanding success. At this particular moment in history if the giants of business and industry could find the small amount of courage required to withdraw just the moral support it provides for a completely immoral system, bureaucrats would line up, hats in hand, and ask, "Okeh, gentlemen. What do you want us to do?"

I hope you can read the signs which illustrate with graphic clarity that the bureaucracy, from top to bottom, is more than merely frightened. The boss runs home to Texas at every opportunity. From there, efforts are being made to try to stabilize our almost worthless currency and every move made so far has been a complete waste of time as far as restoring confidence in the American dollar. The economy in this country, as it is mismanaged by the bureaucracy, is closer to bankruptcy than at any time in modern history. Confiscatory taxes brought the logical laws of diminishing returns into action and no bureaucrat can halt the trend short of eventual disaster. ONLY the market place is capable of producing for profit to stem the tide.

When the president of your government offers more and more of something for nothing and bills it as a state of the union message, the chips are down. When millions of Americans turn off their TV and radio sets instead of permitting their minds to be bombarded with political hog wash, the purveyor of the hog wash is in big trouble, politically. The disinterest in that state of the union message was tremendous and the two major giants of radio and TV know that even the efforts to blanket the airwaves was a waste of time. Too many people just did not bother to listen.

The disinterest in political gobble and gabble has been growing for some time. After political experts repeat the same old dull and tiresome Keynesian line long enough, even the most casual and unsophisticated addicts of TV and radio begin to fall asleep. But let me provide you with one relatively unnoticed statistic which is worthy of notice. From one end of the country to the other, up, down and across, sales of pool and billiard tables for home use are climbing steadily. No one in their right mind tries to shoot a game of pool while watching TV.

Listening to various radio stations around the country, I notice that many stations are involved with cash give away games and gimmicks which are designed to bolster up the listening audience and major, clear channel stations are literally trying to sell prime time to even very small local advertisers. The top brass should be aware of these facts and many more and it looks like the boss is aware, anxious and hoping for different signs which will tell him which way to jump. If the giants of business and industry wanted to bear down hard right now their actions would certainly produce a profound effect.

At every level government is running wild, without restraint, as if to test the mettle of the market place to resist. Opposition is of vital importance but the place to find it today is in the dictionary. At the moment the giants are just jumping through the hoops and looking silly.

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

Profits and Investment Prerequisites for Economic Growth

From American Institute For Economic Research

The Bureau of Labor Statistics had intimated that 26 million young workers will enter the labor market during the 1960's and that a net gain of 11.5 million jobs will be needed between 1964 and the end of 1970. Mr. Robert C. Tyson of the United States Steel Corporation recently described some of the economic conditions necessary for providing these additional jobs. We reprint some of his comments below.

". . .The war and postwar babies of World War II are entering the labor market in increasing numbers, and many a new young job-holder or job-seeker is filled with the blissful expectation that his income will steadily rise more or less regardless of effort on his part. I think it is important that these young people — and their parents and grandparents — be reminded that the real American wage scales are not and cannot be the gift of genie-like government — nor, for that matter, of magnanimous business management or of aggressive union leadership. The real and enduring compensations are, instead, the consequence of a dynamic and highly productive free enterprise system which has invested tremendous sums of capital per worker. Similar or even greater sums will have to be invested in order to equip jobs for the war babies now reaching employable ages.

". . .If we assume, conservatively, an average capital cost of $18,000 for each new job — industrial and commercial, blue-collar and white-collar — it follows that for our economy to sustain employment and pay scales an investment is required in the magnitude of $207 billion in the seven-year period from this year through 1970, or an average of $30 billion a year, over and above capital replacement needs. . ."

After pointing out that the Government cannot, "presto, create capital, as if out of thin air," Mr. Tyson noted that ". . . investment depends upon saving — the voluntary restriction of current consumption to less than is produced — thus permitting the important shift from consumption spending to investment spending. . .But the $64 question — perhaps I should say the $30 billion question — is, why should the investor forego the pleasurable consumption of goods today for the more remote and uncertain consumption of goods tomorrow? Why, in other words, should people invest and bear the burden of risk — the possibility of loss? The answer to this question has, I think, in a single word: profit.

"The prospect of profit in this competitive world explains why capital funds flow into some areas and not into others, why some industries rise and others fall, leaders and investors eager to supply funds while other companies can't raise a nickel, why a country such as tiny Switzerland becomes rich, technically advanced, and fully developed, while a land-rich, profit-condemning country remains poor, backward, and 'underdeveloped.' Plainly, profits beget investment, and it follows that a climate for profit begets a climate for investment.

"Thus that which has made America prosperous, that which has wrought the American industrial miracle, has been the spur of profit. The spur is powerful and universal. It moves men, it moves money, and if need be, it moves mountains. It is the catalyst for production, the energizing agent for job opportunities, the incentive for growth. Profit is the margin of success for the corporation, and I submit that the successful corporation is our greatest weapon in the war on poverty. Or in the words of President Kennedy: '. . .in a free enterprise system there can be no prosperity without profit. We want a growing economy, and there can be no growth without investment that is inspired and financed by profit.'

"Without profit, the creation and accumulation of productive capital in America would have been little or nil, and Americans today would be a poverty-stricken people instead of the most prosperous on earth. . ."

Profit opportunities depend, among other things, upon public policy toward business enterprise, which sometimes is described as the climate for investment. Of this, Mr. Tyson said: ". . .This climate certainly includes the tax situation and the attitude of government and union officials toward business. If this attitude is hostile or cold or aloof or otherwise unfriendly, the out-of-state company, and even the in-state company, will likely feel unwanted, and additional investment — and economic growth — is hardly likely to be forthcoming.

"Taxes. . .are not only. . . costs of production but depressants to production, disincentives to production. A so-called 'tax incentive' is thus a contradiction in terms. Remember that government, however necessary, has nothing to give except that which is first taken away — that, bluntly, the political give-away is first a political takeaway. . ."

Mr. Tyson summarized his remarks by saying ". . .the need for economic growth and for jobs for the army of 'war babies' now entering the labor markets will only be satisfied by the growth of viable profitable industries. There can be no economic growth — no effective war on poverty — for any locality, state, or country without the prospect of profit, without greater private capital investment. Again, every locality and area is in competition for investment funds, and every investor seeks to maximize his returns and minimize his risk. In this competition, the investor is the final arbiter. He will seek out the superior climate for investment, the superior climate for profit. He has little other choice."

Foreign Aid Program Is In Reverse

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Out of the welter of Hollywood hoopla, mostly ground out by press agents, occasionally comes a worthwhile, unselfish by-product.

Such a one is a sort of foreign aid program in reverse to benefit the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children in the United States.

It works this way: Children in scores of foreign cities are submitting drawings of their versions of the universal fairy tale, "Cinderella," to help raise funds for crippled American youngsters.

Publicist Charles Pomerantz and Scandinavian Airlines are collecting the art work for special exhibits at which donations will be made to the Easter Seal fund.

The work is limited to 8-year-old sprouts because, as Pomerantz explains, "it is an age at which they have achieved a degree of dexterity without too much professional influence as to style."

So far results have been spectacular.

Almost 1,000 entries have arrived from Singapore, Thailand, Austria, Canada, Africa, Germany, Belgium, Sweden, Japan, Holland, Portugal, Egypt, Norway, England, Switzerland, France, Scotland, India and various South American cities.

"I thought many of the people whom foreign aid most benefits have a tendency to resent the fact that we do not help them help themselves," Pomerantz said.

"I believe it would be inspiring to let them do something for a segment of our own population, and the National Crippled Children Society is a very worthy cause."

The paintings will be shown in international Cinderella art shows in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles during the height of the Easter Seal campaign.

HOTELS GAINING

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The country's 47,000 motels and hotels took in $4.5 billion in 1964, up 3 per cent from 1963, reports the American Automobile Association. Occupancy rate, barometer of the accommodations industry, was up 1 per cent, from a low of 63 per cent in 1963 to 64 per cent last year. The occupancy rate had been sliding steadily since 1950, when it was 85 per cent.

Foreign Aid Program Is In Reverse

By VERNON SCOTT
UIP Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UI) — Out of the welter of Hollywood hoopla, mostly ground out by press agents, occasionally comes a worthwhile, unselfish by-product.

Such a one is a sort of foreign aid program in reverse to benefit the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children in the United States.

It works this way: Children in scores of foreign cities are submitting drawings of their versions of the universal fairy tale, "Cinderella," to help raise funds for crippled American youngsters.

Publicist Charles Pomerantz and Scandinavian Airlines are collecting the art work for special exhibits at which donations will be made to the Easter Seal fund.

The work is limited to 8-year-old sprouts because, as Pomerantz explains, "it is an age at which they have achieved a degree of dexterity without too much professional influence as to style."

So far results have been spectacular.

Almost 1,000 entries have arrived from Singapore, Thailand, Austria, Canada, Africa, Germany, Belgium, Sweden, Japan, Holland, Portugal, Egypt, Norway, England, Switzerland, France, Scotland, India and various South American cities.

"I thought many of the people whom foreign aid most benefits have a tendency to resent the fact that we do not help them help themselves," Pomerantz said.

"I believe it would be inspiring to let them do something for a segment of our own population, and the National Crippled Children Society is a very worthy cause."

The paintings will be shown in international Cinderella art shows in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles during the height of the Easter Seal campaign.

HOTELS GAINING

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The country's 47,000 motels and hotels took in $4.5 billion in 1964, up 3 per cent from 1963, reports the American Automobile Association. Occupancy rate, barometer of the accommodations industry, was up 1 per cent, from a low of 63 per cent in 1963 to 64 per cent last year. The occupancy rate had been sliding steadily since 1950, when it was 85 per cent.

Adlai Says Russians Still Must Pay Up

NEW YORK (AP) — Adlai E. Stevenson, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, told a bankers association meeting Wednesday in New York that the point of trying to get the Soviet Union to make a voluntary contribution toward peacekeeping costs is not to score a victory.

"We are simply trying to score a success for the United Nations," he said of the stalemated situation.

Stevenson said: "The trouble is that the Soviets have insisted that they would not even make a voluntary contribution of undetermined amount unless we permitted voting to resume in the (General) Assembly in violation of the Charter — that is to say, unless we capitulate."

GENERAL VISITS — The 4th Weather Wing was honored recently by a visit from Gen. Howell M. Estes Jr., commander of MATS. Gen. Estes was given a briefing by Wing Commander Col. Richard M. Gill and his staff. The briefing was followed by a "stand-by" inspection of the barracks in which the airmen live. The General was then escorted to Det 2, 1352 Photo Group for a briefing from Capt. Stanley M. Miedich, commander of the other MATS unit at Ent AFB. A luncheon in the Generals' honor and a tour of the Cheyenne Mountain Complex completed his visit.

Auto Makers Plan to Include Seat Belts

DETROIT (UPI) — Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. announced Wednesday they will make rear seat belts standard equipment on all new cars.

Ford will start with 1966 model production late this summer; Chrysler will begin April 1.

General Motors had no comment.

The industry made front seat belts standard equipment last year.

SONIC BOOM

Sonic boom occurs when an airplane is flying faster than sound, or about 660 miles per hour. All bodies moving through air create disturbances which radiate outward at the speed of sound, but a supersonic plane goes faster than the disturbances it is creating and thus forms shock waves or sonic boom.

Singer Judy Garland Cancels Appearance

TORONTO (AP) — Singer Judy Garland canceled her matinee and evening performances at a Toronto theater Wednesday. A spokesman said she was suffering from laryngitis brought on by a cold.

Ticket holders were offered tickets for later performances or their money back.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Member churches of the World Council of Churches subscribed more than $1.5 million in 1964 to emergency appeals, according to an annual report. Twenty-four emergency appeals were current in 1964. Sterner Steps Are Sought for Payments to U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration is making its final decisions on an imminent presidential message proposing new and sterner measures to deal with the worsened deficit in international payments.

When the message will go to Congress is still uncertain.

Speculation has ranged over a dozen possible steps, including one deemed highly probable because it requires no action by Congress — a broadening of the "interest equalization tax" to cover loans by American banks to firms abroad.

The penalty tax, designed to discourage the outflow of investment dollars, now applies only to American purchases of foreign stocks or bonds. A large upturn in direct bank loans since last fall indicates that the direct-loan technique is being used to avoid the tax.

The increase in bank loans was one factor in a surprising rise in the payments deficit in the final quarter of 1964. Officials had hoped to hold the deficit for the year to a modest $2 billion; instead, the fourth-quarter deficit jumped to a rate estimated at around $5 billion annually, making it likely the total 1964 deficit on regular transactions will be about $3 billion.

Another proposal — much talked-about, but considered by most officials to be the least likely to be adopted — is a tax of $50 to $100 on each U.S. tourist going overseas.

Other suggestions have included bringing home of some troops stationed in Europe or Asia; reducing further — below the present $100 — the amount of duty-free goods which may be carried home by tourists; and a tax plan to make American investments more attractive to foreigners.

OIL STRIKE

UVALDE, Tex. (UPI) —The old story of drilling for water and hitting oil in Texas had a twist when crews of the Project Mohole went to the Uvalde area.

The project managers, preparing for a long-term effort to drill through the earth's crust to the mantle, had drilling bits and equipment tested in the Uvalde area, where the rock is similar to what they expect to encounter in Mohole drilling.

But when the crew drilled into the ground to test the equipment, they struck oil - not enough to make any money off, but oil nevertheless.

Sterner Steps Are Sought for Payments to U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration is making its final decisions on an imminent presidential message proposing new and sterner measures to deal with the worsened deficit in international payments.

When the message will go to Congress is still uncertain.

Speculation has ranged over a dozen possible steps, including one deemed highly probable because it requires no action by Congress — a broadening of the "interest equalization tax" to cover loans by American banks to firms abroad.

The penalty tax, designed to discourage the outflow of investment dollars, now applies only to American purchases of foreign stocks or bonds. A large upturn in direct bank loans since last fall indicates that the direct-loan technique is being used to avoid the tax.

The increase in bank loans was one factor in a surprising rise in the payments deficit in hhe final quarter of 1964. Officials had hoped to hold the deficit for the year to a modest $2 billion; instead, the fourth-quarter deficit jumped to a rate estimated at around $5 billion annually, making it likely the total 1964 deficit on regular transactions will be about $3 billion.

Another proposal — much talked-about, but considered by most officials to be the least likely to be adopted — is a tax of $50 to $100 on each U.S. tourist going overseas.

Other suggestions have included the bringing home of some troops stationed in Europe or Asia; reducing further — below the present $100 — the amount of duty-free goods which may be carried home by tourists; and a tax plan to make American investments more attractive to foreigners.

$20,000 in Bonds Set For Three in Robbery

Michael R. Allen, Lee Rumsey and Jerry Lee Vandel were charged in district court Wednesday on two sets of aggravated robbery and conspiracy. Bonds totaling $30,000 each were set by Judge David W. Enoch.

Allen, 20, 1511 N. Wahsatch Ave., Rumsey, 21, and Vandel, 20, both of Denver are accused in the first charge of assaulting Eugene D. Apodaca and Frank J. Foster, employes of Michaelis Drive In, Feb. 4. According to a report approximately $230 was taken.

Count two alleges the three conspired to commit the felony.

The second filing states they attacked an employe of the 7-11 Stores, Cecil Trembley, Jan. 31. A spokesman said approximately $100 was stolen. The remaining count says they conspired together.

According to the sheriff's office Wednesday, the arrests of the men have cleared up 10 burglaries in the county, a number in the city and a further armed robbery at a Fillmore Street Filling Station. The trio were picked up by Police Petrolman Leonard Huscher.

Deputy Sheriff Franklin T. Ripley said that one of the men had admitted the incident.

On Tuesday three law officers obtained a search waiver from one of the men to search his Denver apartment. Items worth $1,146 which had been stolen from the Krazy Kat, 3985 N. Nevada Ave were found there.

Violist Doktor Provides Fine Musical Surprise

By JOHN FETLER
ARTS CRITIC

It was a unique occasion, for reasons more than one, when Paul Doktor, violist, and Max Lanner, pianist, presented a recital Tuesday night at Shove Chapel, for an audience which bravaved the sudden, wintry snow scene.

It was unique because the recital had to be held in Shove Chapel, while the new Colorado College auditorium is being constructed. And there were some questions about the acoustics of Shove, a perennially difficult thing, but the occasion proved to be specially charming, since the viola sound carried specially well in the chapel, and the piano, despite some inevitable blurring of the edges, still transmitted the finesse and exactitude of Dr. Lanner's playing quite well.

It was, in other words, a different acousitcal effect than it would have been at the Fine Arts Center, for instance (where currently the Civic Players play is in progress this week, and a good one, too).

All the numbers were from the viola literature: The Sonata in G minor by Henry Eccles is from the earliest manuscript; the Variations and March by Beethoven was arranged for viola by Beethoven himself; then came the favorite Arpeggione by Schubert; a recent work, Theme and Variations by Alan Shulman, a friend of Doktor's; and the Sonata in E Flat by Brahms.

This kind of program invites comparisons. The Eccles was highly pleasing with its preclassical sound; the Beethoven was charming; the Shulman showed the viola off to its best advantage, both tone - wise and technique - wise, giving it the fullest scope, and the Brahms, of course, as always, is irresistible in its elegiac sweep.

But curiously enough, it is the Schubert Apreggione which comes out best, as far as sheer lyricism of music is concerned, and there should be little doubt that the spontaneous perfection of melodic balance of Schubert is still gaining, despite the many years, and despite his "easy" approach, but an approach which perhaps ties him closest to Mozart in the natural outpouring of musical lyricism.

Doktor is a violist, of course, of first - rank musicianship, solid technique, and an intensity for the viola which we have not heard matched anywhere.

What he brought to Shove Chapel, and it was a most pleasant surprise in the surroundings of the chapel architecture, was sheer beauty which with the architecture, and the occasion, harmonized into a kind of new unity.

We would not necessarily recommend piano music for Shove Chapel, but for strings the peculiarity of the acoustics does offer a mellowing of effect which was a fine surprise.

Fremont Votes Three to One For ROTC

The Canon City High School will continue to offer its students Junior Reserve Officers Training Corps as the result of an overwhelming near three to one majority vote Monday at a special election in Fremont School District Re-1. The decision was 1,286 in support of the ROTC program, and 483 against continuing ROTC in the high school.

Following the tally of the voting, the school board met at 9:45 p.m. to rescind its action of Jan. 13. At that time the board stirred a wave of protest when it voted to discontinue ROTC training as part of the high school curriculum.

Groups of protesting residents in the district opposed the decision by the board, and a district - wide vote to test the popularity of the program was set up for Monday. Both sides agreed to go by the decision of the qualified voters living in the school district.

The vote was held in the junior high school building, and drew a total of 1,769 voters, many of whom had to wait more than an hour to cast their ballots.

The last regular vote of the school board was held on May 6, 1963, and drew only 128 voters.

On a bond issue voted in Canon City on Feb. 3, 1959, there were 2,729 ballots cast, and in the recent reorganization election on Dec. 10, 1960 there were 2,707.

The large turnout of voters was thought to set an all time county record for numbers of persons to go through one voting line. The previous high totals of votes were handled in two or more polling places.

School officials said if they had expected such a large turnout they would have set up voting lines with the registration records divided alphabetically.

Year Starts With More Manitou Arrests

Manitou Springs police started 1965 with more arrests.

January arrests were 124, compared with 105 in January 1964. Seventy - seven arrests were for traffic vilations, one for military police, eight for other law enforcement departments, 17 for investigation and 18 warning tickets were issued. There were five escorts and 82 special assignments.

There were four burglaries last month, two thefts over $50 and one theft under $50.

Two stolen cars were recovered and 18 dogs and a cat sent to the Humane Society.

Fifty - seven cases were tried last month in municipal court by Judge Clinton Hangh. He assessed $965 in fines and $937.50 in fines were paid. Appearance bonds forfeited totaled $225 and total receipts were $1,197.50.

Burglary Charges Filed Wednesday

A charge of burglary was filed in district court Wednesday against Lloyd James Hickow, 20, 29 S. Hayman Ave.

It is alleged the defendant broke into the East Junior High School at 1630 N. Union Blvd. Feb. 4.

Judge Enoch fixed bond at $1,000.

1,100 Persons Take Unusual Look at AFA

Of the estimated two million visitors who toured the Air Force Academy in 1964, a rugged group of 1,100 ambitious and energetic men, women, and children took a very unusual look at the service school.

The 1,100 completed the entire circuit of the 17-mile long Falcon Trail.

Planned and laid out by members of the Academy's Air Explorer Squadron 80, the trail offers a view of both the natural and man - made beauty of the site as it winds through the valleys and across ridge tops.

Signs have been erected marking flora common to the area.

Use of the trail is open to all organized hiking groups. Those who complete the entire 17 - mile hike, can purchase and wear a special patch.

County Planners Deny Petition To Change Bear Creek Canon Zone

Residents of Bear Creek Canyon won a reprieve from the El Paso County Planning Commission Wednesday afternoon.

The commission denied a petition by D. H. Rogers, Floyd E. Rogers and John S. Bock for permission to change an F. Forest and Recreation District and an A-2 Frming District to a C-2 Suburban District located west of 26th St. and containing about 41.48 acres.

Bock, a civil engineer, said he planned to establish a trailer park in the area and met stiff opposition from some 20 residents of Bear Creek Canyon present at the hearing.

Donald E. LaMora, attorney representing the canyon delegation and others who live in the area, listed complaints including:

Availability of water to the proposed trailer camp, availability of a sanitation system, sewage leakage from trailers, adequate fire protection probably would not be available for the camp, and overloading of schools in the area. Grading by Bock has caused a blockage of the natural flow of water from the mountains, dust and dirt will be increased, the area is near a city cemetery and would be looked upon adversely by persons visiting the cemetery and there is no way the commission could determine what will happen to the area in the future.

The commission denied Bock's petition on the basis that he does not have adequate sanitation facilities available, even though he proposed a plan to install septic systems.

Approved was a petition by Harry C. and Mary D. Bryan to change an A-3 Airport Farming District to an R-1 Residential District located south of Galley Road, north of Highway 24 and containing about 29 acres.

Approved was a petition by Cimarron Development Co. to change an R-1 Residential District, located north of Galley Road and east of Cimarron Hills No. 2. The area contains about 27.263 acres.

The York Investment Co.'s petition to change an A-1 Garden Home District to an R-1 Residential District also was about 41.568 acres and is located south of Woodmen Road and west of Academy Blvd. One resident of the area objected to the petition on grounds that a housing development would be "unsightly" and that it would not be a method of "better developing the land."

A preliminary plat by Yorkshire Estates and presented by the York Investment Co., located south of Woodman Road and west of Academy Blvd. was approved. The plat was part of the petition by York Investment Co.

Three Youths Investigated In Burglary

Three men are being investigated for the burglary of Cy's Liquor Store, 3740 W. Colorado Ave., when liquor worth $434.30 and $12 in cash were stolen, the sheriff's office reported today.

They are Robert Lee Ahlgren, 18, of 408 W. Kiowa St.; David Russell Strohm, 18, of 620 W. Colorado Ave., and David Charles Jones, 19, of 907 N. Corona St. Ahlgren and Strohm already are in county jail and Jones has been released temporarily to the military.

According to Deputy Sheriff Lee Quein, the burglary occurred late Tuesday or early Wednesday morning. Entry was gained by breaking out a door panel. The liquor was loaded onto the men's truck.

Deputy Sheriffs Vincent Denboske and Woodrow Littrell said Jones came to the sheriff's office Wednesday and turned himself in after he learned there was a pick-up out for him. He admitted he was with the two other men and said they had driven him to town and wanted some beer but, as they had no money, they broke into the liquor store.

Jones said he got three cases of a particular brand of whiskey as "It was the only kind of whiskey he drank."

It is expected the district attorney's office will file additional charges today on all three men.

Good Neighbor Gives Welcome Assist in Snow

Proving his product and his neighborliness was included in an act by Larry Dummer, 607 Columbia Road, when he found roads and driveways in his neighborhood covered with heavy snow Wednesday night.

Dummer is the Toyota dealer in Colorado Springs. The Toyota is advertised as a "Land cruiser that goes anyplace."

After a long day at the office, Dummer got home to find the county had plowed the road in front of his house. He plowed his driveway with his own vehicle, went inside for a hot supper, then climbed back on his plow to see about clearing Columbia Court, an adjacent road not served by the county, and the driveways of some of his neighbors.

"He worked until 9:30 or 10," one witness said. He still couldn't get to all the driveways but he did help several of his neighbors. He does this almost everytime we get a heavy snow. He doesn't have to, he just enjoys helping out."

Violist Doktor Provides Fine Musical Surprise

ARTS CRITIC

It was a unique occasion, for reasons more than one, when Paul Doktor, violist, and Max Lanner, pianist, presented a recital Tuesday night at Shove Chapel, for an audience which had braved the sudden, wintry snow scene.

It was unique because the recital had to be held in Shove Chapel, while the new Colorado College auditorium is being constructed. And there were some questions about the acoustics of Shove, a perennially difficult thing, but the occasion proved to be specially charming, since the viola sound carried specially well in the chapel, and the piano, despite some inevitable blurring of the edges, still transmitted the finesse and exactitude of Dr. Lanner's playing quite well.

It was, in other words, a different acousitcal effect than it would have been at the Fine Arts Center, for instance (where currently the Civic Players play is in progress this week, and a good one, too).

All the numbers were from the viola literature: The Sonata in G minor by Henry Eccles is from the earliest manuscript; the Variations and March by Beethoven was arranged for viola by Beethoven himself; then came the favorite Arpeggione by Schubert; a recent work, Theme and Variations by Alan Shulman, a friend of Doktor's; and the Sonata in E Flat by Brahms.

This kind of program invites comparisons. The Eccles was highly pleasing with its pre-classical sound; the Beethoven was charming; the Shulman showed the viola off to its best advantage, both tone - wise and technique - wise, giving it the fullest scope, and the Brahms, of course, as always, is irresistible in its elegiac sweep.

But curiously enough, it is the Schubert Apreggione which comes out best, as far as sheer lyricism of music is concerned, and there should be little doubt that the spontaneous perfection of melodic balance of Schubert is still gaining, despite the many years, and despite his "easy" approach, but an approach which perhaps ties him closest to Mozart in the natural outpouring of musical lyricism.

Doktor is a violist, of course, of first - rank musicianship, solid technique, and an intensity for the viola which we have not heard matched anywhere.

What he brought to Shove Chapel, and it was a most pleasant surprise in the surroundings of the chapel architecture, was sheer beauty which with the architecture, and the occasion, harmonized into a kind of new unity.

We would not necessarily recommend piano music for Shove Chapel, but for strings the peculiarity of the acoustics does offer a mellowing of effect which was a fine surprise.

Fremont Votes Three to One For ROTC

The Canon City High School will continue to offer its students Junior Reserve Officers Training Corps as the result of an overwhelming near three to one majority vote Monday at a special election in Fremont School District Re-1. The decision was 1,286 in support of the ROTC program, and 483 against continuing ROTC in the high school.

Following the tally of the voting, the school board met at 9:45 p.m. to rescind its action of Jan. 13. At that time the board stirred a wave of protest when it voted to discontinue ROTC training as part of the high school curriculum.

Groups of protesting residents in the district opposed the decision by the board, and a district - wide vote to test the popularity of the program was set up for Monday. Both sides agreed to go by the decision of the qualified voters living in the school district.

The vote was held in the junior high school building, and drew a total of 1,789 voters, many of whom had to wait more than an hour to cast their ballots.

The last regular vote of the school board was held on May 6, 1963, and drew only 128 voters.

On a bond issue voted in Canon City on Feb. 3, 1959, there were 2,729 ballots cast, and in the recent reorganization election on Dec. 10, 1960 there were 2,707.

The large turnout of voters was thought to set an all time county record for numbers of persons to go through one voting line. The previous high totals of votes were handled in two or more polling places.

School officials said if they had expected such a large turnout they would have set up voting lines with the registration records divided alphabetically.

Signs have been erected marking flora common to the area.

Use of the trail is open to all organized hiking groups. Those who complete the entire 17 - mile hike, can purchase and wear a special patch.

Three Youths Investigated In Burglary

Three men are being investigated for the burglary of Cy's Liquor Store, 3740 W. Colorado Ave., when liquor worth $434.30 and $12 in cash were stolen, the sheriff's office reported today.

They are Robert Lee Ahlgren, 18, of 408 W. Kiowa St.; David Russell Strohm, 18, of 620 W. Colorado Ave., and David Charles Jones, 19, of 907 N. Corona St. Ahlgren and Strohm already are in county jail and Jones has been released temporarily to the military.

According to Deputy Sheriff Lee Quein, the burglary occurred late Tuesday or early Wednesday morning. Entry was gained by breaking out a door panel. The liquor was loaded onto the men's truck.

Deputy Sheriffs Vincent Denboske and Woodrow Littrell said Jones came to the sheriff's office Wednesday and turned himself in after he learned there was a pick-up out for him. He admitted he was with the two other men and said they had driven him to town and wanted some beer but, as they had no money, they broke into the liquor store.

Jones said he got three cases of a particular brand of whiskey as "It was the only kind of whiskey he drank."

Ahlgren and Strohm already have been charged with burglary and conspiracy in another incident. The pair are accused of breaking into the Colorado Paint and Supply Co., 113 E. Bijou St., Jan. 1.

It is expected the district attorney's office will file additional charges today on all three men.

Good Neighbor Gives Welcome Assist in Snow

Proving his product and his neighborliness was included in an act by Larry Dummer, 607 Columbia Road, when he found roads and driveways in his neighborhood covered with heavy snow Wednesday night.

Dummer is the Toyota dealer in Colorado Springs. The Toyota is advertised as a "Land cruiser that goes anyplace."

After a long day at the office, Dummer got home to find the county had plowed the road in front of his house. He plowed his driveway with his own vehicle, went inside for a hot supper, then climbed back on his plow to see about clearing Columbia Court, an adjacent road not served by the county, and the driveways of some of his neighbors.

"He worked until 9:30 or 10," one witness said. He still couldn't get to all the driveways but he did help several of his neighbors. He does this almost everytime we get a heavy snow. He doesn't have to, he just enjoys helping out."

How to Store Potatoes

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—Often my potatoes turn green on the outside before I use them. How can I prevent this?

A — Follow these rules for storing potatoes: Store in a dark, dry place with good ventilation and a temperature of 45 to 50 degrees. Light causes greening, which lowers eating quality. High temperatures hasten sprouting and shriveling. Storing potatoes at temperatures that are too low may change some of the starch in them to sugar. If potatoes taste too sweet because of too-cold storage, their flavor may be improved by keeping them at room temperature, 70 to 80 degrees for a week or two before using them.

Q—Sometimes my butter has a strong flavor even though I buy U.S. Grade AA. How can I prevent this?

A—Maybe you aren't storing your butter properly. Because of its delicate flavor, butter should be kept in your refrigerator—preferably in the butter compartment. And since it is sensitive to strong - flavored foods, it should be kept covered or in the original protective wrapping until ready for use. If you don't plan to use it within a few days, keep it in the freezer compartment of your refrigerator.

Fashionettes

Don't look for any drop in daytime hemlines anytime soon. John Weitz, pace - setting New York designer, says hemlines will stay high simply because they're practical in this our fast moving age, when clothes must leave room for motion. "It's like Agnes de Mille (dancer-choreographer) once said to me," said Weitz, "how can you pivot in the middle of 57th Street with traffic bearing down on you?"

Cottons so heavily embossed they look like dull silks run through the spring fashion collections. Designers use the cottons for late day and evening, notably in white. Bill Blass of Maurice Rentner, New York, for example, creates a simple, sleeveless princess dress with a high - slashed neckline. A deep front pleat adds grace to the A-shaped skirt.

Opening lead: Ten of ♡ South developed a key trick in his six diamond contract by converting the dummy's heart holding into a ruffing value, despite the fact that North had three hearts.

The bidding was sound. North's jump rebid of two no-trump promised a minimum of 19 high card points. South's holding was worth 15 points counting high cards and distribution. A slam was virtually assured and, in order to probe for the best contract, South made a temporizing bid of three spades. When partner showed the diamond support, he proceeded directly to six diamonds.

West opened the ten of hearts, the ace was played from dummy, and the queen dropped from East's hand. Declarer could count 11 top tricks — four spades, five diamonds, one heart, and one club. He could try for a 12th by drawing trump and then leading toward North's jack of hearts; however, he did not relish the prospect of guessing which opponent held the king of hearts. Observe, for example, that West might have been leading from the top of a sequence in which case East's holding in hearts would consist of the king-queen doubleton.

It appeared to South that, barring some adverse distribution, there was a reasonable prospect for ruffing at least one heart in dummy. At trick two he cashed the king of spades and continued with the queen. The ace of clubs came next, on which he discarded a heart, followed by a club ruff.

Declarer continued with the ace of spades and the jack, intending to dispose of North's remaining hearts, and subsequently ruffing two hearts with the queen and jack of diamonds. On the fourth spade, however, West ruffed in with the five of diamonds. Dummy overruffed with the jack.

The closed hand was reentered by trumping another club with the six of diamonds, and South exited with a heart. West put up the king to drop North's jack, and he returned a trump. Declarer won the trick with the ten, ruffed his remaining heart with the queen of diamonds, and claimed the last two tricks with the ace and king of diamonds.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

Here6s a toasty tip!

To eliminate most of the crumbs and irregular halves from a slice of toast, cut a "Dutch Dart" in the bread before toasting. Cut bread slice from inside crust to inside crust.

Result . . . only the crust needs to be broken when the toast pops up. —L. D. B.

Dear Gals:

I'm going to have to admit that I don't know what a "Dutch Dart" is!

I went out to the kitchen and experimented with three pieces of bread. The slice I cut diagonally (making sure not to cut "through" the crust), broke in two slick as a whistle after it was toasted!

The second slice, I just indented diagonally with the back of the blade . . . it didn't break "quite" as neatly.

The third slice . . . I guess I just plain goofed because it was a mess! (I forgot and cut thru the crust of the bread.)

Was the first method right? Seems like it to me. —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I just found out something I hadn't realized! Most people fold their sheets lengthwise. . .

My mother always folded them hem-to-hem, and I just supposed everyone else did, too!

One advantage of this is that you don't have as long a span of sheet to work with so there is less reaching and stretching when doing the folding.

Another advantage . . . most people do hang their sheets hem-to-hem to save space on the clothesline, and when they are dry, it is such a simple matter to just fold them over twice while they are still on the line (easy to get them folded straight this way), then take them off the line to finish folding them.

I will admit that they do not fit the ironing board as well this way (wider), but I don't iron my sheets anyhow so thats the least of my worries! —Clarissa

Dear Heloise:

I goofed!

Yesterday I wanted to press a nylon blouse and didn't notice that the temperature control on the iron was set on "Linen". . .

The blouse is hopeless, of course, but what I would like to know is how I can get that gummy mess off my iron? I can't use it like it is, don't want to scrape it and scratch the plate of the iron, so what to do? —Hoping for Help

How about it, gals? I am sure this must have happened to others. If it has, will you please write to Heloise in care of this paper and give Heloise "Hoping" your solution?

So many women would appreciate it. It happens daily in solution!

Dear Heloise:

lots of households. —Heloise paper, and give "Hoping" your

To use up the last hard-to-get drops of a concentrated shampoo in a plastic tube, fill the tube with hot water from the faucet, put on the cap, shake it up, and let it stand overnight.

The hot water will soften the concentrated shampoo and you will have a handy container of mild soap for another shampoo, or it can be used for washing stockings and other hand washing. —Mariana Seager

Dear Heloise:

Hostess aprons are a better choice (looking or vacuuming . . . besides making it much easier to pull over a lamp, etc.

I screw a cup hook in the back of my dressers, desk and buffet, then put the excess cord over the hook. Not only are the cords out of my way and off the floor, but it looks better because less of the cord shows underneath the furniture. —Amy

Dear Heloise:

For those who have children who go to kindergarten and have to take nickels to school for milk . . . and you find you have only pennies!

Wrap the pennies in a small piece of aluminum foil. They will stay together, and there is less chance of the child losing some of them. —Inger Lunde

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

A Close Shave

DEAR ABBY: Mona and I are college seniors and have been dating steadily since the beginning of this term. I like her a lot and could be serious about her. Last Saturday night we went to a university - sponsored swimming party. When Mona saw me in my swimming trunks, she looked disgusted. I am no Adonis, but I'm no bag of bones either. Mona suggested leaving early and while we were driving home she said, "You embarrassed me to death. Why didn't you tell me you were hirsute?" I asked her what that meant and she said, "Anyone having excess hair on his body is hirsute. Why don't you shave the hair off your back and shoulders?" I asked, sarcastically, "How about the hair on my chest?" She said, "Oh, that's all right. It's accepted. The other isn't." Is her request whacky, or is she right, Abby? A man doesn't know much about these things. —TIM

DEAR TIM: If Mona doesn't want you, hair and all, bow out and figure your brush with her was a close shave.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter is 17, a senior in high school and a compulsive letter-writer. Last year she wrote to a freshman boy at the state university every day without fail. She'd be writing him at 6:30 in the morning, and also past midnight she sat writing page after page. (She'd get maybe a one-page letter from him every other week.) Once I read some of the stuff she wrote (trying to get a clue as to how serious it was) and it was the biggest bunch of nothing I ever read. She is just a fair student, but if she spent half the time on her school work that she spends on those letters she would be much better. She writes a fellow in the Navy she doesn't even know. She got his address from a girl friend. Every lunch hour she spends a dime calling home to see if she got any mail. What on earth is wrong with the girl? You may print your answer. She never reads your column and gets mad if I suggest it. —TEXAN

DEAR TEXAN: Apparently your daughter needs the outlet that letter - writing offers her. But I think she's overdoing it. Insist that she spend more time on her studies, and write letters in her "spare" time.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem that is keeping me awake nights. My husband grinds his teeth in his sleep. Is there anything I can do to cure him of it? When I hear him grinding his teeth, I pat him gently on the jaw. He awakens for a few moments and stops, but the minute he falls back to sleep again he continues to grind his teeth just like before. I don't suppose this will ruin our marriage, but I wish I knew how to help him. —SAN MATEO

DEAR SAN MATEO: Your marriage may survive all that teeth grinding, but your husband's teeth may not. Urge him to see his dentist before he grinds himself into a diet of crackers and milk.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "Steve": The dictionary is the only place where success comes before work.

The blouse is hopeless, of course, but what I would like to know is how I can get that gummy mess off my iron? I can't use it like it is, don't want to scrape it and scratch the plate of the iron, so what to do? —Hoping for Help

Dear Abby--

A Close Shave

DEAR ABBY: Mona and I are college seniors and have been dating steadily since the beginning of this term. I like her a lot and could be serious about her. Last Saturday night we went to a university - sponsored swimming party. When Mona saw me in my swimming trunks, she looked disgusted. I am no Adonis, but I'm no bag of bones either. Mona suggested leaving early and while we were driving home she said, "You embarrassed me to death. Why didn't you tell me you were hirsute?" I asked her what that meant and she said, "Anyone having excess hair on his body is hirsute. Why don't you shave the hair off your back and shoulders?" I asked, sarcastically, "How about the hair on my chest?" She said, "Oh, that's all right. It's accepted. The other isn't." Is her request whacky, or is she right, Abby? A man doesn't know much about these things. —TIM

DEAR TIM: If Mona doesn't want you, hair and all, bow out and figure your brush with her was a close shave.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter is 17, a senior in high school and a compulsive letter-writer. Last year she wrote to a freshman boy at the state university every day without fail. She'd be writing him at 6:30 in the morning, and also past midnight she sat writing page after page after page. (She'd get maybe a one-page letter from him every other week.) Once I read some of the stuff she wrote (trying to get a clue as to how serious it was) and it was the biggest bunch of nothing I ever read. She is just a fair student, but if she spent half the time on her school work that she spends on those letters she would be much better. She writes a fellow in the Navy she doesn't even know. She got his address from a girl friend. Every lunch hour she spends a dime calling home to see if she got any mail. What on earth is wrong with the girl? You may print your answer. She never reads your column and gets mad if I suggest it. —TEXAN

DEAR TEXAN: Apparently your daughter needs the outlet that letter - writing offers her. But I think she's overdoing it. Insist that she spend more time on her studies, and write letters in her "spare" time.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem that is keeping me awake nights. My husband grinds his teeth in his sleep. Is there anything I can do to cure him of it? When I hear him grinding his teeth, I pat him gently on the jaw. He awakens for a few moments and stops, but the minute he falls back to sleep again he continues to grind his teeth just like before. I don't suppose this will ruin our marriage, but I wish I knew how to help him. —SAN MATEO

DEAR SAN MATEO: Your marriage may survive all that teeth grinding, but your husband's teeth may not. Urge him to see his dentist before he grinds himself into a diet of crackers and milk.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "Steve": The dictionary is the only place where success comes before work.

Selma Negroes Seek Protection Of U.S. Troops

By REX THOMAS

SELMA, Ala. (AP) — Negroes sought protection of U.S. troops in their civil rights struggle today in the wake of a long forced march by students who had angered Sheriff James G. Clark.

Still more right-to-vote demonstrations were predicted today and some of the students said they would lie down on the sidewalk if Clark attempted to drive them away again.

Hundreds of aroused parents waiting to hear a renewed appeal for nonviolence from Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. voted Wednesday night to ask President Johnson to put Selma under martial rule.

King, returning to the city several hours after the sheriff had compelled 100 teen-age demonstrators to walk and run three miles into the countryside, warned his followers once more that they "must not return violence for violence."

The 1964 Nobel Peace Prize winner told a cheering throng of students, including many who made the long march, that the problem of "brutality, meanness and terror" in Selma will remain unsolved until the federal government "is willing to do something" about it.

But he admonished young Negroes that they will gain nothing by yielding to any temptation to resort to violence themselves.

A short time later, at another church nearby, King warned an overflow crowd of adult Negroes that "violence creates more social problems than it solves.

King related in detail his conference with Johnson and other high government officials in Washington Tuesday and said the President had promised to seek new federal voter legislation.

The integration leader reminded the parents that they will have another chance to register as voters Monday.

He urged Negroes to turn out "in numbers that will let the nation, the world, governor (George) Wallace and Sheriff Clark know that we do not intend to stop until we can register without any obstacles.

"We want all our rights," he added, "and we want them here and now."

Several students returning from the forced march complained that they were jabbed with nightsticks by deputies who herded them along the three-mile route. The sheriff said he did not see any of his officers use clubs on the Negroes.

Clark said he had arrested the teen-agers for truancy because they were absent from school and that he intended to make them walk six miles to a Fraternal Order of Police lodge. He said the county jail was crowded but made no mention of a former National Guard Armory near the courthouse where other student demonstrators had been taken earlier.

Wall Street Report

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market was mixed, with some blue chips weakening early this afternoon. Trading was active.

After an irregular start, the list moved a little higher on balance, some averages showing slight gains in early trading. Brokers ascribed the strength to a technical recovery as traders picked up stock at low levels following Wednesday's plunge on the Viet Nam news.

Around mid-session, however, some key stocks began to slide. Standard Oil (New Jersey) fell about 2 points, Anaconda more than a point.

Steels edged ahead in early trading despite the doubt prevailing about the election in the United Steelworkers Union. Some of these gains were shaded later.

The news of bombing attacks against Communist North Viet Nam added to the nervous atmosphere behind the market and continued to aid are space defense issues which rose again, posting moderate gains.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .1 at 333.9 with industrials off .2, rails off .1 and utilities up .6.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off .19 at 892.73.

The relatively firm performance by utilities reflected a tendency to go into defensive stocks in view of world uncertainties.

Rebounding from Wednesdays sharp losses, U.S. Smelting gained 4, IBM 2, Polaroid and Xerox 1.

Union Carbide and Air Reduction were other blue chips turning soft, each losing a point or so.

Airlines remained steady to higher.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange advanced in moderate trading.

Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. government bonds declined.

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP)—An intensification of military action in South Viet Nam caused a rally in soybeans and most grain futures prices on the Board of Trade today.

The rally halted the sharpest break in soybean futures in 16 months. Old crop contracts in soybeans plunged the 10 cents a bushel permissible daily limit Tuesday and were headed downward again when the military news sparked the recovery.

AG Convention Closes on Optimistic Note

Another 30th AG convention is over and the more than 700 member retailers are returning to their homes from the Broadmoor Hotel.

Total attendance, including representatives of food manufacturers, brokers and allied trades, was estimated at more than 3,000.

The three - day convention ended Tuesday after a morning of business sessions and speeches.

The 30th Anniversary year of Associated Grocers of Colorado was heralded by AG president Gordon Rissler of Greeley, Colorado, during the annual stockholders' meeting.

Rissler, who is also Mayor of Greeley and owner of three modern super markets there, paid tribute to the pioneers of AG and the clarity of the foresight in seeing the need for combining the buying merchandising and advertising power of retailer - owned markets.

He recounted the great amount of progress accomplished in AG's relatively few 30 years, as a gauge of the growth and progress the organization can expect in the years to come.

Following Rissler's speech, executive vice president and general manager Fred S. Fishburn reported to stockholders on AG's 1964 sales and progress. He stated that sales through the three AG warehouses in Denver, Pueblo and Albuquerque increased 6.9 per cent last year.

Fishburn announced that AG's administration is currently studying future plans for centralized meat distribution and improved produce distribution.

Before the close of the Sunday meeting, stockholders elected John C. 'Bud' Sullard of Buddy & Lloyd's Thriftway Stores in Denver to the 15-man board of directors, filling a vacancy left by the late Miles Woods of Denver.

Stockholders also re-elected five directors whose terms had expired. Directors who will serve new 3 - year terms are: Oscar Olson of Denver; G. Ray Joyce of Boulder; George Daniel of Salida; Leo Kipper of La Junta; and John Martens of Las Alamos, N.M.

A major portion of business meetings during AG's 30th Anniversary Convention was devoted to instructive speeches by prominent men of the nation's food industry, and by several AG members.

Monday morning, in a closed meeting, W. A. Stolte, marketing director of the Shurfine-Central Corporation, spoke on "Progress with Shurfine." Stolte's address was followed by speeches and panel discussions by Lenhard Johnson of Fort Morgan, Colo., Earle Simms of Colorado Springs, Colo., Gene 'Bing' Fishburn of Loveland, Colo., John C. 'Bue' Sullard of Aurora Colo., James Donelan of Sterling, Colo., Charles Flower of Brighton, Colo., and Robert C. Hussman of Greeley, Colo.

Following the 30th Anniversary AG Banquet Monday evening, guest speaker Dr. William L. McDivitt, president of Otero Junior College, La Junta, Colo., delivered a speech entitled "Big Issues and Small Talk."

Tuesday morning the topic of main interest was meat, as AG members heard talks by two nationally recognized meat experts. James D. Stimpson, manager of the meat division of Certified Grocers of California, Ltd., prognosticated about "Meat Merchandising in the 70's;" followed by Cholm G. Haughton, director of membership and personnel relations, American Meat Institute, who discussed the controversial McKinsey Meat Study.

NEW TERMINAL OPENED — The new Rocky Mountain Cement Co. terminal consists of a storage tank designed for fast dust-free loading of transport tank cars. It is located at Lyons, near the 1,000 acre site of the company's soon-to-be-built $20,000,000 plant. The terminal was officially opened last week. On hand were business and civic leaders and several of the town's dignitaries.

New Terminal Officially Opened at Lyons

Rocky Mountain Cement Co., a subsidiary of Martin-Marietta Corp., officially opened its new terminal in Lyons which is near the site where its $20,000,000 cement plant will be built.

The company has announced that it will soon open a sales office in Colorado Springs.

To celebrate the terminal opening, a group of business and civic leaders, as well as press, television and radio representatives, entrained to Lyons.

On arrival, the group was greeted by the town's dignitaries and the mayor. American and Colorado flags were presented to Thomas W. Meade, Rocky Mountain Cement Co., general manager, by Mayor Hubert Lively, and Sam Kellogg, executive director of the Forward Metro Denver association. Meade, delivered a talk outlining present and future plans for Rocky Mountain Cement Co.'s operation.

The terminal, consisting of a large storage tank mounted above scales between the railroad tracks, will permit fast and dust-free loading of tank cars used to transport cement. Its capacity is more than 7,000 barrels, with railroad trackage that allows availability of an additional 14,000 barrels in rail cars.

Gov. John Love issued the following statement:

"We have been delighted with with the relationship and contribution to Colorado that Martin-Marietta has made. We welcome this decision to expand in Colorado and build this $20 million industrial plant."

Investment Plan Available for Stockholders

By MORTON YARMON

NEA Special Services

Under the Monthly Investment Plan, you can become a stockholder for as little as $40 every three months. This plan allows you to buy shares, or fractions of shares, in proprtion to the amount of money you pay. If you are buying an $80 stock and you pay $40, you get one-half of a share. The same $40 will give you four shares of a stock selling at $10.

Buying under the Monthly Investment Plan is quite like buying stocks in general. You tell your broker what stock you are interested in. If you ask him, he will counsel you on what to buy, and the research facilities of his office are as available to you as if you were buying $50,000 worth of stock.

The commissions charged are the same as those you would pay for odd lots — that is, under 100 shares — if you bought shares without joining the plan, with this exception: where your purchase amounts to less othan $100, the commission amounts to a straight 6 per cent of the amount invested.

Whenever you buy one full share, you rights of ownership are no different from those of the investor who buys 100 shares or 1,000 shares. You are entitled to stock dividends and stock splits. You may vote in corporation matters where stockholders will have a vote. All reports will be sent to you.

You don't have to wait for dividends until you own one full share. You are entitled to your portion after you have made your first payment, and you may elect to have such dividends in cash or to have them reinvested for you. The certificates of stock are sent to you when the shares of your account total 50 or more.

The minimum payment is $40 every three months but you may invest above that sum in multiples up to $1,000, and you may make monthly or quarterly payments.

You may quit the plan when you want, getting all full shares registered in your name mailed to you, and your fractional shares sold for you and the proceeds sent to you. The brokers handling the plan permit you to continue if you skip one or two payments.

Compact Car Center Has Land Rover Franchise

Compact Car Center, located at 710 E. Fillmore St., has become Colorado Springs' first and only Land Rover franchise dealership. The imported car center also serves as franchise dealer for Saab and Triumph.

Land Rover, said by many to be the best four - wheel drive vehicle in the world, is distributed by The Rover Motor Company of North America, with headquarters in New York City. The cars are made in England.

Ruggedly constructed of welded steel in box sections, the Land Rover chassis will stand up to almost any treatment a driver may dish out. It is protected against corrosion both inside and out and the conventional layout makes for easy maintenance.

Available in two chassis lengths, either 88 or 109 inches, Land Rover may be bought with eigher a gasoline or diesel engine. It has eight forward and two reverse speeds plus three power take-off points. Customers have 10 body styles to choose from, in either a truck, van or station wagon.

There are some 350,000 Land Rovers operating in 157 countries. Their ruggedness is proven by their use of 26 of the world's armies and 37 of its police forces. Fleets of Land Rovers are often purchased by large construction firms, oil companies and other firms in need of a virtualy indestructible vehicle.

Equipped with full tool kits and six - ply tires, Land Rover may also be equipped with any of 100 optional extras which include a powerful Kodiac Heater.

The gasoline driven engine is a four - cylinder type which develops 77 horsepower. The four - cylinder diesel engine develops 62 horsepower.

In an article contained in last September's "Car and Driver" magazine, editors tested a Land Rover on a short trip from Lime Rock Park in Connecticut to Brooklyn, N.Y. Toward the end of the trip one of the passengers disembarked at a pizza-to-go place in Metropolitan New York and said, "I've never been so miserable in my life. Wouldn't it be a ball to own one of these things?"

The magazine explains that this is just one of several instances where perfectly reasonable people have taken leave of their senses on first meeting the Land Rover. The journal also says that "Ladies who cannot be impressed with Alfa Romeos and Ferraris are apt to fall madly in love with the devil-may-care aspect of the little beastie." It further explains that Rovers are loved by guerrilla fighters, bank robbers and archaeologists alike.

With the advent of the new franchise, Compact Car Center also equipped its service center with tools and parts for servicing and repairing the rugged, little "beasties." The center has a staff of five mechanics, all experts in various fields of imported car repair. Service is available for all makes and models of imports.

Compact Car Center came into being four years ago at its former 310 E. Fillmore St. location. A year ago, it moved into its present 5,000 square foot building, just a few blocks east of its former location.

The center is offering 1,000 free Gold Bond stamps to any adult who comes in and test drives a new Land Rover between now and Saturday. At present Bob Christenson, salesman at the center, is busy finding a suitable route for test driving the Land Rover.

Christenson now feels that Compact Car Center has the three franchises it needs. He says the Center now has, "The best imported sports car (Triumph), sedan (Saab) and four-wheel drive vehicle (Land Rover)." He further stated that he looked into all the four-wheel drive vehicles before selecting Land Rover as the one the Center wanted to carry.

Immediate delivery is now available on all models of Land Rover from Compact Car Center. Land Rover sells for $2,963 delivered in Colorado Springs and it loves to "mush" through the snow.

AG Convention Closes on Optimistic Note

Another 30th AG convention is over and the more than 700 member retailers are returning to their homes from the Broadmoor Hotel.

Total attendance, including representatives of food manufacturers, brokers and allied trades, was estimated at more than 3,000.

The three - day convention ended Tuesday after a morning of business sessions and speeches.

The 30th Anniversary year of Associated Grocers of Colorado was heralded by AG president Gordon Rissler of Greeley, Colorado, during the annual stockholders' meeting.

Rissler, who is also Mayor of Greeley and owner of three modern super markets there, paid tribute to the pioneers of AG and the clarity of the foresight in seeing the need for combining the buying merchandising and advertising power of retailer - owned markets.

He recounted the great amount of progress accomplished in AG's relatively few 30 years, as a gauge of the growth and progress the organization can expect in the years to come.

Following Rissler's speech, executive vice president and general manager Fred S. Fishburn reported to stockholders on AG's 1964 sales and progress. He stated that sales through the three AG warehouses in Denver, Pueblo and Albuquerque increased 6.9 per cent last year.

Fishburn announced that AG's administration is currently studying future plans for centralized meat distribution and improved produce distribution.

Before the close of the Sunday meeting, stockholders elected John C. 'Bud' Sullard of Buddy & Lloyd's Thriftway Stores in Denver to the 15-man board of directors, filling a vacancy left by the late Miles Woods of Denver.

Stockholders also re-elected five directors whose terms had expired. Directors who will serve new 3 - year terms are: Oscar Olson of Denver; G. Ray Joyce of Boulder; George Daniel of Salida; Leo Kipper of La Junta; and John Martens of Las Alamos, N.M.

A major portion of business meetings during AG's 30th Anniversary Convention was devoted to instructive speeches by prominent men of the nation's food industry, and by several AG members.

Monday morning, in a closed meeting, W. A. Stolte, marketing director of the Shurfine-Central Corporation, spoke on "Progress with Shurfine." Stolte's address was followed by speeches and panel discussions by Lenhard Johnson of Fort Morgan, Colo., Earle Simms of Colorado Springs, Colo., Gene 'Bing' Fishburn of Loveland, Colo., John C. 'Bue' Sullard of Aurora Colo., James Donelan of Sterling, Colo., Charles Flower of Brighton, Colo., and Robert C. Hussman of Greeley, Colo.

Following the 30th Anniversary AG Banquet Monday evening, guest speaker Dr. William L. McDivitt, president of Otero Junior College, La Junta, Colo., delivered a speech entitled "Big Issues and Small Talk."

Tuesday morning the topic of main interest was meat, as AG members heard talks by two nationally recognized meat experts. James D. Stimpson, manager of the meat division of Certified Grocers of California, Ltd., prognosticated about "Meat Merchandising in the 70's;" followed by Cholm G. Haughton, director of membership and personnel relations, American Meat Institute, who discussed the controversial McKinsey Meat Study.

NEW TERMINAL OPENED — The new Rocky Mountain Cement Co. terminal consists of a storage tank designed for fast dust-free loading of transport tank cars. It is located at Lyons, near the 1,000 acre site of the company's soon-to-be-built $20,000,000 plant. The terminal was officially opened last week. On hand were business and civic leaders and several of the town's dignitaries.

New Terminal Officially Opened at Lyons

Rocky Mountain Cement Co., a subsidiary of Martin-Marietta Corp., officially opened its new terminal in Lyons which is near the site where its $20,000,000 cement plant will be built.

The company has announced that it will soon open a sales office in Colorado Springs.

To celebrate the terminal opening, a group of business and civic leaders, as well as press, television and radio representatives, entrained to Lyons.

On arrival, the group was greeted by the town's dignitaries and the mayor. American and Colorado flags were presented to Thomas W. Meade, Rocky Mountain Cement Co., general manager, by Mayor Hubert Lively, and Sam Kellogg, executive director of the Forward Metro Denver association. Meade, delivered a talk outlining present and future plans for Rocky Mountain Cement Co.'s operation.

The terminal, consisting of a large storage tank mounted above scales between the railroad tracks, will permit fast and dust-free loading of tank cars used to transport cement. Its capacity is more than 7,000 barrels, with railroad trackage that allows availability of an additional 14,000 barrels in rail cars.

Gov. John Love issued the following statement:

"We have been delighted with with the relationship and contribution to Colorado that Martin-Marietta has made. We welcome this decision to expand in Colorado and build this $20 million industrial plant."

Cheyenne, Tribe Icers Set For Crucial Game Tonight

By MORRIS FRASER
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

History will be made tonight as Cheyenne and Palmer square off in the City Hockey League's final key game in the Broadmoor World Arena.

Wasson supporters, bitter foes of Palmer since 1959, will be rooting for the Terrors.

The Thunderbird team and fans will not be without some selfish motives — if Palmer can dump the Indians, Wasson, Cheyenne and Palmer will finish the season in a three-way deadlock for first place, barring an unlikely loss by Wasson to Widefield Monday night.

Cheyenne leads the pack with an 8-3 record. Palmer and Wasson both have 7-4 marks. Wasson thus has cinched a tie for second place, again barring an upset by Widefield. The T-Birds can do no better than a tie for first, but could occupy second place alone if Cheyenne wins.

This season marks the first time a Wasson hockey team has been assured of a winning regular season record. Even if the T-Birds should lose their next three starts (two of them to be in the tournament next week), they would finish at 7-7.

The weatherman forgot to tell Wasson the temperature was 13 degrees above zero Wednesday night as the T-Birds blistered Fountain Valley for an 8-2 victory.

Bruce Mahanke, Wasson winger, turned the hat trick and added an assist. Brian Thomson, another wing, hit two first period goals and gave three assists for five points, one of the better efforts of the season. Hugh Wallnutt also added two goals, and Don Morrison chipped in one for the Thunderbirds.

All eight scores — the most against Fountain Valley this year — came off pretty plays, none cheap against Dane goalie Terney Smith, who had to contend with two or three Birds flapping around the crease. Mahanke's second goal, through the middle, could be the only one Smith might have had a chance at stopping, but it hit defenseman Newell Wood and bounced crazily past Smith.

Both of Fountain Valley's goals were unassisted. Both came in the final period after the onrushing Birds had all but sewed up the triumph. Rick Fitzgerald slapped a powerful shot outside his own blue line. John Wendt made the save, but the puck trickled by the Wasson tender. Dave Low came up with Fountain Valley's last tally as he took a Wasson pass in front of the goal and nailed it past Wendt's shoulder.

Mahanke came up with his first tally with just 50 seconds gone in the second period. He slipped through in the middle on Thomson's first assist. Wallnutt broke down the left side and, with 40 seconds left in the period, ripped in a 20-footer from the middle.

After Fitzgerald's third period goal, Mahanke countered with his trickler and Low sent in his score. Mahanke gained the three-goal hat trick at 5:55 on a short shot at Smith's knee. Morrison scored better than three minutes later unassisted, taking the puck off the left boards and shooting in from the middle, about 20 feet out.

Wallnutt wound up the scoring at 10:45 as he deflected the puck off Steve Downey's stick during a scramble on the right corner of the crease.

Estes 18th To Break 2,000 Barrier

NEW YORK (AP) — Wayne Estes, the Utah State star whose tragic death last Monday night stunned the college basketball world, was the 18th player to break the 2,000-point barrier in three varsity years.

This was pin-pointed today in the weekly major college statistics compiled by the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau. Estes' career total was 2,091, a mark he reached with 48 points against Denver shortly before he was electrocuted when he came in contact with a high tension wire.

The 48 points gave Estes a final season total of 641 points on 250 field goals and 141 free throws in 19 games. This is an average of 33.7, up from his 32.7 the previous week, and kept him in second place behind Rick Barry of Miami, Fla.

Barry, who has been No. 1 all season, lost a point from his 38.2 average the previous week, but continued to lead with a 37.1 on 742 points in 20 games. Bill Bradley of Princeton retained third place at 31.4 on 534 points in 17 games.

Minnesota, CC to Clash In Weekend Ice Series

Junior center Doug Woog, a spunky 160-pounder from St. Paul, Minn., paces the University of Minnesota Golden Gophers into their weekend clash with Colorado College here Friday and Saturday at the Broadmoor World Arena. However, the Goph's top scorer no longer owns first place in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association listing.

Woog was displaced atop the WCHA scoring this past weekend, with Michigan's Mel Wakabayashi moving ahead. Wakabayashi, in 13 games, has scored 11 goals and 10 assists for 21 points.

The Gophers' leader is one point behind with 20 points, and teammate Gary Hokanson is one more off Woog's pace with 19 points.

Minnesota comes to Colorado Springs for the two-game series with CC in fourth place in the WCHA standings. The Gophers have split down the middle in a dozen league games, while Colorado College still hugs the bottom rung of the ladder with a 2-8 mark.

Gerry Kell has led North Dakota to the top of the standings, and trails Hokanson by a single point with nine goals and as many assists. His teammate Dennis Hextall is also among the league leaders.

For league play only, CC has Warren Fordyce and sophomore center Jim Amidon. Both have eight points. Glen Blumer, Bob Magi (CC's overall leading scorer) and soph John Genz all have 7 points in league play.

Among the goalies, Michigan Tech's Tony Esposito continues to show the best record. In six game, including a 10-1 victory over CC last Saturday, Esposito has averaged only 1.8 goals scored. Dakota's Joe Loch is second with a 2.8 mean, and Denver's Buddy Blom has a 3.0 average. CC's Bill Howard has allowed 4.1 and Minnesota's John Lothrop is right behind at 4.2.

Besides the games at the World Arena between CC and Minnesota this weekend, the only other league contests will have Denver visiting Michigan Tech. Michigan State plays Wisconsin and North Dakota goes against Minnesota - Duluth in non-league action.

Blue Liners Hold Regular Meet Friday

There will be a meeting of the newly formed Blue Line Club for all regional ice hockey enthusiasts at noon this Friday, according to club president, Bunt Hubchek. The meeting will be at the Beef 'n Bird Restaurant on S. Nevada Ave.

Featured speaker at the luncheon this week is scheduled to be John Mariucci, head coach from the University of Minnesota. Mariucci, of course, has been an outstanding figure in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association for several years, and he is expected to express his views on the league and its future.

Mariucci has been the ringleader of the boycott of Denver University for the past three seasons and has been behind the drive to exclude the older Canadian players from the league. His opinions have always been quite controversial.

Minnesota is slated to play Colorado College twice this weekend, on Friday and Saturday nights, at the Broadmoor World Arena.

In addition, there will be reports from the local high school hockey league which seems headed for the tighest finish in the history of the circuit.

Anyone in the area interested in the winter sport is invited to attend. The club meets each Friday at noon, whenever Colorado College has home games scheduled.

Funeral Services Set For Baseball Usher

CHICAGO (AP) — Services will be held Saturday for John King, 74, chief Andy Frain usher for 38 years at Wrigley Field and Comiskey Park.

King, hired by the late Andy Frain when he organized his ushering service in 1926, died of a heart attack Tuesday night.

Mixed Foursome Tourney Results

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The team of Mrs. Marlene Streit of Fonthill, Ont., and Hobart Manley of Savannah, Ga., took a one-stroke lead into the second round of the National Mixed Foursome Invitational Golf Tournament today.

Mrs. Streit's eight-iron shot of 130 yards for an eagle 2 on the 17th hole gave the team 34-35—69 Wednesday.

Two teams were tied at 70 — William Hyndman III of Philadelphia and Mrs. Philip Cudone of West Caldwell, N.J., who carded 33-37; and Jack Penros Miami Beach, Fla., and Tish Preuss of Pompano Beach, Fla., with 36-34.

California Skaters Win Two Crowns

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — Sunny California is making a determined bid at becoming the center of amateur ice skating in this country.

California skaters dominated Wednesday's opening events in the 1965 United States Figure Skating Championships and have their sights set on carrying off more than half of the 10 titles up for grabs in the four-day meet.

Seventeen-year-old Sharon Bates of Oakland, Calif., won the compulsory figures in junior ladies' singles and Roger Bass, 15, of San Diego and Atoy Wilson Jr., 13, of Los Angeles skated off with the top two positions in novice men's singles.

Julie Lynn Holmes, 14, of South Pasadena, Calif., was second to 16-year-old Coco Gram of New York City in novice ladies' singles, but remained the favorite to take the title in Thursday night's free skating finals. The novice men's crown also will be decided Thursday.

Sixteen-year-old Peggy Fleming, who begins defense of her senior ladies' singles title Friday, is from Pasadena.

Miss Bates has a trio of challengers on her heel, but hopes to wrap up the junior title Friday night by duplicating her performance of a year ago when she won the free skating portion of the event. She had placed ninth in figures and had to settle for fourth place over-all.

Two of her rivals — runner-up Pamela Schneider of Lincroft, N.J., and Gail Newberry of Colorado Springs — are former national novice champions. Miss Schneider, 16, placed second and Miss Newberry, 16, was fourth. Third place is held by another Californian, 17-year-old Sondra Holmes of Artesia.

The battle among the girls is so close that all four positions could be jumbled in the free skating.

Bass and Miss Gram each have solid majorities for first place, but are being pressed by outstanding free skaters in Wilson and Miss Holmes. Wilson also is the first Negro to compete in the national figure skating meet.

Arvada Takes Lead in Poll

Arvada's Reddies have taken over the top spot in the Denver Post high school basketball poll this week, despite suffering their first loss of the season last weekend.

Arvada's rise was accelerated by the fact that Thomas Jefferson of Denver, the leader for three straight weeks, was defeated by both Manual and George Washington last weekend. The twin defeats enabled Jefferson to fourth in the standings while Washington rose to second. Public Central, winner of two games last week, nevertheless remained third in the balloting.

La Junta, the Southern League leader, moved into the top 10 for the first time and Public Centennial, runner-up in the South Central League race, was ranked eighth. The only Colorado Springs' team to draw a vote was Harrison of the Will Rogers League.

The Denver League continued to have the most representatives in the top 10 with three (Washington, Jefferson, and Lincoln). The sixth ranked loop was two (Central & Centennial), the Centennial League two (Littleton and Hinkley), the Jefferson County League one (Arvada), the Northern League one (Greeley Central), and the Southern League one (La Junta).

Hardwood Overhaul

Colorado's growing pains are never more evident than when the state's school administrators gather periodically to legislate changes made necessary by the bulging classroom population. The situation has become so accelerated in recent years that educators frequently find themselves amending earlier edicts before the ink is dry.

In the area of athletics, the major overhaul came last year when the Board of Control approved proposals which started at the ground level and completely rebuilt the prep structure throughout the state. That drastic revision doesn't mean the Board worked itself out of a job, however. When the legislators gather for their annual confab this spring, at least a portion of the time will be devoted to removing flaws from the new machinery.

Mention had already been made of the fact that a reshuffling of conference boundaries for this area is imminent, principally to accomodate the withdrawal from AAA status of the two undernourished members of the Southern League. Another of the problems confronting the Board which is certain to attract unusual interest concerns a proposed revision of the state's basketball playoffs.

At the December meeting of the State AAA Basketball Committee no decision was made concerning the 1966 tournament. Instead a variety of proposals were introduced and committee members were asked to refer these ideas to the various leagues and return with their recommendations at the next session, which will be held in the near future and prior to the spring Board of Control meeting.

There have been a number of ideas advanced and the final decision may very well represent a cross-section. However, the most significant change would be one that would introduce district tournaments into Colorado at the AAA level.

Briefly, the major proposals put forward to date are these:

1. An eight team state tournament with champions of all leagues except the Will Rogers, Southwestern, and Southern qualifying automatically. There would be a drawing between these three with one gaining the seventh berth by this method and the other two forced into a playoff for the eighth spot.

2. This would retain the procedure of the current year: in other words the Will Rogers and Southern League champions would automatically play off to fill the eighth spot.

3. Would set up four district tournaments on a two day basis with the first and second place teams from each moving on to an eight team state finals.

4. The same, except that the district tourneys would be enlarged to three days, thus allowing a greater representation from the various leagues. The top two would still advance to an eight team finals.

5. This would entail only a one day district playoff—and it would not be a real tournament, in the strict sense of the word. There would simply be four teams from various leagues involved in two games with the winners moving on to state.

6. This idea would set up a 16 team state tournament with two teams entered from the Denver, Centennial, South Central, Jefferson County, Skyline, & Northern leagues and one each from the Southern, Southwestern, and Will Rogers. The 16th berth would be decided in a way not specifically determined by the proposal.

The majority of these offerings are not actually far-removed from what can become a central ground of agreement. There are two basically new strains of thought which run through most and I would like to see both somehow incorporated into the plan which will eventually emerge.

One obviously popular view is to expand the playoff arrangement to include 16 teams, the most of the eight which will gain the privilege this winter. This other innovation would be the district tournament, which would remove some of the postseason action from Denver. The Capital City presently enjoys a monopoly on all state tournament basketball activity.

With the strong possibility that is the case future Colorado AAA tourneys will be held in eight AAA locations instead of the present site, the format for either an eight or 16 team playoff becomes simplified. I believe the 16 to be much more acceptable.

There are frequent occasions where a league champion is not the strongest representative of a particular area by the end of the season. We have had notable examples in this region, including 1960-61 when Pueblo South finished 2nd in the South Central League, but went on to lose in the state tournament only in an overtime session in the final game. Last year Salida was second in the Pikes Peak League, but the Spartans wound up as AA State champions. Neither would have made the state playoffs under the present AAA setup.

To simplify the crush of teams in Denver for an event that would actually be doubled in size although not in duration by a 16 team entry, the recommendation of district tournaments is a natural. Basketball interest has fluctuated in this area, mostly following a graph that would parallel the success or failure of our teams. It seems reasonable that removing some of the championship play from Denver and placing it in various sections around the state can have nothing but a promotional effect on the sport in the long run.

The South Central League has instructed its representative to the AAA Basketball Commitee to favor plan number III (as listed above); in other words the 2 day district tournament. Eldon Helm, Cheyenne Mountain principal, said Wednesday that the Will Rogers League will seek the approval of a plan similar to number IV, one advancing the district to three days and allowing an even greater number of teams to participate.

Chances are excellent that the outcome will see the strong points of several of these proposals merged. Regardless of the eventual structure, Colorado's high schools will do a service to both their athletes and fans if they enlarge the state playoffs—and then move a portion of them into areas where championship basketball has previously meant either a trip to Denver or a session by the radio.

AFL Agrees To Ban Early Signings

By MIKE RATHET

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Football League has followed the rival National League by banning premature signings, but neither pro league has agreed to two other proposals aimed at protecting the nation's colleges in the multi-million dollar war over top player talent.

Joe Foss, commissioner of the AFL, issued his statement on premature signings Wednesday in a document that almost paralleled one issued by NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle last month.

Both leagues are now on record as prohibiting the signing of college football seniors until the teams have completed their seasons, including bowl games.

That, however with a few small exceptions, is as far as the pro leagues have gone in responding to three requests made by the National Collegiate Athletic Association after it was revealed that four Oklahoma players had signed pro contracts before the Gator Bowl game.

The NCAA, at the time, also requested that the pro leagues hold their drafts after the bowl games and discontinue their practice of signing redshirts — players who remain eligible for college competition after their class has graduated.

The AFL, however, took a further step toward trying to reach settlement with the NCAA by stating that it would be league policy initially to seek assistance of the athletic director or the head coach at the college where a club desires to contact a player about signing a pro contract.

The AFL action came just before the deadline set by Jim Corbett, Louisiana State University athletic director and chairman of the NCAA committee on college-pro relations. Corbett said he was withholding comment until he studied the statements.

Despite the fact that the AFL agreed to only one of the three proposals advanced by the NCAA, they jumped back into the good graces of the Southeastern Conference publicity directors.

The conference's sports directors had voted in January to ban AFL representatives from their campuses since the league had not agreed to halt premature signings. With the AFL's announcement, the ban was lifted.

As for the two proposals, the AFL, as well as the NFL turned down, Foss explained his reason for each.

"We couldn't agree to a later draft because I think you would have more trouble that way with all that time between the end of the season and the last bowl game," Foss said. "There is no reason a boy should not be allowed to sign a contract if his team is through.

"As for redshirts, I think we can have some future talks on that matter," Foss said. "As for me, I feel it is up to the boy to decide if he wants to go to college a fifth year or to sign."

Robinson Tenth Among Scorers

NEW YORK (UPI)— Guard Flynn Robinson was among the individual leaders in scoring statistics released today from New York.

The Wyoming athlete was in 10th place among individual scoring leaders with a 25.0 point average in 18 games. Robinson scored 450 points. He scored 116 points on free throws and made 167 field goals.

Rick Barry of Miami (Fla.) led in scoring with a 37.1 mark. Utah State's Wayne Estes, who was electrocuted in a freak accident following a 48-point performance against Denver Monday night, was second with a 33.7 mark.

New Mexico led all teams in defense, giving up an average of only 43.5 points a game in 10 outings.

Cheyenne, Tribe Icers Set For Crucial Game Tonight

By MORRIS FRASER
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

History will be made tonight as Cheyenne and Palmer square off in the City Hockey League's final key game in the Broadmoor World Arena.

Wasson supporters, bitter foes of Palmer since 1959, will be rooting for the Terrors.

The Thunderbird team and fans will not be without some selfish motives — if Palmer can dump the Indians, Wasson, Cheyenne and Palmer will finish the season in a three-way deadlock for first place, barring an unlikely loss by Wasson to Widefield Monday night.

Cheyenne leads the pack with an 8-3 record. Palmer and Wasson both have 7-4 marks. Wasson thus has cinched a tie for second place, again barring an upset by Widefield. The T-Birds can do no better than a tie for first, but could occupy second place alone if Cheyenne wins.

CHL STANDINGS

	W	L	Pct.	GF	GA
Cheyenne Mountain	8	3	.727	58	29
Palmer	7	4	.636	51	39
Wasson	7	4	.636	47	34
Fountain Valley	6	6	.500	38	37
Widefield	0	11	.000	3	89

This season marks the first time a Wasson hockey team has been assured of a winning regular season record. Even if the T-Birds should lose their next three starts (two of them to be in the tournament next week), they would finish at 7-7.

The weatherman forgot to tell Wasson the temperature was 13 degrees above zero Wednesday night as the T-Birds blistered Fountain Valley for an 8-2 victory.

Bruce Mahanke, Wasson winger, turned the hat trick and added an assist. Brian Thomson, another wing, hit two first period goals and gave three assists for five points, one of the better efforts of the season. Hugh Wallnutt also added two goals, and Don Morrison chipped in one for the Thunderbirds.

All eight scores — the most against Fountain Valley this year — came off pretty plays, none cheap against Dane goalie Torney Smith, who had to contend with two or three Birds flapping around the crease. Mahanke's second goal, through the middle, could be the only one Smith might have had a chance at stopping, but it hit defenseman Newell Weed and bounced crazily past Smith.

Both of Fountain Valley's goals were unassisted. Both came in the final period after the onrushing Birds had all but sewed up the triumph. Rick Fitzgerald slapped a powerful shot outside his own blue line. John Wendt made the save, but the puck trickled by the Wasson tender. Dave Low came up with Fountain Valley's last tally as he took a Wasson pass in front of the goal and nailed it past Wendt's shoulder.

Mahanke came up with his first tally with just 50 seconds gone in the second period. He slipped through in the middle on Thomson's first assist. Wallnutt broke down the left side and, with 49 seconds left in the period, ripped in a 20-footer from the middle.

After Fitzgerald's third period goal, Mahanke countered with his trickler and Low sent in his score. Mahanke gained the three-goal hat trick at 5:55 on a short shot at Smith's knee. Morrison scored better than three minutes later unassisted, taking the puck off the left boards and shooting in from the middle, about 20 feet out.

Wallnutt wound up the scoring at 10:45 as he deflected the puck off Steve Downey's stick during a scramble on the right corner of the crease.

Estes 18th To Break 2,000 Barrier

NEW YORK (AP) — Wayne Estes, the Utah State star whose tragic death last Monday night stunned the college basketball world, was the 18th player to break the 2,000-point barrier in three varsity years.

This was pin-pointed today in the weekly major college statistics compiled by the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau. Estes' career total was 2,001, a mark he reached with 48 points against Denver shortly before he was electrocuted when he came in contact with a high tension wire.

The 48 points gave Estes a final season total of 641 points on 250 field goals and 141 free throws in 19 games. This is an average of 33.7, up from his 32.7 the previous week, and kept him in second place behind Rick Barry of Miami, Fla.

Barry, who has been No. 1 all season, lost a point from his 38.2 average the previous week, but continued to lead with a 37.1 on 742 points in 20 games. Bill Bradley of Princeton retained third place at 31.4 on 534 points in 17 games.

GOPHER'S GOALIE—Junior John Lothrop is scheduled to guard the nets for the University of Minnesota this Friday and Saturday nights as the visiting Golden Gophers take on Colorado College in a pair of league hockey games at the Broadmoor World Arena. Minnesota, CC to Clash In Weekend Ice Series

Junior center Doug Woog, a spunky 160-pounder from St. Paul, Minn., paces the University of Minnesota Golden Gophers into their weekend clash with Colorado College here Friday and Saturday at the Broadmoor World Arena. However, the Goph's top scorer no longer owns first place in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association listing.

Woog was displaced atop the WCHA scoring this past weekend, with Michigan's Mel Wakabayashi moving ahead. Wakabayashi, in 13 games, has scored 11 goals and 10 assists for 21 points.

The Gophers' leader is one point behind with 20 points, and teammate Gary Hokanson is one more off Woog's pace with 19 points.

Minnesota comes to Colorado Springs for the two-game series with CC in fourth place in the WCHA standings. The Gophers have split down the middle in a dozen league games, while Colorado College still hugs the bottom rung of the ladder with a 2-8 mark.

Gerry Kell has led North Dakota to the top of the standings, and trails Hokanson by a single point with nine goals and as many assists. His teammate Dennis Hextall is also among the league leaders.

For league play only, CC has Warren Fordyce and sophomore center Jim Amidon. Both have eight points. Glen Blumer, Bob Magi (CC's overall leading scorer) and soph John Genz all have 7 points in league play.

Among the goalies, Michigan Tech's Tony Esposito continues to show the best record. In six game, including a 10-1 victory over CC last Saturday, Esposito has averaged only 1.8 goals scored. Dakota's Joe Lech is second with a 2.8 mean, and Denver's Buddy Blom has a 3.0 average. CC's Bill Howard has allowed 4.1 and Minnesota's John Lothrop is right behind at 4.2.

Besides the games at the World Arena between CC and Minnesota this weekend, the only other league contests will have Denver visiting Michigan Tech. Michigan State plays Wisconsin and North Dakota goes against Minnesota - Duluth in non-league action.

Blue Liners Hold Regular Meet Friday

There will be a meeting of the newly formed Blue Line Club for all regional ice hockey enthusiasts at noon this Friday, according to club president, Bunt Hubchek. The meeting will be at the Beef 'n Bird Restaurant on S. Nevada Ave.

Featured speaker at the luncheon this week is scheduled to be John Mariucci, head coach from the University of Minnesota. Mariucci, of course, has been an outstanding figure in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association for several years, and he is expected to express his views on the league and its future.

Mariucci has been the ringleader of the boycott of Denver University for the past three seasons and has been behind the drive to exclude the older Canadian players from the league. His opinions have always been quite controversial.

Minnesota is slated to play Colorado College twice this weekend, on Friday and Saturday nights, at the Broadmoor World Arena.

In addition, there will be reports from the local high school hockey league which seems headed for the tighest finish in the history of the circuit.

Anyone in the area interested in the winter sport is invited to attend. The club meets each Friday at noon, whenever Colorado College has home games scheduled.

Two teams were tied at 70 — William Hyndman III of Philadelphia and Mrs. Philip Cudone of West Caldwell, N.J., who carded 33-37; and Jack Penros Miami Beach, Fla., and Tish Preuss of Pompano Beach, Fla., with 36-34.

California Skaters Win Two Crowns

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — Sunny California is making a determined bid at becoming the center of amateur ice skating in this country.

California skaters dominated Wednesday's opening events in the 1965 United States Figure Skating Championships and have their sights set on carrying off more than half of the 10 titles up for grabs in the four-day meet.

Seventeen-year-old Sharon Bates of Oakland, Calif., won the compulsory figures in junior ladies' singles and Roger Bass, 15, of San Diego and Atoy Wilson Jr., 13, of Los Angeles skated off with the top two positions in novice men's singles.

Julie Lynn Holmes, 14, of South Pasadena, Calif., was second to 16-year-old Coco Gram of New York City in novice ladies' singles, but remained the favorite to take the title in Thursday night's free skating finals. The novice men's crown also will be decided Thursday.

Sixteen-year-old Peggy Fleming, who begins defense of her senior ladies' singles title Friday, is from Pasadena.

Miss Bates has a trio of challengers on her heel, but hopes to wrap up the junior title Friday night by duplicating her performance of a year ago when she won the free skating portion of the event. She had placed ninth in figures and had to settle for fourth place over-all.

Two of her rivals — runner-up Pamela Schneider of Lincroft, N.J., and Gail Newberry of Colorado Springs — are former national novice champions. Miss Schneider, 16, placed second and Miss Newberry, 16, was fourth. Third place is held by another Californian, 17-year-old Sondra Holmes of Artesia.

The battle among the girls is so close that all four positions could be jumbled in the free skating.

Bass and Miss Gram each have solid majorities for first place, but are being pressed by outstanding free skaters in Wilson and Miss Holmes. Wilson also is the first Negro to compete in the national figure skating meet.

Hardwood Overhaul

Colorado's growing pains are never more evident than when the state's school administrators gather periodically to legislate changes made necessary by the bulging classroom population. The situation has become so accelerated in recent years that educators frequently find themselves amending earlier edicts before the ink is dry.

In the area of athletics, the major overhaul came last year when the Board of Control approved proposals which started at the ground level and completely rebuilt the prep structure throughout the state. That drastic revision doesn't mean the Board worked itself out of a job, however. When the legislators gather for their annual confab this spring, at least a portion of the time will be devoted to removing flaws from the new machinery.

Mention had already been made of the fact that a reshuffling of conference boundaries for this area is imminent, principally to accomodate the withdrawal from AAA status of the two undernourished members of the Southern League. Another of the problems confronting the Board which is certain to attract unusual interest concerns a proposed revision of the state's basketball playoffs.

At the December meeting of the State AAA Basketball Committee no decision was made concerning the 1966 tournament. Instead a variety of proposals were introduced and committee members were asked to refer these ideas to the various leagues and return with their recommendations at the next session, which will be held in the near future and prior to the spring Board of Control meeting.

There have been a number of ideas advanced and the final decision may very well represent a cross-section. However, the most significant change would be one that would introduce district tournaments into Colorado at the AAA level.

Briefly, the major proposals put forward to date are these:

1. An eight team state tournament with champions of all leagues except the Will Rogers, Southwestern, and Southern qualifying automatically. There would be a drawing between these three with one gaining the seventh berth by this method and the other two forced into a playoff for the eighth spot.

2. This would retain the procedure of the current year: in other words the Will Rogers and Southern League champions would automatically play off to fill the eighth spot.

3. Would set up four district tournaments on a two day basis with the first and second place teams from each moving on to an eight team state finals.

4. The same, except that the district tourneys would be enlarged to three days, thus allowing a greater representation from the various leagues. The top two would still advance to an eight team finals.

5. This would entail only a one day district playoff—and it would not be a real tournament, in the strict sense of the word. There would simply be four teams from various leagues involved in two games with the winners moving on to state.

6. This idea would set up a 16 team state tournament with two teams entered from the Denver, Centennial, South Central, Jefferson County, Skyline, & Northern leagues and one each from the Southern, Southwestern, and Will Rogers. The 16th berth would be decided in a way not specifically determined by the proposal.

The majority of these offerings are not actually far-removed from what can become a central ground of agreement. There are two basically new grains of thought which run through most and I would like to see both somehow incorporated into the plan which will eventually emerge.

One obviously popular view is to expand the playoff arrangement to include 16 teams, instead of the eight which will gain the privilege this winter. The other innovation would be the district tournament, which would remove some of the postseason action from Denver. The Capitol City presently enjoys a monopoly on all state tournament basketball activity.

With the strong possibility that in the near future Colorado will revert to eight AAA leagues instead of the present nine, the format for either an eight or 16 team playoff becomes simplified. I believe the 16 to be much more acceptable.

There are frequent occasions where a league champion is not the strongest representative of a particular area by the end of the season. We have had notable examples in this region, including 1960-61 when Pueblo South finished 2nd in the South Central League, but went on to lose in the state tournament only in an overtime session in the final game. Last year Salida was second in the Pikes Peak League, but the Spartans wound up as AA State champions. Neither would have made the state playoffs under the present AAA setup.

To simplify the crush of teams in Denver for an event that would actually be doubled in size although not in duration by a 16 team entry, the recommendation of district tournaments is a natural. Basketball interest has fluctuated in this area, mostly following a graph that would parallel the success or failure of our teams. It seems reasonable that removing some of the championship play from Denver and placing it in various sections around the state can have nothing but a promotional effect on the sport in the long run.

The South Central League has instructed its representative to the AAA Basketball Commitee to favor plan number III (as listed above); in other words the 2 day district tournament. Eldon Helm, Cheyenne Mountain principal, said Wednesday that the Will Rogers League will seek the approval of a plan similiar to number IV, one advancing the district to three days and allowing an even greater number of teams to participate.

Chances are excellent that the outcome will see the strong points of several of these proposals merged. Regardless of the eventual structure, Colorado's high schools will do a service to both their athletes and fans if they enlarge the state playoffs — and then move a portion of them into areas where championship basketball has previously meant either a trip to Denver or a session by the radio.

AFL Agrees To Ban Early Signings

By MIKE RATHET

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Football League has followed the rival National League by banning premature signings, but neither pro league has agreed to two other proposals aimed at protecting the nation's colleges in the multi-million dollar war over top player talent.

Joe Foss, commissioner of the AFL, issued his statement on premature signings Wednesday in a document that almost paralleled one issued by NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle last month.

Both leagues are now on record as prohibiting the signing of college football seniors until the teams have completed their seasons, including bowl games.

That, however with a few small exceptions, is as far as the pro leagues have gone in responding to three requests made by the National Collegiate Athletic Association after it was revealed that four Oklahoma players had signed pro contracts before the Gator Bowl game.

The NCAA, at the time, also requested that the pro leagues hold their drafts after the bowl games and discontinue their practice of signing redshirts — players who remain eligible for college competition after their class has graduated.

The AFL, however, took a further step toward trying to reach settlement with the NCAA by stating that it would be league policy initially to seek assistance of the athletic director or the head coach at the college where a club desires to contact a player about signing a pro contract.

The AFL action came just before the deadline set by Jim Corbett, Louisiana State University athletic director and chairman of the NCAA committee on college-pro relations. Corbett said he was withholding comment until he studied the statements.

Despite the fact that the AFL agreed to only one of the three proposals advanced by the NCAA, they jumped back into the good graces of the Southeastern Conference publicity directors.

The conference's sports directors had voted in January to ban AFL representatives from their campuses since the league had not agreed to halt premature signings. With the AFL's announcement, the ban was lifted.

As for the two proposals, the AFL, as well as the NFL turned down, Foss explained his reason for each.

"We couldn't agree to a later draft because I think you would have more trouble that way with all that time between the end of the season and the last bowl game," Foss said. "There is no reason a boy should not be allowed to sign a contract if his team is through.

"As for redshirts, I think we can have some future talks on that matter," Foss said. "As for me, I feel it is up to the boy to decide if he wants to go to college a fifth year or to sign."

Arvada Takes Lead in Poll

Arvada's Redskins have taken over the top spot in the Denver Post high school basketball poll this week, despite suffering their first loss of the season last weekend.

Arvada's rise was accelerated by the fact that Thomas Jefferson of Denver, the leader for three straight weeks, was defeated by both Manual and George Washington last weekend. The twin defeats tumbled Jefferson to fourth in the standings while Washington rose to second. Pueblo Central, winner of two games last week, nevertheless remained third in the balloting.

La Junta, the Southern League leader, moved into the top 10 for the first time and Pueblo Centennial, runner-up in the South Central League race, was ranked eighth. The only Colorado Springs' team to draw a vote was Harrison of the Will Rogers League.

The Denver League continued to have the most representatives in the top 10 with three (Washington, Jefferson, and Lincoln). The South Central has two (Central & Centennial), the Centennial League two (Littleton and Hinkley), the Jefferson County League one (Arvada), the Northern League one (Greeley Central), and the Southern League one (La Junta).

Pirates Tangle With Mullen in Key Tilt

By CHARLIE DEEUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Stunned with their second loop loss last week against defensive-minded Regis, Dan Wright's Buccaneers have regrouped their title hopes as the St. Mary's basketball team plans for a showdown with the pace setters from Mullen on Friday.

Wright's chargers are slated to clash with Mullen in Denver territory, and the Pirates will have to defeat the torrid-scoring Mustangs if they desire to remain in contention for the Denver Parochial League championship.

The St. Mary's-Mullen game is set for 8 p.m. at the Mullen Gymnasium.

Mullen's Mustangs raced to their 11th DPL victory last Sunday, the same day the Bucs succumbed to Regis which resulted in knocking St. Mary's from a first place tie with Mullen. The Mustangs dumped pesky St. Joseph's, 81-71, after the losing team forced Mullen to rally in the second half to pull out the decision.

The Pirates couldn't cope with the Raiders' stall-and-run tactics as the DPL perennial and defending co-champions stopped St. Mary's, 44-35, despite the fact that both teams scored 14 field goals. It was the Raiders uncanny free throw shooting from St. Mary's backcourt cagers which resulted in deadlock these two teams for second place in DPL standings via 10-2 won-loss records.

In addition to having their ace gunner Tom McCarthy (who leads the Bucs in scoring via a 17.2-points per game clip) foul out early in the third period, the Pirates committed a host of needless personal fouls. This accounted for Regis getting 16 charity points while the Bucs had to settle for seven.

Mullen has only been stopped once this season and the Raiders, whose defensive endeavors have contained their 12 DPL opponents to only 37.4-points per game, turned the trick in the loop's first round.

Should the Pirates revenge their 66-62 first round loss by posting a win over the Mustangs, the St. Mary's roundballers will have another shot at the loop championship.

On the oter hand, a loss to Mullen would all but eliminate the Pirates from the DPL pennant chase and the title would be settled a week from Friday, Feb. 19, when Regis and Mullen tangle. Of course there is a chance the top three challengers — St. Mary's, St. Regis and Mullen — could falter against lesser teams in completing their four-game slate.

If St. Mary's tops Mullen, the Pirates would share the DPL crown with the Mustangs (providing Mullen defeats Regis next week), and should Regis topple Mullen, the local Parokes would share the championship with Regis.

The other alternative would be if the Pirates lose to Mullen. Then the Bucs would have to settle for second place.

SCL Rounds Out Mat Slate; District Meet Set Saturday

South Central League teams conclude their conference wrestling schedule tonight in a round of three meets and then prepare for Saturday's day-long plus a below - par performance District Tournament which will be held at the Palmer Gymnasium and will serve as the qualifying meet for next week's Division I State Tournament.

Pueblo East will be attempting to wrap up its first major sports title tonight when the Eagles host Palmer in the final round of SCL action. It would take a tremendous upset on the part of the Terrors, who have won only once in the SCL, to spill the unbeaten Eagles. East has a 5-0 mark in conference competition and is 12-0 overall.

DEFENDING CHAMPS READY—Colorado Springs' two defending champions from the area District Wrestling Tournament will see their final regular season action tonight before entering the District Meet Saturday at the Palmer Gymnasium. Wasson's Yogi Grandcourt (left) won the 165 pound title last year and has a 14-1 record at that weight this season. Ron Smith of Palmer is the defending champ in the heavyweight division. (Gazette Telegraph Photos)

At the same time, Wasson and Pueblo South will be locked in what should be an excellent meet at the Wasson Gymnasium. That one is scheduled to start at 7:30. The two teams are currently tied for second with 4-1 records and tonight's winner will either occupy the runner-up slot in the final standings or, in the case of an upset by Palmer, tie for the title.

The only other final round action will send Trinidad to Pueblo Centennial. The Miners, who are winless, could climb as high as a tie for fifth with a victory while Centennial will probably occupy the fifth spot alone if the Bulldogs win.

Saturday, six of the South Central League schools will enter the district tournament along with two from the Will Rogers League. Palmer, Wasson., Centennial, Pueblo South, Pueblo East, Pueblo Central, Harrison, and Widefield will enter teams in the day-long meet in Colorado Springs.

Two other District Tournaments will involve area schools Trinidad of the SCL and Canon City of the Will Rogers circuit will meet with Southern League teams. Cheyenne Mountain and Air Academy High will go north to enter a qualifying tournament with schools from the Centennial League.

The local schedule calls for weigh-ins at 8 a.m., Saturday with first round matches getting underway at 10. The semifinals will be held at 2 p.m. with consolation wrestle - backs at 3. The finals will be at 7 p.m. All matches will be at the Palmer Gymnasium. Necessary come-back matches will be held at the Palmer Gym at 4 p.m. Monday. The first and second place winners in each division will move on to the state tournament which will be held at the Auditorium-Arena in downtown Denver Feb. 18-20.

In addition to qualifying wrestlers for the state, a District champion will be crowned at the local tournament. Points will be awarded on a basis of 10-7-4-2 for the first four places in each division plus an extra point will be given for each pin and each advancement.

Montreal, Toronto Await Brawl Fines

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Montreal Canadiens, shackled by their worst slump in 14 years, gloomily awaited disciplinary actinn today by National Hockey League President Clarence Campbell following Wednesday night's 6-2 loss to Toronto. The Maple Leafs, also in line for fines for their part in a second period brawl, could afford to be more cheerful about them. They won the game.

The loss, Montreal's fifth in a row, dropped the Canadiens into a second-place tie with the Maple Leafs, four points back of Chicago, which whippd Detroit 5-2.

Two goals by Ron Ellis, both on feeds from Frank Mahovlich, broke the game open early in the second period. The rookie's 15th and 16th goals came just 25 seconds apart and the brawl broke out on the very next rush into Canadien ice.

It started with a delayed penalty called on Montreal's John Ferguson for hooking Mahovlich. When Mahovlich took the Canadiens' Terry Harper into the boards, Ted Harris of Montreal squared off with the Toronto player.

Soon, fights and wrestling matches broke out all around the Montreal nets with players pouring off both benches to join the action. NHL rules call for automatic $25 fines for any player leaving the bench to join in a fight and when referee Bill Friday and linesmen John D'Amico and Matt Pavelich got things settled down, there were 14 Canadiens and 10 Leafs on the ice.

The brawl resulted in 21 minutes in penalties against each club with Mahovlich and Harris logging 17 apiece. Each received a minor, a major for fighting and a 10-minute misconduct.

Ellis' two goals sparked the Leafs with Bob Pulford, Red Kelly, Dave Keon and Kent Douglas adding one apiece. Ralph Backstrom and Ferguson scored third period goals for the Canadiens, who last lost five straight back in December 1960.

The Hawks moved four points ahead with an easy victory over Detroit although playing without the NHL's leading scorer, Bobby Hull. Ken Wharram scored twice for the Hawks.

Hull, nursing a knee injury, watched from the stands as teammate Phil Esposito scored with the game just 20 seconds old. Hull's younger brother, Dennis, and Bobby's other linemate, Chico Maki, scored the other Hawk goals.

Bruce MacGregor and Ron Murphy hit for Detroit.

Knicks End Royal Jinx Via Overtime NBA Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

DETROIT (AP) — For the first time since Nov. 16, 1958 the New York Knickerbockers came out on top of the Cincinnati Royals.

In the first game of a National Basketball Association doubleheader at Detroit's Cobo Hall Wednesday night, the Knicks went into overtime and defeated Cincinnati 118-113.

The second game saw Boston's John Havlicek collect 35 points as the Celtics beat the Detroit Pistons 127-105.

In the only other NBA game played the Philadelphia 76ers beat the Lakers 120-99 at Los Angeles.

The New York-Cincinnati game was tied at 104-104 at the end of regulation time. In the overtime, Willis Reed and John Q Green put New York into a four-point lead with two quick field goals. But, with just over a minute remaining, Oscar Robertson erased the score with a basket and his free throw.

A basket by Green with 45 seconds to go and a free throw by Tom Sallo erased up the game for the Knicks.

The Celtics posted their 40th victory of the season against only 11 defeats. The Pistons were never able to get closer than 11 points after Havlicek dropped in his first six shots and eight of his first nine early in the game.

Reggie Harding led Detroit with 24 points.

The victory moved the Celtics to 10 games in front of second place Cincinnati in the Eastern Division.

Philadelphia's Wilt Chamberlain collected 31 points & some additional rebounding as he moved the 76ers' high point leaders for Los Angeles coach Jerry West with 26 points.

They whipped Bucknell at Lewisburg, Pa., 79-61 Wednesday night for their seventh straight victory, a 14-3 record over-all and their eighth triumph in 11 road games.

Jim Reed's 26 points, mcluding nine in a 13-point spree that broke a 23-23 tie, paced the Lions as they added the Bisons to their previous road victims, Kansas, Kansas State, Gettysburg, Temple, Houston, Detroit and West Virginia.

Marquette lost its third straight since upsetting St. John's of New York, bowing to Memphis State at Milwaukee 82-70.

SCL Rounds Out Mat Slate; District Meet Set Saturday

South Central League teams conclude their conference wrestling schedule tonight in a round of three meets and then prepare for Saturday's day-long plus a below - par performance

DEFENDING CHAMPS READY—Colorado Springs' two defending champions from the area District Wrestling Tournament will see their final regular season action tonight before entering the District Meet Saturday at the Palmer Gymnasium. Wasson's Yogi Grandcourt (left) won the 165 pound title last year and has a 14-1 record at that weight this season. Ron Smith of Palmer is the defending champ in the heavyweight division. (Gazette Telegraph Photos)

District Tournament which will be held at the Palmer Gymnasium and will serve as the qualifying meet for next week's Division I State Tournament.

Pueblo East will be attempting to wrap up its first major sports title tonight when the Eagles host Palmer in the final round of SCL action. It would take a tremendous upset on the part of the Terrors, who have won only once in the SCL, to spill the unbeaten Eagles. East has a 5-0 mark in conference competition and is 12-0 overall.

At the same time, Wasson and Pueblo South will be locked in what should be an excellent meet at the Wasson Gymnasium. That one is scheduled to start at 7:30. The two teams are currently tied for second with 4-1 records and tonight's winner will either occupy the runner-up slot in the final standings or, in the case of an upset by Palmer, tie for the title.

The only other final round action will send Trinidad to Pueblo Centennial. The Miners, who are winless, could climb as high as a tie for fifth with a victory while Centennial will probably occupy the fifth spot alone if the Bulldogs win.

Saturday, six of the South Central League schools will enter the district tournament along with two from the Will Rogers League. Palmer, Wasson,, Centennial, Pueblo South, Pueblo East, Pueblo Central, Harrison, and Widefield will enter teams in the day-long meet in Colorado Springs.

Two other District Tournaments will involve area schools Trinidad of the SCL and Canon City of the Will Rogers circuit will meet with Southern League teams. Cheyenne Mountain and Air Academy High will go north to enter a qualifying tournament with schools from the Centennial League.

The local schedule calls for weigh-ins at 8 a.m., Saturday with first round matches getting underway at 10. The semifinals will be held at 2 p.m. with consolation wrestle - backs at 3. The finals will be at 7 p.m. All matches will be at the Palmer Gymnasium. Necessary come-back matches will be held at the Palmer Gym at 4 p.m. Monday. The first and second place winners in each division will move on to the state tournament which will be held at the Auditorium-Arena in downtown Denver Feb. 18-20.

In addition to qualifying wrestlers for the state, a District champion will be crowned at the local tournament. Points will be awarded on a basis of 10-7-4-2 for the first four places in each division plus an extra point will be given for each pin and each advancement.

Gunnison Faces Challenge In Divison II Tourney

DENVER (AP) — Defending champion Gunnison faces a strong challenge from two-time winner Steamboat Springs in the Division II Colorado High School Wrestling Tournament beginning today at suburban Aurora Hinkley High School.

Gunnison qualified only five for the meet while Steamboat Springs, champion in 1962 and 1963, and Wray each qualified 10.

The only returning individual champion from last year is Mike Hawkins of Palisade who will defend his 165-pound crown.

Trailing Steamboat Springs and Wray in qualifications are Greeley College High and Crowley County of Ordway, eight each; Olathe and Center, seven each; Brush six, Johnstown Roosevelt and Gunnison five each.

The first round starts today at 5:30 p.m.. The quarterfinals begin Friday at 5:15 p.m. and the semifinals follow at 8:15 p.m..

Championship matches are Saturday night.

The third-ranked St. Joseph's Hawks of Philadelphia, the only team in The Associated Press Top Ten to see action, won their 10th straight and upped their over-all record to 20-1 by crushing Albright 92-71 in the feature of a doubleheader at the Palestra.

A basket from 50 feet out by 5-foot-9 Curt Fromal at the half-time buzzer helped LaSalle wallop Gettysburg 91-68 in the Palestra opener.

Evansville the No. 1 team in the AP small college poll, kept its unbeaten streak going with a 103-73 thumping of St. Joseph's, Ind. It was the Aces' 19th straight this year and a winning streak of 25, counting six from last season.

Montreal, Toronto Await Brawl Fines

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Montreal Canadiens, shackled by their worst slump in 14 years, gloomily awaited disciplinary action today by National Hockey League President Clarance Campbell following Wednesday night's 6-2 loss to Toronto. The Maple Leafs, also in line for fines for their part in a second period brawl, could afford to be more cheerful about them. They won the game.

The loss, Montreal's fifth in a row, dropped the Canadiens into a second-place tie with the Maple Leafs, four points back of Chicago, which whippd Detroit 5-2.

Two goals by Ron Ellis, both on feeds from Frank Mahovlich, broke the game open early in the second period. The rookie's 15th and 16th goals came just 26 seconds apart and the brawl broke out on the very next rush into Canadien ice.

It started with a delayed penalty called on Montreal's John Ferguson for hooking Mahovlich. When Mahovlich took the Canadiens' Terry Harper into the boards, Ted Harris of Montreal squared off with the Toronto player.

Soon, fights and wrestling matches broke out all around the Montreal nets with players pouring off both benches to join the action. NHL rules call for automatic $25 fines for any player leaving the bench to join in a fight and when referee Bill Friday and linesmen John D'Amico and Matt Pavelich got things settled down, there were 14 Canadiens and 10 Leafs on the ice.

The brawl resulted in 21 minutes in penalties against each club with Mahovlich and Harris logging 17 apiece. Each received a minor, a major for fighting and a 10-minute misconduct.

Ellis' two goals sparked the Leafs with Bob Pulford, Red Kelly, Dave Keon and Kent Douglas adding one apiece. Ralph Backstrom and Ferguson scored third period goals for the Canadiens, who last lost five straight back in December 1950.

The Hawks moved four points ahead with an easy victory over Detroit although playing without the NHL's leading scorer, Bobby Hull. Ken Wharram scored twice for the Hawks.

Hull, nursing a knee injury, watched from the stands as linemate Phil Esposito scored with the game just 20 seconds old. Hull's younger brother, Dennis, and Bobby's other linemate, Chico Maki, scored the other Hawk goals.

Bruce MacGregor and Ron Murphy hit for Detroit.

Knicks End Royal Jinx Via Overtime NBA Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

DETROIT (AP) — For the first time since Nov. 16, 1963 the New York Knickerbockers came out on top of the Cincinnati Royals.

In the first game of a National Basketball Association doubleheader at Detroit's Cobo Hall Wednesday night, the Knicks went into overtime and defeated Cincinnati 118-113.

The second game saw Boston's John Havlicek collect 38 points as the Celtics bust the Detroit Pistons 117-105.

In the only other NBA game played the Philadelphia 76ers beat the Lakers 119-99 at Los Angeles.

The New York-Cincinnati game was tied at 104-104 at the end of regulation time. In the overtime, Willis Reed and Johnny Green put New York into a four-point lead with two quick field goals. But, with just over a minute remaining, Oscar Robertson evened the score with a basket and two free throws.

A basket by Green with 40 seconds to go and a free throw by Tom Gola moved up the game for the Knicks.

The Celtics posted their 40th victory of the season against only 11 defeats. The Pistons were never able to get closer than 11 points after Havlicek dropped in his first six shots and eight of his first nine early in the game.

Reggie Harding led Detroit with 24 points.

The victory moved the Celtics to 12 games in front of second place Cincinnati in the Eastern Division.

The 76ers withstood a Laker rally in the third period that cut the deficit to two points before pulling away in the final quarter.

Philadelphia's Wilt Chamberlain scrabbled 31 points & some substantial rebounding as he topped the 76ers. High point honors for Los Angeles went to Jerry West with 29 points.

Compact Congress Districts Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House Judiciary subcommittee has approved a bill to require that congressional districts be compact and nearly equal in population.

The bill is designed to go into effect for the 1966 congressional election and would use the 1960 census to determine a district's population. The measure says no district in a state can have a population that varies more than 12.5 per cent from the state's average.

Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., said after the subcommittee vote Wednesday he thinks chances for passage of the bill are better this year than in the past. But a number of Judiciary Committee members, including Rep. William M. McCulloch, R-Ohio, feel the 12.5 per cent limitation is too strict.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., announced that his Senate Judiciary subcommittee would start hearings March 8 on several proposed constitutional amendments to permit states to apportion one house of a legislature on a basis other than population.

The Supreme Court ruled last year that both houses of state legislatures must be based on population.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Completion of the interstate highway system is nearing the halfway miles finished.

An announcement Wednesday by the Commerce Department said some 1,519 miles were opened during the last three months of 1964. Another 5,200 miles are under construction. Last year 2,586 miles were completed.

Freeport Bill Not Football, Governor Says

By JOHN M. NOLAN
United Press International

DENVER (UPI)— Gov. John A. Love today denied Democratic charges that he was trying to make a political football of proposed freeport legislation.

Two Republican Senate leaders, at the urging of Love, Tuesday introduced a freeport bill in the Senate because they said House Democrats were stalling on a similar bill.

The action marked the latest rift in the politically-divided, slow-moving Colorado Legislature.

Love said he talked with assistant Majority House Floor Leader Mark Hogan, D-Denver, Tuesday night. Hogan sponsored the House freeport bill and also was the Democrat who accused Love of making a political football of freeport.

Love said Hogan convinced him that the House was approaching the freeport bill carefully but steadily. But Love said he did not think movement of the bill in the Senate would hinder anything.

Love also referred to a remark by Hogan that the governor did not understand the legislative process.

"The thing I don't understand is the lack of legislative progress," Love told his morning news conference.

Applicants Boosted For Domestic Corps

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of applications for the new domestic Peace Corps is running ahead of that for the original Peace Corps, says Sargent Shriver, Peace Corps director and head of President Johnson's antipoverty campaign.

Shriver, speaking Wednesday to the annual Conference of the Citizens Crusade Against Poverty said that in a little more than one month the Volunteers In Service To America — Vista I the domestic Peace Corps, already had 8,500 applications. The Peace Corps got 6,000 application in the first month after it was created by the late President John F. Kennedy, but after that it fell off, Shriver said.

"It fell off so badly I thought the line was going off the chart. I thought everybody would forget about us," Shriver said.

Shriver said that 12,200 applications were received for the original Peace Corps during the to help in community antipoverty activities in much the same way as Peace Corps volunteers serve abroad.

Actress Must Pay For Roof Repairs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Cara Williams must pay $486 for roof repairs she says she never authorized, a Los Angeles Municipal Court jury ruled Wednesday.

The plaintiffs billed Miss Williams $836 but she refused to pay, insisting it wasn't worth that much. She also said she hadn't ordered it.

Compact Congress Districts Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House Judiciary subcommittee has approved a bill to require that congressional districts be compact and nearly equal in population.

The bill is designed to go into effect for the 1966 congressional election and would use the 1960 census to determine a district's population. The measure says no district in a state can have a population that varies more than 12.5 per cent from the state's average.

Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., said after the subcommittee vote Wednesday he thinks chances for passage of the bill are better this year than in the past. But a number of Judiciary Committee members, including Rep. William M. McCulloch, R-Ohio, feel the 12.5 per cent limitation is too strict.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., announced that his Senate Judiciary subcommittee would start hearings March 3 on several proposed constitutional amendments to permit states to apportion one house of a legislature on a basis other than population.

The Supreme Court ruled last year that both houses of state legislatures must be based on population.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Completion of the interstate highway system is nearing the halfway miles finished.

An announcement Wednesday by the Commerce Department said some 1,519 miles were opened during the last three months of 1964. Another 5,200 miles are under construction. Last year 2,585 miles were completed.

Freeport Bill Not Football, Governor Says

By JOHN M. NOLAN
United Press International

DENVER (UPI)— Gov. John A. Love today denied Democratic charges that he was trying to make a political football of proposed freeport legislation.

Two Republican Senate leaders, at the urging of Love, Tuesday introduced a freeport bill in the Senate because they said House Democrats were stalling on a similar bill.

The action marked the latest rift in the politically-divided, slow-moving Colorado Legislature.

Love said he talked with assistant Majority House Floor Leader Mark Hogan, D-Denver, Tuesday night. Hogan sponsored the House freeport bill and also was the Democrat who accused Love of making a political football of freeport.

Love said Hogan convinced him that the House was approaching the freeport bill carefully but steadily. But Love said he did not think movement of the bill in the Senate would hinder anything.

Love also referred to a remark by Hogan that the governor did not understand the legislative process.

"The thing I don't understand is the lack of legislative progress," Love told his morning news conference.

Applicants Boosted For Domestic Corps

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of applications for the new domestic Peace Corps is running ahead of that for the original Peace Corps, says Sargent Shriver, Peace Corps director and head of President Johnson's antipoverty campaign.

Shriver, speaking Wednesday to the annual Conference of the Citizens Crusade Against Poverty said that in a little more than one month the Volunteers In Service To America — Vista I the domestic Peace Corps, already had 8,500 applications. The Peace Corps got 6,000 application in the first month after it was created by the late President John F. Kennedy, but after that it fell off, Shriver said.

"It fell off so badly I thought the line was going off the chart. I thought everybody would forget about us," Shriver said.

Shriver said that 12,200 applications were received for the original Peace Corps during the to help in community antipoverty activities in much the same way as Peace Corps volunteers serve abroad.

Grand Junction Vote Turns Down TV Plan

GRAND JUNCTION (UPI)—Grand Junction voters by a better than 3-to-1 margin turned down a third referendum Tuesday which would have brought Denver television programs to this western Colorado community.

The vote was 2,177—766 against a proposal by Home-Owned Cable-TV, Inc., to pipe the program into the area. Officials said the turnout represented 69 per cent of the registered voters.

All registered voters were able to vote in the referendum since the firm had sought a revocable permit. Only property owners voted in the first two referendums in which the companies had sought franchises.

The firms would have piped Denver television programs into individual homes at rates estimated at from $5.90 to $5.95 per month.

Cable Television of Colorado was turned down in its bid Jan. 5 and Wentronics lost out Feb. 2.

The area now is served by one television station—KREX-TV.

Adopted Parents Provided for Mental Patients

By JAMES M. SHEVIS

LEE, Mass. (UPI)—Veterans Administration mental patients are making the difficult transition from long hospitalization to community life by going to live with "adopted parents."

Such a "halfway house" has been built here by Gordon Leeman, a state conservation officer, who occupies part of it with his wife, two daughters and a son.

The Leemans built the house last year — an 86-by-40-foot ranch style, split level home. They occupy the lower level. On the upper level are six modern motel - style, twin-bedded rooms, four tile baths, a huge living room, dining room, stainless steel kitchen and a den. Nearby is a large swimming pool.

The upper level occupants are 12 veterans from the Northampton VA hospital. In season, some of these men cultivate a big vegetable garden. Others favor boating and fishing in nearby Laurel Lake. Still others go downtown bowling. None hangs around to brood.

This "halfway house" is the brainchild of two social workers at the Northampton VA hospital. They had witnessed the success of individual placement of screened patients in selected neighborhood foster homes.

"Could a number of patients be motivated to leave the protective walls of the hospital as a group for the 'halfway house'?" they asked.

After weeks of screening, they finally chose an initial group of eight long-term patients.

Each patient must be able to pay $135 a month from his own funds for room, board, laundry, recreation and personal services at the "halfway house." Most can afford this by combining their social security and veterans' pension payments.

Of the original group chosen, four veterans now have paying jobs in the community. Others are showing slow but steady progress in the transition. Neighbors have taken the recuperating veterans into their homes, treating them as members of their families.

"We would like to hope that some day all will be going back to their families or on their own," a veteran's administration spokesman said.

Incidentally, the Leemans are so pleased with the results of their experiment that they're contemplating a four-room addition to their "halfway house."

Martin Co. May Get New Contract

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Martin Co. of Denver may get an $80 million contract for development of a space vehicle booster, Rep. Roy H. McVicker, D-Colo., said today.

McVicker said he and Rep. Byron Rogers, D-Colo., have "every expectation" that the contract for Titan 3X will be given to the company that produced the first three Titans.

This is based on talks with defense and Martin officials, McVicker said.

Tital 3X would serve as a booster on which another booster, the Agena, would be placed to propel a manned orbital laboratory into space as a part of the moon probe operation, McVicker said.

The expected awarding of the contract would have no effect on employment at Martin's Denver plant for a year to 18 months, McVicker said.

It would, however, stabilize employment and spike rumors that the plant may be closed in a few years, McVicker said.

Employment there has ranged from 13,000 in early 1964 to 5,000 to 6,000 this year.

Activity Burst Seen In Economy Expansion

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The U.S. economy is closing out its fourth full year of expansion with a burst of activity and a handful of problems currently acute.

In the middle of February 1961 the economy, as measured by industrial production and similar indices, hit the bottom of the last recession. From then on the path has been upward, with only an occasional slowdown or a dip for reasons that proved temporary.

Industrial production and the other measures of prosperity are still going strong. They show every sign of further expansion:

—If the labor disputes now besetting such industries as shipping are resolved shortly.

—If the steel union strife is settled without deep scars, and the union and steel management can then reach agreement on a new contract in time to head off a threatened strike, and in time to cool off an overheated rush to build up steel inventories now at the expense of a slump in orders later in the year.

—If these and other labor settlements don't lead to wide advances in prices.

—If the U.S. balance of payments can be tamed, and the financial difficulties of Britain smoothed over without causing another international monetary crisis, or upsetting the money and credit applecart at home.

—If the big boom in auto production and sales proves to be based on continuing consumer demand rather than on just the catching up after last fall's auto strike.

The problems and uncertainties aside, the current statistics are mostly on the side of optimism.

The big spurt of industrial production in December apparently carried over into January, and in February is slowed only in those industries and sections hit by the Atlantic and Gulf coast shipping strike.

Retail sales are strong, with all signs that consumers are in a spending mood and have plenty of income and savings to back it.

On a seasonal basis employment in January was better than normal.

Plans Proposed To Delay VA Hospital Closing

WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate conferees met briefly today and then recessed to seek approval of key senators on a proposal to delay until May 1 any economy closings of veterans hospitals.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, who talked with the conferees, told newsmen the May 1 compromise date had to be cleared with Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana and Sen. Karl Mundt, R-S.D., who were most concerned over the closings.

Hospitals at Miles City, Mont. and Grand Junction, Colo., are involved.

The conferees though they had signed and sealed Tuesday a compromise which would have delayed the hospital closings until the end of the fiscal year, June 30, so that Congress could take a look at the situation.

The Senate, seeking to prevent the hospital closings, had attached a rider to an appropriation bill to provide $1.6 billion of emergency funds for the farm price support program.

But President Johnson reportedly intervened directly and balked at that solution. The compromise fell apart late Tuesday after an afternoon of hurried meetings and phone calls.

The agreement had no sooner been announced by Rep. George H. Mahon, D-Tex., chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, than word was sent to newsmen that a hitch had developed.

Hurried conferences soon began, involving Mahon, Speaker John W. McCormack, Democratic Leader Carl Albert and other top House leaders. The telephone wires between the Capitol and the White House reportedly were humming.

No one would talk for publication, but it was learned in private conservations that the President declined to accept a postponement of the hospital closings until the end of the fiscal year.

A further compromise of a two month delay was reportedly discussed during the afternoon but that evidently fell through too.

Some of those involved were hot under the collar about what they regarded as unwarranted White House intervention.

Amost obscured by the latest embroglio over the VA hospitals was another amendment that had originally hung up the emergency money bill.

That was a ban on any further surplus good sales to President Gamal Abdel Nasser's United Arab Republic.

The House voted for this last week, but the Senate softened it to give the President discretion to continue the surplus food program for Egypt.

Today House conferees accepted that Senate cersion, after a public plea from President Johnson.

However, this agreement cannot become official until the hospital matter is settled and the bill as a whole approved by both House and Senate.

Another agreement was reached on a Senate amendment to delay economy closings of a number of agricultural research stations until the end of the fiscal year.

This was similar to the hospital matter, but did not generate any controversy.

Braceros Will Be Needed, Official Says

MEXICO CITY (UPI)— U.S. Ambassador Fulton Freeman says the United States will have to continue importing farm workers from Mexico unless new wage scales attract Americans to take their place.

Freeman told newsmen Tuesday that 100,000 Americans would have to be recruited to replace the Mexicans who work in the United States last year.

The ambassador said the new minimum wage for crop-harvest work should draw more Americans into the field, but it is not sure yet how many.

The treaty under which the United States has been arranging an annual migration of Mexican braceros (farm workers) across the border expired on Jan. 1, despite the protests of farmers who said they would be unable to find Americans to replace them.

If the practice is renewed, Freeman said, contracts probably will be made directly between the U.S. farmers and the Mexican government.

Sister of Hayley Arrives for Hollywood Work

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Another Mills has arrived to grace these shores. She is Juliet, daughter of John and sister of Hayley, and she is here to play guardian to a bull.

Fair Juliet favors her father in the warm, compassionate eyes and her writer-mother in the red-orange hair. Like the other Millses, she is doggedly optimistic in her outlook and loaded with talent.

She is in Hollywood for her first American film, "The Rare Breed," with James Stewart and Maureen O'Hara. Third time is a charm and all that, since uliet struck out twice before on chances for American movies.

"Fred Zinnemann tested me for a part in 'The Sundowners,'" she reported, "and he wanted me to do it. But I was in the play 'Five Finger Exerise' and I couldn't get out of it. Then Hecht-Hill-Lancaster wanted me for a role in 'Summer of the 11th Doll,' which Daddy did in Australia. But again I was tied up."

She finally made it, thanks to the opportune flop of the Broadway play, "Life." The British import starring Terence Stamp opened in December and closed three weeks later, freeing Juliet for "The Rare Breed" and a Universal contract.

For "The Rare Breed" she has gone Western with a vengeance. Not only does she have to learn to ride a horse Western-style — "quite different from the English way" — she also must ride the aforementioned bull, her pet in the film.

"Luckily I grew up on a farm, and I love animals," said Juliet. "The bull is really quite a dear, and very easy to ride, too." Nothing seems to faze the Millses.

Now a blooming 23, Juliet can't remember when she didn't want to be an actress. She went through a ballet phase, but declined to face the monastic life that goes with it. At 16 she was cast in "Five Finger Exercise," and slipped into the theatrical routine with complete ease. The play ran 18 months in London and 9 in New York.

Hayley followed Juliet into acting by six months. There is four years difference between them, so they managed to avoid the competition of sisters close in age. They seem entirely different types: Juliet sparkling-eyed but a lady, Hayley the mischievous hoyden.

Another difference: Juliet is married. Her husband is American songwriter Russell Alquist. Since he can do his work wherever he can find a piano, he accompanies Juliet on her journeys. So does their son, the much-traveled Dean.

"He's only 10 months old, but he's already been across the ocean twice and to California twice," said Juliet.

Opal Ellis gave a birthday supper for Grandma McCumber and Eva Hammer, but Eva Hammer was unable to attend, due to illness. Those who were there to enjoy the occasion were: Grandma McCumber, George and Ruth McCumber, Frank and Agnes McCumber an Dannie, Jean and Vivian McGuire, Stephen and Bill, Iowa McGuire, Warren and Shirley Lasher, Tinnie and Tammie.

There was a card party at Elsie Lorenze's Wednesday.

Ray and Vivian Hammer, Robert, Sharon, Ronald, Sally Hammer and Shelly dropped in on Great-grandmother Hammer Jan. 27. Came with a lovely birthday dinner all cooked and gifts.

Don't forget the Fireman's Ball at Divide Community Hall Feb. 13, at 8:30 p.m.

Last week when Martin Hammer wasn't able to get wood and coal in he had a real friend who came morning and evening and got the wood and coal. That friend was John Wagner.

McDonald Holds Slight Lead in Steelmen's Vote

By H. L. SCHWARTZ III

PITTSBURGH (AP) — United Steelworkers President David J. McDonald appeared to hold a slight lead today in unofficial election returns as he fought his top lieutenant for control of the nation's third largest union.

The unofficial returns from 1,-289 of 3,082 locals gave McDonald, colorful drama school graduate and protege of the union's founder, 124,493 votes to 105,282 for I. W. Abel, former millhand who has helped McDonald guide the union for the past 12 years.

The unofficial returns were gathered by The Associated Press from the 29 USW districts in this country and Canada.

They varied from totals reported by McDonald headquarters in Pittsburgh and Abel headquarters in Chicago in which each had their man ahead.

McDonald forces reported 104,-743 votes for their man to 72,686 for Abel with 1,268 locals in.

In Chicago, the Abel camp claimed 1,277 locals had given Abel 111,659 votes to 73,911 for McDonald.

The discrepancy between the two camps apparently showed that each was getting faster returns from favorable locals.

Most of the locals reporting appeared to be small ones. Some of the larger locals did not start their count Tuesday night.

In Chicago, Joseph Germano, director of District 31 and Abel's campaign manager, claimed victory.

He said Abel "has a commanding lead and is probably the winner. To win, David McDonald has to carry 58 per cent of the remaining votes and we think that this is virtually impossible."

McDonald appeared at his headquarters jovial and relaxed. He went home after a couple of hours to a sick wife. He said she had the flu.

Abel, who returned to Pittsburgh late Tuesday after voting at his home local in Canton, Ohio, was napping when the returns started coming in.

The vote count could go on for a day or two before a definite trend is established. Locals must report their totals to International headquarters in Pittsburgh within 10 days. The result must be known by May 1.

About 900,000 steelworkers in the basic steel, can, fabricating and lesser industries were eligible to vote.

The prize is the $50,000-a-year president's job for four years.

This was a crucial election for the steelworkers and the most bitter in their 33-year history.

The USW reopened its present contract with the basic steel industry Jan. 1 and can strike May 1 if no settlement is reached. Negotiations have been recessed pending outcome of the election.

The steel industry, mindful of the strike date, hoped for a decisive election so it could get on with bargaining. A close contest could wind up in the courts.

The President's Council of Economic Advisers reported earlier this year that uncertainty in the steel industry was "the chief threat to prospects for steady economic expansion in 1965."

McDonald, 62, who stepped up to the presidency in 1953 on the death of the union's founder, Phillip Murray, campaigned on promises of the best contract workers ever had.

Abel, 56, who was elected secretary-treasurer on McDonald's slate in 1952, called for a return of the union to rank and file control. He called the settlements of 1962 and 1963 inadequate.

Dr. King Scheduled To Speak at CU

BOULDER (UPI)—Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. has been rescheduled to speak March 25 at the University of Colorado, Dean John R. Little announced today.

King, winner of the 1964 Nobel Peace Prize, was to have given a lecture on the CU campus Feb. 3. But the date was cancelled because King was in jail at Selma, Ala., where he was leading a voting registration project.

Little said arrangements will be worked out later to handle an expected overflow crowd by setting up a closed-circuit telecast of the lecture to various locations on the Boulder and Denver campuses.

The speech, free and open to the public, will be at 8 p.m. in Macky Auditorium. The subject is "The Future of Integration."

Deadly Epidemic Fought Calmly Aboard Ship

By GERALD S. SNYDER
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — Far off the coast of Newfoundland last year, fear spread aboard a Norwegian vessel when a 60-year-old member of the crew died, a deck boy became ill with strange symptoms and later the master, the first officer, the chief engineer and seven more crewmen.

On the bridge of another "ship" far way, actually an old and grime-covered building on the edge of Manhattan, the danger of deadly epidemic was being fought calmly. Within hours of the first urgent request for assistance, a liner, the SS France, had transferred the ailing boy to its hospital and to the other stricken seamen went medical supplies for paratyphoid.

To the United States Coast Guard, on whose bridge the rescue was directed, went the satisfaction of another job well done.

Each day the Coast Guard, unheralded and generally unsung, protects ships over millions of square miles of ocean from disasters such as the one that faced the Norwegian vessel, the SS Margarita, that day.

The Coast Guard's "Medico" service flashes medical advice through the airways all hours of the day and night — for the relief of everything from appendicitis and shipboard accidents to premature births and even epidemics. Only about 5 per cent of all the ships at sea carry doctors.

The Medico Service, serving 95 per cent of all American ships and 65 per cent of all the foreign flags, works like this:

Dozens of Coast Guard ships patrol the major ship and aircraft routes surrounding the United States. Each is on a 21-day assignment patrolling in an area 210 miles square and ready for any emergency at sea.

The ships, as in the case of the Margarita, pick up distress calls from ships in need in their area nad these are transmitted to the nearest Coast Guard Medico Center — in Juneau, Alaska; Seattle, Wash.; San Francisco, Long Beach, Calif.; and Honolulu, Hawaii; Boston; Portsmouth, Va.; Miami, Fla.; New Orleans, La.; and New York City.

The Medico centers contact the nearest hospital of the U.S. Public Health Service and within minutes radio back to the Coast Guard ships the prescribed treatment. All ships carry standard medical chests aboard.

In the case of the Margarita, the Coast Guard used a $400,000 computer system to get the France's doctors over to the scene. This system around the clock plots and calculates the whereabouts of 900 ships in the North and South Atlantic, covering an area of about 4.5 million square miles.

A card is simply fed into the computer to "ask" what ships are nearest a particular point and the answer is given in less than a minute. One of those cards came up with the name of the France last year and thereby, no doubt, saved some lives and stopped an epidemic.

The Soviet Union, among a few countries, won't tell the Coast Guard where its ships are. The plan is entirely voluntarily.

The entire operation of getting the France on target was supervised from a raised platform, called a bridge, in a room of the U.S. Customs House in Manhattan, where the Third Coast Guard District is headquartered.

Last year, this district handled 340 Medico cases but the average, natioiwide, is three cases a day.

Credit for the origin of Medico—long before computers—can be traced to a day in 1911 when a young man named David Sarnoff (now General Sarnoff, head of the Radio Corporation of America) came aboard a ship at St. John's, Newfoundland, to install and operate the ship's new wireless equipment for a seal-hunting voyage to the Arctic.

One day the assistant chief wireless operator on a rocky, desolate island between Newfoundland and Labrador became sick and Sarnoff suggested that the ship's doctor might be able to help.

He did, transmitting medical advice across 500 miles of ice and sea. When the man's condition grew worse the ship took the doctor to him.

Medico today is little known among landlubbers. But it has become the "Guardian angel" of those on the water.

Deadly Epidemic Fought Calmly Aboard Ship

By GERALD S. SNYDER
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — Far off the coast of Newfoundland last year, fear spread aboard a Norwegian vessel when a 60-year-old member of the crew died, a deck boy became ill with strange symptoms and later the master, the first officer, the chief engineer and seven more crewmen.

On the bridge of another "ship" far way, actually an old and grime-covered building on the edge of Manhattan, the danger of deadly epidemic was being fought calmly. Within hours of the first urgent request for assistance, a liner, the SS France, had transferred the ailing boy to its hospital and to the other stricken seamen went medical supplies for paratyphoid.

To the United States Coast Guard, on whose bridge the rescue was directed, went the satisfaction of another job well done.

Each day the Coast Guard, unheralded and generally unsung, protects ships over millions of square miles of ocean from disasters such as the one that faced the Norwegian vessel, the SS Margarita, that day.

The Coast Guard's "Medico" service flashes medical advice through the airways all hours of the day and night — for the relief of everything from appendicitis and shipboard accidents to premature births and even epidemics. Only about 5 per cent of all the ships at sea carry doctors.

The Medico Service, serving 95 per cent of all American ships and 65 per cent of all the foreign flags, works like this:

Dozens of Coast Guard ships patrol the major ship and aircraft routes surrounding the United States. Each is on a 21-day assignment patrolling in an area 210 miles square and ready for any emergency at sea.

The ships, as in the case of the Margarita, pick up distress calls from ships in need in their area nad these are transmitted to the nearest Coast Guard Medico Center — in Juneau, Alaska; Seattle, Wash.; San Francisco, Long Beach, Calif.; and Honolulu, Hawaii; Boston; Portsmouth, Va.; Miami, Fla.; New Orleans, La.; and New York City.

The Medico centers contact the nearest hospital of the U.S. Public Health Service and within minutes radio back to the Coast Guard ships the prescribed treatment. All ships carry standard medical chests aboard.

In the case of the Margarita, the Coast Guard used a $400,000 computer system to get the France's doctors over to the scene. This system around the clock plots and calculates the whereabouts of 900 ships in the North and South Atlantic, covering an area of about 4.5 million square miles.

A card is simply fed into the computer to "ask" what ships are nearest a particular point and the answer is given in less than a minute. One of those cards came up with the name of the France last year and thereby, no doubt, saved some lives and stopped an epidemic.

The Soviet Union, among a few countries, won't tell the Coast Guard where its ships are. The plan is entirely voluntarily.

The entire operation of getting the France on target was supervised from a raised platform, called a bridge, in a room of the U.S. Customs House in Manhattan, where the Third Coast Guard District is headquartered.

Last year, this district handled 340 Medico cases but the average, natioiwide, is three cases a day.

Credit for the origin of Medico—long before computers—can be traced to a day in 1911 when a young man named David Sarnoff (now General Sarnoff, head of the Radio Corporation of America) came aboard a ship at St. John's, Newfoundland, to install and operate the ship's new wireless equipment for a seal-hunting voyage to the Arctic.

One day the assistant chief wireless operator on a rocky, desolate island between Newfoundland and Labrador became sick and Sarnoff suggested that the ship's doctor might be able to help.

He did, transmitting medical advice across 200 miles of ice and sea. When the man's condition grew worse the ship took the doctor to him.

Medico today is little known among landlubbers. But it has become the "Guardian angel" of those on the water.

This is the reason a lot of people 21 and over have started drinking milk again!

All adults need milk's rebuilding qualities. But all don't need its fat. So The Borden Company developed a special milk that's extra high on nourishment, extra low on fat. It's called Hi-Protein, and it's popular for four reasons:

1. 43% less fat than regular milk. You can build a reducing diet around this delicious skim.

2. 20% more protein than regular milk. Extra insurance against protein deficiency that can drag you down physically and mentally, too.

3. Rich in rebuilding minerals. One-fifth of your body's calcium needs replacing every year. Hi-Protein is rich in calcium—plus 20 other minerals and vitamins.

4. The fresh, full flavor of whole milk. You'll enjoy this milk as much as your children enjoy theirs!

BOTTLE SQUEEZE

NEW YORK (UIP) — There is some truth in the old gag about squeezing the last drop out of the bottle.

Richard L. Cheney, executive director of the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute, explained glass is elastic and "that it is quite simple to squeeze the first drop if not the last drop of a filled bottle."

To demonstrate the elasticity of glass, he inserted a small glass tube through the cork of a bottle filled with colored liquid. When he squeezed the bottle in his hand, the liquid rose into the tube. The elasticity of glass is being studied in research programs directed toward creation of lighter, stronger bottles and jars for the packaging of consumer products.

DEADLY LIGHT

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — U.S. Department of Agriculture scientists are experimenting with a method of insect control that uses flashes of light to kill pests. They have discovered that light flashes lasting less than one thousandth of a second cause cabbage worms to skip part of their life cycle. The worms' accelerated development puts them out of step with nature and results in early death. Unlike insecticides, the light flashes are not harmful to plants, the scientists report.

News Dominance Is Reported In Newspapers

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UPI) — The center of gravity in newspapers has shifted from editorial dominance to news dominance, Earl J. Johnson, editor and vice president of United Press International, said today in the William Allen White memorial lecture at the University of Kansas.

Johnson was given the 1965 National Citation for Journalistic Merit by the trustees of the White Foundation.

"One of the most important developments in my time," he said, "has been the emergence of two highly responsible and intensely competitive worldwide news services, the Associated Press and the United Press International. It is my conviction that their toe-to-toe competition and the balance of power that exists now in this area of news communicating have become the public's best guarantee of being accurately and promptly informed about world and national events."

Johnson recalled that William Allen White's Emporia Gazette was famous for its editor's provocative opinions and brilliant style.

"Mr. White was bigger than his newspaper," he said. "Today the best newspapers and the most successful ones are those which tell their readers the most about what is going on in the nation and the world and provide the most lucid explanations of what these events mean. In most cases the newspaper is now bigger than its owner.

"The center of gravity in newspapers has shifted from editorial dominance to news dominance, and this has marked a decline in the highly personalized kind of newspapering that we knew in the heyday of William Allen White.

"Journalism practiced mainly to persuade, and to mold opinion, has become the role of the professional editorial writer and the syndicated columnists."

Johnson described the growth of the two basic news services since World War I.

"Thus, the two primary news services are the main reliance of the printed and electronic news media," he said. "No other two organizations have as large an audience for news. The public's understanding of events in Washington, Moscow, the U.N. and Cape Kennedy, and the public's opinions about these events, are largely conditioned by what it reads and hears about them under the logotypes of UPI and AP."

Competition between the two services on world news fronts, Johnson said, is "the public's safeguard against lethargy or complacency in an area where the least let-down could be disastrous. . .because the temptation of news sources to manage the news for their own advantage is resisted most successfully in the presence of competitive reporters."

He said that although many of the smaller newspapers use only one service the editor can be sure that the service of his choice is alert and dependable because an aggressive rival is challenging it minute-by-minute in every area.

The memorial lecture and national citation are given here each year on the birthday of William Allen White, dean of American country editors, who died in 1944. The White Foundation makes a second annual award to an outstanding editor of a Kansas newspaper, but his name was not to be disclosed until later in today's ceremonies.

FULL WATCH DOG

PERTH, Scotland (UPI) — A "dangerous" Alsatian watch dog kept on the premises of W. A. Holden Co., local metal merchants, apparently was tamed by burglars Tuesday night who fed him dog-food while they stole $560 worth of copper wire.

SPACE AGE THEME

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (UPI) — Assemblies of God Vacation Bible school material will feature a space age theme and rocket motif for 1965, according to officials of the denomination's Church School Literature Department.

BOTTLE SQUEEZE

NEW YORK (UIP) — There is some truth in the old gag about squeezing the last drop out of the bottle.

Richard L. Cheney, executive director of the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute, explained glass is elastic and "that it is quite simple to squeeze the first drop if not the last drop of a filled bottle."

To demonstrate the elasticity of glass, he inserted a small glass tube through the cork of a bottle filled with colored liquid. When he squeezed the bottle in his hand, the liquid rose into the tube. The elasticity of glass is being studied in research programs directed toward creation of lighter, stronger bottles and jars for the packaging of consumer products.

DEADLY LIGHT

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — U.S. Department of Agriculture scientists are experimenting with a method of insect control that uses flashes of light to kill pests. They have discovered that light flashes lasting less than one thousandth of a second cause cabbage worms to skip part of their life cycle. The worms' accelerated development puts them out of step with nature and results in early death. Unlike insecticides, the light flashes are not harmful to plants, the scientists report.

News Dominance Is Reported In Newspapers

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UPI) — The center of gravity in newspapers has shifted from editorial dominance to news dominance, Earl J. Johnson, editor and vice president of United Press International, said today in the William Allen White memorial lecture at the University of Kansas.

Johnson was given the 1965 National Citation for Journalistic Merit by the trustees of the White Foundation.

"One of the most important developments in my time," he said, "has been the emergence of two highly responsible and intensely competitive worldwide news services, the Associated Press and the United Press International. It is my conviction that their toe-to-toe competition and the balance of power that exists now in this area of news communicating have become the public's best guarantee of being accurately and promptly informed about world and national events."

Johnson recalled that William Allen White's Emporia Gazette was famous for its editor's provocative opinions and brilliant style.

"Mr. White was bigger than his newspaper," he said. "Today the best newspapers and the most successful ones are those which tell their readers the most about what is going on in the nation and the world and provide the most lucid explanations of what these events mean. In most cases the newspaper is now bigger than its owner.

"The center of gravity in newspapers has shifted from editorial dominance to news dominance, and this has marked a decline in the highly personalized kind of newspapering that we knew in the heyday of William Allen White.

"Journalism practiced mainly to persuade, and to mold opinion, has become the role of the professional editorial writer and the syndicated columnists."

Johnson described the growth of the two basic news services since World War I.

"Thus, the two primary news services are the main reliance of the printed and electronic news media," he said. "No other two organizations have as large an audience for news. The public's understanding of events in Washington, Moscow, the U.N. and Cape Kennedy, and the public's opinions about these events, are largely conditioned by what it reads and hears about them under the logotypes of UPI and AP."

Competition between the two services on world news fronts, Johnson said, is "the public's safeguard against lethargy or complacency in an area where the least let-down could be disastrous. . .because the temptation of news sources to manage the news for their own advantage is resisted most successfully in the presence of competitive reporters."

He said that although many of the smaller newspapers use only one service the editor can be sure that the service of his choice is alert and dependable because an aggressive rival is challenging it minute-by-minute in every area.

The memorial lecture and national citation are given here each year on the birthday of William Allen White, dean of American country editors, who died in 1944. The White Foundation makes a second annual award to an outstanding editor of a Kansas newspaper, but his name was not to be disclosed until later in today's ceremonies.

FULL WATCH DOG

PERTH, Scotland (UPI) — A "dangerous" Alsatian watch dog kept on the premises of W. A. Holden Co., local metal merchants, apparently was tamed by burglars Tuesday night who fed him dog-food while they stole $560 worth of copper wire.

"Living for God in the Space Age" will give a new approach to the basic curriculum used in past years. It will be emphasized in publicity materials, attendance contests, opening services and commencement.

This is the reason a lot of people 21 and over have started drinking milk again!

All adults need milk's rebuilding qualities. But all don't need its fat. So The Borden Company developed a special milk that's extra high on nourishment, extra low on fat. It's called Hi-Protein, and it's popular for four reasons:

1. 43% less fat than regular milk. You can build a reducing diet around this delicious skim.

2. 28% more protein than regular milk. Extra insurance against protein deficiency that can drag you down physically and mentally, too.

3. Rich in rebuilding minerals. One-fifth of your body's calcium needs replacing every year. Hi-Protein is rich in calcium — plus 20 other minerals and vitamins.

4. The fresh, full flavor of whole milk. You'll enjoy this milk as much as your children enjoy theirs!

Drink three glasses a day at least. You'll be glad you got back to milk!

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The search operations have been called off for Lt. Edward A. Dickson of Wyoming, Pa., whose plane was shot down in the U.S. attack on North Viet Nam Sunday, the Defense Department said today.

Food Production Big Joy for Growing World

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The most serious problem in the world today, in the opinion of many sober scholars, can be summed up in the simple statement that there isn't enough food to go around.

Half the human race is perpetually hungry. Two-thirds of the world's people subsist on inadequate diets.

Titanic efforts have been made since World War II to solve this problem by increasing food production. The United States and other advanced nations have contributed billions of dollars worth of fertilizer, seed, machinery and irrigation equipment, and the skilled services of thousands of agricultural experts, to help undeveloped countries modernize their farming methods.

These efforts have borne fruit. World food production has been increasing at a rate of about 2 per cent a year.

But the hunger problem is not being solved. The amount of food per person has increased very little. In some countries it has actually declined. For the number of mouths to be fed has also been increasing at a rate of about 2 per cent a year.

Two per cent may not sound like much. But it is the fastest rate of population growth the world has ever experienced. For the first million years of the human race's development, population growth was held down by disease, famine and war to a fraction of 1 per cent a year. It was not until 1850 that world population reached the 1 billion mark.

Today, there are 3.3 billion people competing for the resources of planet earth. And new competitors are being born at a rate of nearly four per second.

This means the world is adding each year enough people to populate a nation the size of France.

The problem is compounded by the fact that most of the increase is occurring in countries which are least able to afford it. The economically - thriving nations of Western Europe have population growth rates well under 1 per cent. The U. S. growth rate is 1.6 per cent and shows signs of declining. But in dozens of undeveloped countries of Asia, Africa and Latin America, population is growing at rates in excess of 3 per cent.

Balance of Payment Deficit Plan Urged

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson today urged American tourists, bankers and businessmen to join the government in a 10-point program to stem the flow of U. S. dollars overseas and curb the balance of payments deficit.

In a special message to Congress, Johnson recommended that the present duty-free allowance of $100 for Americans travelling abroad be cut to $50. He also advocated a tax on long-term bank loans to foreigners and a campaign to get businessmen to limit their investments overseas.

Artist Refuses To Wear Old Type Clothing

By HOLLIE I. WEST

COLUMBIA, Calif. (AP) — Artist Charles Surendorf is locked in battle with the state of California because he refuses to doff his modern clothes for gold rush garb in a Mother Lode state park.

It looks, however, as if Surendorf and his 500 paintings will be tossed out of the park gallery at Columbia in the Sierras near Sonora, 150 miles east of San Francisco.

Surendorf, 59, favors slacks and walking shorts that would have drawn caustic comments from the grizzled miners who worked the Mother Lode — the rich vein of gold whose discovery set off the 1849 gold rush.

His stubborness has dumped his case into the hands of the state attorney general.

"I'd be going along with the state creating a playland — a pesudo-Disneyland — when this is supposed to be a historical park," Surendorf explains. He contends that only a few people in the restored mining town dress in the '49er style.

The issue is simple, according to Earl P. Hansen, deputy chief of park management for the state. The one-year lease Surendorf signed for his gallery in Columbia State Park requires that he dress like a '49er. He first was served with eviction papers on Dec. 15, and again Tuesday. State officials give him until April 1 to depart.

Hansen says others who manage concessions in the park dress in gold mining era costumes.

Surendorf conceded he had signed the lease with knowledge of the costume clause. "But you either sign it or else," he lamented. "You're up against a monster organization."

The deeply tanned artist said he doesn't want to be told how to dress.

"No two miners dressed alike — they wore whatever they could get."

Surendorf doesn't want to leave the park because the Mother Lode country is the chief subject of his painting and park tourists are a prime source for sales. He came to Columbia in 1937 and has lived here since 1946 with his wife and four children.

Some of the men wear string ties, vests that could be found in any department store and blue jeans, he said. The women wear long dresses.

Last year was the first year costumes were required. "There was a mutual agreement that we try this," said Hansen.

After the attorney general's pending review, it seems a court case is the next step. American Civil Liberties Union lawyers say they can offer Surendorf no help because of the obvious costume clause.

The Mother Lode artist of Columbia is resigned to quitting the gallery. "But I won't leave Columbia," Surendorf says. "My home's here. My children are in school here and I've had my business here for 18 years."

Major Crime Boosted In New York Subway

NEW YORK (AP) — Major crime in the city's subways rose by 52.5 per cent last year, reports Joseph E. O'Grady, Transit Authority chief.

O'Grady said Tuesday that serious complaints totaled 1,707 in 1964 compared with 1,119 in 1963. Arrests for such crimes increased from 280 in 1963 to 339 last year.

The crimes include robberies, muggings and assaults with weapons.

Fair Housing Law Bill Given New Approval

DENVER (AP) — A bill that could strengthen Colorado's fair housing law was extending it to owner-occupied homes won approval of the House Judiciary Committee today by 8 to 3 vote.

Rep. Isaac Moore, D-Denver, said that putting the bill up o the books would wipe out 90 per cent of discrimination complaints without action in court for the Anti-Discrimination Commission.

The vote which sent the bill to the floor followed nearly an hour of discussion which brought ruffled tempers and a complaint by Moore that other committee members were "nit picking."

His complaint followed a question by Rep. Keith Singer, D-Arvada, about jurisdiction of the commission and the courts under the bill.

Rep. John R. Mackie, R-Longmont, told Moore, "We're not nit picking. A lot of us are just as interested in this bill as you are."

Mackie objected to voting a number of word changes in the bill all in one vote. Separate votes were approved byt Mackie failed in his attempt to specify that real estate agents would have to transmit only bonifide offers to sellers of homes.

Mackie, Singer and Rep. Ralph Colo, R-Littleton, voted against sending the bill to the floor.

The bill would permit a person to go directly to district court as well to the commission if he ran into discrimination in the sale, rental or lease of a home. A person found to have violated the act could be fined by the court up to $500. A person who refused to sell to the person filing the complain after a court had found violation of the act could be required to pay damages.

Major provisions of the bill have the backing of minority groups.

The bill now goes to the House Rules Committee.

Food Production Big Joy for Growing World

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The most serious problem in the world today, in the opinion of many sober scholars, can be summed up in the simple statement that there isn't enough food to go around.

Half the human race is perpetually hungry. Two-thirds of the world's people subsist on inadequate diets.

Titanic efforts have been made since World War II to solve this problem by increasing food production. The United States and other advanced nations have contributed billions of dollars worth of fertilizer, seed, machinery and irrigation equipment, and the skilled services of thousands of agricultural experts, to help undeveloped countries modernize their farming methods.

These efforts have borne fruit. World food production has been increasing at a rate of about 2 per cent a year.

But the hunger problem is not being solved. The amount of food per person has increased very little. In some countries it has actually declined. For the number of mouths to be fed has also been increasing at a rate of about 2 per cent a year.

Two per cent may not sound like much. But it is the fastest rate of population growth the world has ever experienced. For the first million years of the human race's development, population growth was held down by disease, famine and war to a fraction of 1 per cent a year. It was not until 1850 that world population reached the 1 billion mark.

Today, there are 3.3 billion people competing for the resources of planet earth. And new competitors are being born at a rate of nearly four per second.

This means the world is adding each year enough people to populate a nation the size of France.

The problem is compounded by the fact that most of the increase is occurring in countries which are least able to afford it. The economically - thriving nations of Western Europe have population growth rates well under 1 per cent. The U. S. growth rate is 1.6 per cent and shows signs of declining. But in dozens of undeveloped countries of Asia, Africa and Latin America, population is growing at rates in excess of 3 per cent.

Hanover News

By MRS. RUTH CHISMAN

There was an error in the Hanover News about the Bookmobile that stops at Wigwam. It was there Jan. 30 and will stop every other week. Then next stop will be Feb. 13, and then every two weeks thereafter.

David Davidson, Frontier Air Lines pilot from Longmont, will be the guest speaker at the Pioneers for Christ banquet Saturday, Feb. 13, at the Chicken Shack in Colorado Springs. He will be at the Hanover Church and deliver the message Sunday morning, Feb. 14. Mr. Davidson is a very interesting speaker. All are invited to attend.

The community ladies worked again last Wednesday, Feb. 3, on more comforts and small baby quilts for the Indians, and also for Brockhurst Boys Ranch. Cookies were also collected and sent to the Boys Ranch. There has been some clothing sent in also, to be sent where it is needed. Mrs. Ruppert, of Colorado Springs, read about our project and wanted to help out. Mrs. Ruppert's folks lived in the Drennan community in the '20s. They were Mr. and Mrs. Fritz.

Sympathy is extended to the family of Dr. Allison Beckman, who died in Colorado Springs Wednesday, Feb. 3. Dr. Beckman sang in our brother Fred Dankell's quartet in Denver before coming to Colorado Springs, where he had been a chiropractor for 40 years.

Sympathy is also extended to the relatives of Mrs. Perriman of Fountain, who died Thursday, Feb. 4. The funeral was held in Colorado Springs, Feb. 8. Mrs. Perriman was the mother of Mrs. Allen Dickson, who was formerly Mrs. Ruth Marders of Fountain. The Perrimans have lived east of Fountain several years and many bought apples from them.

Another meeting was held at the Hanover Church Sunday evening with a teachers' training film strip being shown by John Trusdle. These are very helpful for the teachers and workers.

The older ones who have lived here the longest were saddened to hear of the death of Ab Holmes, who was truly one of the pioneers. He died in Colorado Springs and was buried before several knew it. The Holmes lived, as is known to most folks yet, at the old Holmes ranch, south of Hanover. Ab's mother and father when newly maried came there years ago, and settled when the Indians were still here. Mrs. Holmes was still living when the homesteaders began settling the Hanover community. She had many interesting things to tell after the Holmes sold their place here. They later lived in Fountain River Valley, near Wigwam, before going to Colorado Springs. The Holmes ranch has later been owned by Drinkard-Emmett, Appelts, now Lawrence and Stiegall.

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Robin, David and Mark, of Colorado Springs, attended church at Hanover Sunday and had dinner with the W. D. Rebles. Lawrence and Frances and baby daughter called in the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Hooper Baker and son, of Pueblo, spent the weekend at the Bill Bakers. They also had other guests from Pueblo, including the former Mary Hussey, who used to live here. The Bill Bakers have been entertaining the in.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hartley, Mary Jane and Mrs. Bertie Hartley, of Colorado Springs, visited Grace Finch Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Chisman, Brenda and Sheryl, of Colorado Springs, visited the Chismans and Grace Finch. They and Roy Chismans had dinner with Mrs. Finch.

The young folks' Pioneers for Christ Group plan a tobogganing outing at Camp Iana Saturday, Feb. 27. They plan to leave around 10 a.m. and take a sack lunch.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Chisman visited the Robert Chismans of Pueblo Friday. On Saturday Robert Chismans of Pueblo Friday. On Saturday Robert and Marvin and one of Marvin's cousins came out and helped grind feed.

Don and Elaine Smith, of California, are planning to move back to Colorado in May. Elaine is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest DeGroot.

The El Paso Mutual Telephone Co. has been doing a lot of work on their line, preparing it for a dial system later.

Mrs. Joe Robertson and Mrs. Ethel Milne visited the Roy Chismans Tuesday evening.

The Intermediate Room is using a TV for a period in the morning, for part of their schedule.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Reble, Virginia and Timmy had lunch with Mrs. Maude Patterson Saturday, Feb. 6.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Day and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Millions have been helping Jim and Netta Bell Day at their house they purchased in Range View. They planned to move in over the weekend.

Interior Office Announces New Savings Plan

By W. JOYNES MACFARLAN

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Interior Department has an economy program under way affecting its operations in 25 states. The program is designed to bring annual savings of at least $4.1 million when completed in the next 17 months.

This was disclosed today in a summary of a series of office consolidations, closings and other organization changes made available in response to a reporter's inquiry.

The department said that in addition to the financial savings the program would permit about 1,000 people to be shifted to new or higher priority work. It added that affected employes will be given every possible opportunity for alternative employment.

A department statement said: "Most of the offices are small and will involve shifts of work to other offices or consolidations to reduce overhead and other administrative expenses.

"These economy steps have been carefully worked out to preserve a high level of public service. The changes will be made gradually over the next 17 months to reduce the local impact of the actions and permit orderly shifting of people in whom other jobs as vacancies occur.

The summary of the actions taken in recent weeks or planned during the next 17 months, as they affect individual states, includes:

Colorado: Close out Creede National Fish hatchery by 1967. Consolidate Bureau of Land Management district offices in Montrose and Durango at Montrose by July 1968, with a sub-office and small resource management staff to be retained at Durango. Merge grazing districts 5 and 6 by July 1966 and grazing districts 1 and 6 by the same date (no offices involved).

Hanover News

By MRS. RUTH CHISMAN

There was an error in the Hanover News about the Bookmobile that stops at Wigwam. It was there Jan. 30 and will stop every other week. Then next stop will be Feb. 13, and then every two weeks thereafter.

David Davidson, Frontier Air Lines pilot from Longmont, will be the guest speaker at the Pioneers for Christ banquet Saturday, Feb. 13, at the Chicken Shack in Colorado Springs. He will be at the Hanover Church and deliver the message Sunday morning, Feb. 14. Mr. Davidson is a very interesting speaker. All are invited to attend.

The community ladies worked again last Wednesday, Feb. 3, on more comforts and small baby quilts for the Indians, and also for Brockhurst Boys Ranch. Cookies were also collected and sent to the Boys Ranch. There has been some clothing sent in also, to be sent where it is needed. Mrs. Ruppert, of Colorado Springs, read about our project and wanted to help out. Mrs. Ruppert's folks lived in the Drennan community in the '20s. They were Mr. and Mrs. Fritz.

Sympathy is extended to the family of Dr. Allison Beckman, who died in Colorado Springs Wednesday, Feb. 3. Dr. Beckman sang in our brother Fred Dankell's quartet in Denver before coming to Colorado Springs, where he had been a chiropractor for 40 years.

Sympathy is also extended to the relatives of Mrs. Perriman of Fountain, who died Thuraday, Feb. 4. The funeral was held in Colorado Springs, Feb. 8. Mrs. Perriman was the mother of Mrs. Allen Dickson, who was formerly Mrs. Ruth Marders of Fountain. The Perrimans have lived east of Fountain several years and many bought apples from them.

Another meeting was held at the Hanover Church Sunday evening with a teachers' training film strip being shown by John Trusdle. These are very helpful for the teachers and workers.

The older ones who have lived here the longest were saddened to hear of the death of Ab Holmes, who was truly one of the pioneers. He died in Colorado Springs and was buried before several knew it. The Holmes lived, as is known to most folks yet, at the old Holmes ranch, south of Hanover. Ab's mother and father when newly maried came there years ago, and settled when the Indians were still here. Mrs. Holmes was still living when the homesteaders began settling the Hanover community. She had many interesting things to tell after the Holmes sold their place here. They later lived in Fountain River Valley, near Wigwam, before going to Colorado Springs. The Holmes ranch has later been owned by Drinkard-Emmett, Appelts, now Lawrence and Stiegall.

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Reble, David and Mark, of Colorado Springs, attended church at Hanover Sunday and had dinner with the W. D. Reblas. Lawrence and Frances and baby daughter called in the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Harper Baker and son, of Pueblo, spent the weekend at the Bill Bakers. They also had other guests from Pueblo, including the former Mary Sumey, who used to live here. The Bill Bakers have been entertaining the flu.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hartley, Mary Jane and Mrs. Bertie Hartley, of Colorado Springs, visited Grace Finch Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Chisman, Brenda and Sheryl, of Colorado Springs, visited the Chismans and Grace Finch. They and Roy Chismans had dinner with Mrs. Finch.

The young folks' Pioneers for Christ Group plan a tobogganing outing at Camp Iana Saturday, Feb. 27. They plan to leave around 10 a.m. and take a sack lunch.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Chisman visited the Robert Chismans of Pueblo Friday. On Saturday Robert Chismans of Pueblo Friday. On Saturday Robert and Marvin and one of Marvin's cousins came out and helped grind feed.

Don and Elaine Smith, of California, are planning to move back to Colorado in May. Elaine is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest DeGroot.

The El Paso Mutual Telephone Co. has been doing a lot of work on their line, preparing it for a dial system later.

Mrs. Joe Robertson and Mrs. Ethel Milne visited the Roy Chismans Tuesday evening.

The Intermediate Room is using a TV for a period in the morning, for part of their schedule.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Reble, Virginia and Timmy had lunch with Mrs. Maude Patterson Saturday, Feb. 6.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Day and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Millions have been helping Jim and Netta Bell Day at their house they purchased in Range View. They planned to move in over the weekend.

Interior Office Announces New Savings Plan

By W. JOYNES MACFARLAN

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Interior Department has an economy program under way affecting its operations in 25 states. The program is designed to bring annual savings of at least $4.1 million when completed in the next 17 months.

This was disclosed today in a summary of a series of office consolidations, closings and other organization changes made available in response to a reporter's inquiry.

The department said that in addition to the financial savings the program would permit about 1,000 people to be shifted to new or higher priority work. It added that affected employes will be given every possible opportunity for alternative employment.

A department statement said. "Most of the offices are small and will involve shifts of work to other offices or consolidations to reduce overhead and other administrative expenses.

"These economy steps have been carefully worked out to preserve a high level of public service. The changes will be made gradually over the next 17 months to reduce the local impact of the actions and permit orderly shifting of people into other jobs as vacancies occur.

Some of the economies are possible because of expanding use of computers and automatic data processing."

The summary of the actions taken in recent weeks or planned during the next 17 months, as they affect individual states, includes:

Colorado: Close out Creede National Fish hatchery by 1965. Consolidate Bureau of Land Management district offices in Montrose and Durango at Montrose by July 1965, with a sub-office and small resource management staff to be retained at Durango. Merge grazing districts 5 and 8 by July 1965 and grazing districts 1 and 6 by the same date (no offices involved).

Consolidation of Unions Is Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United Auto Workers Union has made a proposal to the International Union of Electrical Workers which UAW President Walter P. Reuther says "would be in the direction of a consolidation."

But Reuther, talking with newsmen Tuesday at the White House after a call on President Johnson, declined to give details of the UAW proposal. He said it still had to be acted on by the IUE executive board.

A merger of the two AFL-CIO affiliates would create an organization with 1.6 million members. Only the Teamsters Union claims more members.

Tourist Season Brings Out Loch Ness Monster

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

Almost as regularly as clockwork since 1933, some one reports seeing a strange creature cavorting in the deep waters of Loch Ness in the eastern Scottish Highlands. It's probably only a coincidence that most of these sightings come around the tourist season.

The creature comes in many shapes and sizes. It's been described as looking like a serpent or giant eel, a hippopotamus, a seal, and a whale. But it usually seems to have humps—and lots of them.

Once "Nessie," or L.N.M. as the Loch Ness Monster is more familiarly known in the region, was said to have been seen leaving the land-locked lake and crossing a road with a lamb in its mouth. But even those who believe there is a monster in the lake discount this tale.

The monster has been "seen" by pilots in airplanes, by constructing workers near the lake, by townspeople and even by some tourists.

Late Sighting

In one of the last reported sightings, three forestry workers swore they saw Nessie shortly after hearing an explosion from rock blasting operations nearby. According to their account, published in the local Inverness press, the three saw the monster "cruise slowly on the calm surface, race like a speed boat on a parallel line with the shore, causing a terrific wash, and finally sink quietly out of sight."

Nessie was described as being gray-colored and about 15 feet long. It didn't have any humps on this occasion but on others it has had as many as six and was much longer.

The people of the Royal and Ancient Burgh of Inverness take their monster seriously. They put its picture in guidebooks, report its appearances in the press, sell small porcelian souvenir models—topped by a Scottish beret—and feature it on picture postcards saying: "Come on up, the weather is fine."

The Inverness Town Council's guide book advises tourists not to discount the possibility that there IS a monster in the lake. "Many who have gone there just to revel in the mountain and loch scenery have seen a mysterious shape break the water when they were least expecting it," the guide book says solemnly.

Pictures?

There are numerous alleged photographs of Nessie around. But to date the basic requirements for scientific proof are still missing. No one has come up yet with one piece of tangible evidence in the form of a bone, a scale, a hair or anything else capable of laboratory analysis.

The modern day monster (the legend goes back hundreds of years) came into being 32 years ago when some one reported seeing a "monster" on the lake.

Encouraging also is the belief that there may, indeed, be a monster under water is the fact that Loch Ness hundreds of years ago was connected by a canal with the open seas. Many people argue that the lake, about 30 square miles in size and more than 70 feet deep, could still be connected with the ocean by underwater passages through which Nessie could have easily come.

But whether the tourist is lucky enough to spot the monster or not, there is much to see and do. Inverness, the capital of the highlands, is the site of ancient castles, battlegrounds, churches and other historic and archeological treasures.

There are golfing (naturally), fishing, swimming, riding, hiking and other land and sea activities. There are numerous special events during the summer months.

Inverness lies about 185 miles west of Aberdeen and about 170 miles north of Glasglow. It also has an airport.

Deadlock in Talk With Printers Seen

NEW YORK (AP) — Negotiators for the printers' union, asserting that a deadlock existed, broke off contract talks today with the Publishers Association of New York City.

Bertram A. Powers, president of New York Typographical Union No. 6, said he would notify international offices of his union of the impasse and expected that they would intervene.

A strike by printers on Dec. 8, 1962, resulted in a 114-day shut-down of the city's newspapers. The present contract, covering some 2,800 printers employed on the seven papers represented by the publishers association, expires March 28.

John J. Gaberia, chief negotiator for the publishers association, said he felt that Powers had "made a mistake."

"We do not agree that the negotiations had reached the position described by Mr. Powers. We believe continued talks could be fruitful," he said.

The publishers have offered a three-year contract with a $3.59 package in each of the three years, covering wage increases and other benefits.

The union is demanding, in addition to other benefits, a $15 weekly wage increase, in a one year contract, with a 7% per cent differential for printers employed on the overnight shift.

The publishers association represents The New York Times, The New York Herald Tribune, The Daily News, The New York Journal-American, The New York World-Telegram and The Sun, The Long Island Daily Press and The Long Island Star-Journal.

The New York Post withdrew from the association during the last strike and now negotiates separately.

NEW YORK (AP) — Negotiators for the printers' union, asserting that a deadlock existed, broke off contract talks today with the Publishers Association of New York City.

Bertram A. Powers, president of New York Typographical Union No. 6, said he would notify international offices of his union of the impasse and expected that they would intervene.

A strike by printers on Dec. 8, 1962, rsulted in a 114-day shut-down of the city's newspapers. The present contract, covering some 2,800 printers employed on the seven papers represented by the publishers association, expires March 30.

John J. Gaherin, chief negotiator for the publishers association, said he felt that Powers had "made a mistake."

"We do not agree that the negotiations had reached the position described by Mr. Powers. We believe continued talks could be fruitful," he said.

The publishers have offered a three-year contract with a $3.50 package in each of the three years, covering wage increases and other benefits.

The union is demanding, in addition to other benefits, a $15 weekly wage increase, in a one year contract, with a 7½ per cent differential for printers employed on the overnight shift.

The publishers association represents The New York Times, The New York Herald Tribune, The Daily News, The New York Journal-American, The New York World-Telegram and The Sun, The Long Island Daily Press and The Long Island Star-Journal.

The New York Post withdrew from the association during the last strike and now negotiates separately.

Robert Kennedy Is Battling for Demo Control

By ROBERT T. GRAY , N.

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — U.S. Sen. Robert F. Kennedy was publicly and aggressively in the middle of a power struggle for control of the New York State Democratic organization today. He plunged in with a harsh letter accusing the party's new legislative leaders of dealing out patronage jobs "like so many cards off the top of the deck."

The leaders responded angrily that Kennedy was entirely wrong in charging them with distributing jobs on the basis of politics rather than merit.

Kennedy's letter came six days after a long, hard battle between two Democratic factions had been considered settled and after five weeks of Kennedy insistence that he had no intention of becoming involved in the state-level dispute.

The new senator reopened the fight Wednesday as he told Senate Majority Leader Joseph Zaretzki and Assembly Speaker Anthony J. Travia:

"I feel constrained to bring to your attention my opposition to filling jobs without paying careful attention to the ability of the men selected to do the job. Dealing the jobs out like so many cards off the top of the deck is intolerable and can only contribute to the loss of our party's newly gained majority position."

Kennedy's hard-hitting entry into the dying battle was seen as a move to buttress his forces in a showdown meeting of the State Democratic Committee next Thursday.

Kennedy is believed to want to build a power base from which to seek the Democratic nomination for president in the 1970s.

There is expected from next week's meeting a clear-cut indication of whether Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York City or Kennedy is to be considered the state leading Democrat.

Zaretzki and Travia are allied with Wagner.

State Chairman William H. McKeon was the field commander for the Kennedy forces. Wagner has demanded McKeon's resignation on the ground the chairman's support of one faction in the dispute has destroyed his effectiveness as a state leader.

McKeon called the showdown meeting with confidence he had enough support to win backing of a majority of the 360-member committee.

Zaretzki said he had made only one patronage appointment, and Travia said he had not made any.

The speaker declined further comment until he studied the letter. But it was learned he was angry at Kennedy's charges and at what he considered the senator's patronizing attitude in describing the need for a qualified staff in a legislative operation.

Kennedy suggested to the leaders that they embark upon "a realistic talent search" for members of the legislative staff.

He said the late President John F. Kennedy — brother of the senator — had conducted a nonpartisan talent search in 1960.

Zaretzki replied: "I am sure that you already know from your brief experience in the legislative branch of the federal government that there is a difference between legislative staff positions and positions of administrative duties in the executive branch of the government."

One-Shot Measles Vaccine Developed

NEW YORK (AP) — A new one-shot measles vaccine can virtually eliminate the four million or more cases that develop each year among American children, its manufacturers claim.

The live-virus vaccine was put on the market Wednesday with claims of being 99 per cent effective. It has been licensed by the U.S. Public Health Service.

The vaccine is the fifth to be put in doctor's hands since 1963.

The new one uses a weakened strain of the measles virus and is produced by the Pitman-Moore Division of the Dow Chemical Co.

Dr. Saul Krugman of the New York University School of Medicine told a news conference: "There really is no longer any excuse for any child to have to endure the disease (measles)."

Los Alamos, provided three-day visits enabling students almost mandatory then.

Would a man be justified in shooting his wife because she wore curlers at the breakfast table? There are more than 1,000,000 books in the Harvard Law School Library, but not one of them even considers that question.

The reason is that the answer is so obviously "No." There simply is not enough room for argument. A question can become a legal issue only if it is close.

For example, suppose the husband claims that the shooting was accidental ("I didn't know the gun was loaded"), or that he fired in self-defense ("She hit me first with a rolling pin"). Then there are, indeed, legal issues — issues close enough for the lawyers to really argue about.

Is this due to a sheer love of hairsplitting on the part of lawyers? Not at all. Law is like that because life is like that. Anyone who has watched a Little League baseball games knows that it is the "close ones" which start the squabbles and test the mettle of the umpire.

And the world of law is, largely, a world of close ones. It is a world where ifs and maybes abound, and yeses and noes are few and far between. The law, willy-nilly, must provide answers to questions like these:

How much wear and tear is "reasonable"?

How fast is "with all deliverate speed"?

When does a man cross the line between "high" and "drunk"?

No wonder one harrassed judge said that deciding such questions is like deciding "when a young lady gets to be an old maid."

Perhaps the questions are closest of all in the cases that reach the United States Supreme Court. Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes once estimated that at least one third of the Court's cases are so close that unanimous decisions are humanly impossible.

So why shouldn't hairs be split in the pursuit of justice?

"Truth," said Historian Ernest Renan, "lies in fine distinctions."

Girls, Think Twice Before You Say 'No' to Cupid

By JERRY KLEIN

NEW YORK (NEA) — Listen, girls, if Cupid shoots an arrow at your heart this Valentine's Day, you'd better think twice about giving him the brushoff!

History is full of females who said "No, thanks!" to proposals from men who worshipped them. All too often these rejected Romeos went on to fame and fortune, while the woman who spurned them lived to regret it.

After all, did you ever hear of Ellen Sewell, Margaret Belches or Desiree Artaut? Probably not. Yet if these gals had been a little wiser in the affairs of the heart, they might still be remembered as the wives, respectively, of philosopher Henry Thoreau, writer Sir Walter Scott and composer Peter Tchaikovsky.

Sad to say, they declined the hands of these gentlemen—every one of whom went on to big things without them!

Do any bells ring when you read the names of Adele Dalvin, Lette Buff or Rebecca Pardee?

Alexandre Dumas, highly successful French novelist, asked Miss Dalvin to be his love, but she declined. Lette Buff turned her back on Johann Wolfgang Goethe, who became one of the world's greatest poets and philosophers. Rebecca Pardee is remembered only because she rejected a young Yankee lawyer named Noah Webster who became famous as a compiler of dictionaries.

Refused in marriage by Anne Coleman, James Buchanan never married, but went on to become America's only bachelor president.

Rebecca Burwell lost her chance to become First Lady of the United States when she said "no" to the love light in Thomas Jefferson's eyes. And Catherine Floyd did the same when she spurned James Madison.

Before the Scottish poet Robert Burns publised his first professional work, he was "seriously smitten by the charms" of a local farmer's daughter named Ellison Bagbie, but she refused to give him her heart.

Soon the darling of all Scotland, Burns had many a love affair and, before long, a wife, Jean Armour.

Another man "richly blessed with the friendship of many noble women" was the composer, Ludwig Van Beethoven. His name will live forever in the annals of music, but the woman who rejected him — Magdalena Willmann—is forgotten.

The great lover and romantic poet Lord Byron experienced "his strongest passion" as a youth fell in love with a Mary Ann Charworth.

However, she was not flattered by the romantic attentions of "the lame boy" and so refused the youth who became one of the most sought - after males of all time.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D., Ph.D.

Helene is like millions of neurotic Americans who swill down tranquilizers by the tons! They prod themselves AFTER the quitting whistle blows, which is a sure sign of a neurotic. Smart folks set down their suitcase after they get on a train or plane. But neurotics still carry theirs!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph. D., M. D.

CASE V-410: Helene Z., aged 34 is a jittery wife.

"Dr. Crane," she asked during a forum discussion, wouldn't it be a great boon to the human race if we could eliminate tension?

"Millions of people are neurotic, as you just mentioned in your speech today.

"And they develop peptic ulcers, spastic colitis, angina pectoris and other nervous ailments.

"Which is why they become tranquilizer addicts!

"So wouldn't it be wonderful if everything were calm and peaceful?"

No, it would be terrible!

For peace and quiet are a synonym of a sleepy, non-productive person or nation!

Take your choice — it's a matter of creation vs. stagnation!

And creation requires tension, raiesd blood pressure, stage fright and "cold" sweat.

You can exude buckets of hot sweat in a Turkish bath or lolling in the sun on a humid summer afternoon.

Meanwhile, you haven't created a single shoe or loaf of bread or public speech or poem!

So be grateful for the "cold" variety of perspiration since that menas you are in gear and moving upward on the rungs of the ladder to success.

Indeed, one of the greatest boons for civilization would be 10,000,000 more Americans with peptic ulcers!

For peptic ulcers are the badge of a go-getter in a fighting arena, whether that be business, the professions or the boxing ring.

Actually, however, God Almighty intended us to put on the pressure at the office, store or factory, but then lay aside those productive tensions when the quitting whistle blows.

The people who develop neurotic symptoms haven't learned the deft art of letting go of their tension when the day's battle has ended.

Tensions (and worries) are actually the greates producers of advancing civilization.

But teach yourself to set them down after 5 p.m.

A suitcase or traveling bag is also a wholesome aid for going places, but when you get on the train or plane, you smart folks set them down, don't you?

Alas, a lot of people still figuratively hold their suitcases after they get on the plane or train!

Which means, they remain tense, so they chain smoke or swill down hard liquor to anesthetize their brain.

Or they guzzle tranquilizers and sleeping pills.

But they foolishly goad their tension chemically by caffaeine drinks! These zoom their blood pressure and gastric juice secretion, thus making it seem more necessary for the use of tranquilizers and antacid pills!

Get hep! Eliminate your chemical prods to tension, for business competition spurs you onward without additional goads.

The learn to cultivate a "cosmic outlook" so you can dwarf your petty problems against the backdrop of eternity.

Indulge in more backyard play with your children. And get into genial activity in a local church.

Pep Pills Pose Serious Danger, Probers Told

By HARRY KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — They call them yellow jackets and red devils and other picturesque names.

But from New York to California, from campus to slum hangout, they can mean trouble and wrecked lives.

A youthful psychiatrist, who worked his way in among goofball and pep pill addicts and attended their "spree" parties gave the House Interstate Commerce Committee a vivid picture of the problem Tuesday.

"The problem is like an iceberg, most of it being under the surface," Dr. John B. Griffith, director of the Oklahoma Mental Health Planning Committee, told congressmen.

They are considering a bill aimed at curbing the bootleg traffic in depressant and stimulant drugs specifically barbiturates and amphetamines. Griffith was invited to tell them about his research project in and around Oklahoma City.

He found that Oklahoma City has only three dozen or so hard narcotics addicts; it has 1,000 to 5,000 persons addicted to barbiturates and amphetamines.

The misuse of the drugs — valuable medical aids when prescribed by a physician — was not confined to "people who don't take a bath or don't go to church," said Griffith.

One problem, Griffith said, is when a physician writes a prescription that can be filled indefinitely for an amphetamine to help a person lose weight.

The patient keeps refilling it, said Griffith, and "they feel so good they become habituated to it and go down hill."

This, he said, is "usually the root where middle and upper class people are concerned."

Griffith noted that college students have been known to use the pep pills to help them cram during exams. One student Griffith found out about "was making $50 a week selling the pills during exams. He was using his mother's prescription."

BIG STRETCH

HOUSTON (UPI(— If tiny strands of the chemical which directs man's body - forming process were stretched end to end over a lifetime production, the strand would extend about 5 billion miles.

Dr. Wendell Stanley, a Nobel prize winner for chemistry, made that point in a biochemistry conference to illustrate the enormous job of copying that molecules of deoxyribonucleic acid (DNA) must do. The molecules contain the "message" that determines how cells form that make up the body. Each molecule must make copies of itself to supply new cells with DNA.

Girls, Think Twice Before You Say 'No' to Cupid

By JERRY KLEIN

NEW YORK (NEA) — Listen, girls, if Cupid shoots an arrow at your heart this Valentine's Day, you'd better think twice about giving him the brushoff!

History is full of females who said "No, thanks!" to proposals from men who worshipped them. All too often these rejected Romeos went on to fame and fortune, while the woman who spurned them lived to regret it.

After all, did you ever hear of Ellen Sewell, Margaret Belches or Desiree Artemt? Probably not. Yet if these gals had been a little wiser in the affairs of the heart, they might still be remembered as the wives, respectively, of philosopher Henry Thoreau, writer Sir Walter Scott and composer Peter Tchaikovsky.

Sad to say, they declined the hands of these gentlemen—every one of whom went on to big things without them!

Do any bells ring when you read the names of Adele Dalvin, Lette Buff or Rebecca Pardee?

Alexandre Dumas, highly successful French novelist, asked Miss Dalvin to be his love, but she declined. Lette Buff turned her back on Johann Wolfgang Goethe, who became one of the world's greatest poets and philosophers. Rebecca Pardee is remembered only because she rejected a young Yankee lawyer named Noah Webster who became famous as a compiler of dictionaries.

Refused in marriage by Anne Coleman, James Buchanan never married, but went on to become America's only bachelor president.

Rebecca Burwell lost her chance to become First Lady of the United States when she said "no" to the love light in Thomas Jefferson's eyes. And Catherine Floyd did the same when she spurned James Madison.

Before the Scottish poet Robert Burns publised his first professional work, he was "seriously smitten by the charms" of a local farmer's daughter named Ellison Bagbie, but she refused to give him her heart.

Soon the darling of all Scotland, Burns had many a love affair and, before long, a wife, Jean Armour.

Another man "richly blessed with the friendship of many noble women" was the composer, Ludwig Van Beethoven. His name will live forever in the annals of music, but the woman who rejected him — Magdalena Willmann—is forgotten.

The great lover and romantic poet Lord Byron experienced "his strongest passion" as a youth fell in love with a Mary Ann Charworth.

However, she was not flattered by the romantic attentions of "the lame boy" and so refused the youth who became one of the most sought - after males of all time.

WORRY CLINIC

Helene is like millions of neurotic Americans who swill down tranquilizers by the tons! They prod themselves AFTER the quitting whistle blows, which is a sure sign of a neurotic. Smart folks set down their suitcase after they get on a train or plane. But neurotics still carry theirs!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph. D., M. D.

CASE V-410: Helene Z., aged 34 is a jittery wife.

"Dr. Crane," she asked during a forum discussion, wouldn't it be a great boon to the human race if we could eliminate tension?

"Millions of people are neurotic, as you just mentioned in your speech today.

"And they develop peptic ulcers, spastic colitis, angina pectoris and other nervous ailments.

"Which is why they become tranquilizer addicts!

"So wouldn't it be wonderful if everything were calm and peaceful?"

No, it would be terrible!

For peace and quiet are a synonym of a sleepy, non-productive person or nation!

Take your choice — it's a matter of creation vs. stagnation!

And creation requires tension, raiesd blood pressure, stage fright and "cold" sweat.

You can exude buckets of hot sweat in a Turkish bath or lolling in the sun on a humid summer afternoon.

Meanwhile, you haven't created a single shoe or loaf of bread or public speech or poem!

So be grateful for the "cold" variety of perspiration since that menas you are in gear and moving upward on the rungs of the ladder to success.

Steel Union's Challenger Clings to Lead

By H.L. SCHWARTZ III

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Challenger I. W. Abel clung to a slim lead today as the United Steelworkers Union continued the long count in their hard-fought election. The key to victory appeared to lie in the big locals, as yet largely unreported.

In the background, steelmakers kept a watchful eye on the returns still huping for a decisive result in the close struggle between Abel, the big union's secretary-treasurer, and the man on whose right hand he served for 12 years, President David J. McDonald.

Steelmakers are eager to get on with bargaining for a new contract, suspended earlier this year during the bitter campaign. A close election could wind up in a long court fight. The union can strike May 1.

There also was the possibility that an Abel victory would make McDonald a lame duck president when talks resume. He's said he would continue to negotiate no matter who wins and his four-year term runs to June 1.

The nation's business interests had cause for concern, too, for economists have said uncertainty in steel is the chief threat to continued prosperity in the year ahead.

The latest unofficial tally reported to The Associated Press by USW districts in this country and Canada showed Abel maintaining a shaky lead.

The separate McDonald and Abel headquarters, however, each had their man still ahead.

The latest tally:

AP — Abel 252,234; McDonald 237,760; Locals reporting 2,612.

Abel figures — Abel 180,396; McDonald 11,759; locals reporting 1,588.

McDonald figures — Abel 156,558; McDonald 203,698; locals reporting victory. But both men had large pockets of strength still unreported.

A spokesman for Abel said he would surely win, although not by as big a margin as his backers anticipated.

McDonald issued a statement saying he would make no prediction. He said the large, basic steel locals were unreported and that figures gotten by his headquarters showed him to be ahead.

McDonald called off a news conference Wednesday to which the Abel spokesman said: "Actions speak louder than words."

A cautious steel industry had no comment at all.

Each man was running well where he expected to. But the count was slow coming in from the Abel stronghold of Canada where more than 100,000 steelworkers were eligible to vote.

McDonald's untapped strength was scattered from Pennsylvania to California.

There are about 980,000 members in the USW's 3,300 locals and there was no telling how many voted.

In the only previous challenge to McDonald's leadership 50 per cent voted when unknown millhand Donald Rarick polled half the vote in 1960. There was some talk at McDonald headquarters Wednesday the vote, called heavy on election day, was actually lighter than believed.

Some districts said they were reporting only to international headquarters. This could add to a delay in establishing a trend since the international headquarters doesn't have to report the results back to the locals until May 1.

Locals have 10 days from election day to report thir results to international headquarters by mail.

The union's international tellers — elected officials — then begin the official count under the over-all supervision of the Honest Ballot Association, a private group.

The major issues in this election appeared, from campaign statements, to be McDonald's promise of good contracts versus Abel's belief the union hierarchy had grown away from the members.

McDonald, 62, became president in 1952 on the death of Phillip Murray, the union's founder. He had been a Murray protege.

Abel, 56, a former millhand, was elected secretary-treasurer on McDonald's slate and was reelected with him two more times.

The union's top office pays $50,000 a year. The secretary's post pays $35,000.

'Best Defense Not Good Enough' Major Tells Meet

"The best defense is not good enough. An almost perfect defense will make aerospace attack so expensive to the enemy that war becomes impossible to conceive," related Major Bernard M. Smith while speaking at the February meeting of the Pikes Peak Chapter, Professional Engineers of Colorado, held Tuesday evening at the Ent Air Force Base Skyline Club.

Major Smith, who is chief of the Presentations Division at the Headquarters Air Defense Command Secretariat, centered his talk around the organizational relationships of the North American Air Defense Command and the U.S. Air Force Air Defense Command, both headquartered in Colorado Springs.

In reviewing the nation's defenses against ballistic missile, manned bomber and satellite attack, the major pointed out ADC's detection of the approaching enemy with the Ballistic Missile Early Warning System (BMEWS) and the SPACETRAC network.

He said this country's tracking of manned bombers and and ballistic missile was more than adequate, but that our detection of satellites "has a long way to go."

Major Smith told the gathered engineers that ADC's main object was to detect the enemy approaching as soon as possible and intercept him as far from this country as possible. "We must engage the enemy as far out as we can and continue to engage him until he is destroyed."

The major ran briefly through ADC's arsenal of manned interceptors, covering the F-89 (used by Air National Guard units), F-101, F-102, F-104 and F-106. He mentioned the Y12A, which is currently going through its final stages of testing, with the decision for production now at the Department of Defense level.

The Y12A is capable of flying at more than 2,000 miles per hour and intercepting the enemy at altitudes in excess of 70,000 feet.

BMEWS radar sites in Alaska, Greenland and England are capable, according to the major, of detecting a one square meter target at 3,000 miles. He related that this is like seeing a rifle bullet 200 miles away.

One second after such a sighting, related Smith, NORAD, SAC and the Joint Chiefs of Staff will receive the alert message. He further stated that pilots can now start their engines, taxi, take - off and climb to 40,000 feet in five minutes.

SPACETRACK, since 1957, has tracked some 900 man-made satellites, according to Major Smith. If a weapon is launched from a satellite, it is detected by SPACETRACK and flashed to the center in Colorado Springs for analysis.

"Air Defense has come a long way," concluded Smith, "with the advent of century series interceptor aircraft, but continued progress at an ever increasing rate is vital to our success in the future defense against attack by missiles. The best defense is not good enough. Peace through perfect air defense is a must for security of our American way of life. Can we accept less?"

Recent news from William McGreevy at a hospital in Paris, Farance, is that when the cinch on a camel's saddle broke in his recent accident in Arica, he was thrown to the ground, breaking the eighth dorsal lumbar Vertebra in his spine. There was no hospital in this part of Africa and he was forced to lay on a straw mat until he could be flown to France; where he underwent surgery. He will arrive in New York Feb. 16.

Friends of Mrs. Carl F. Duffner are sorry to learn that she is ill at the Air Force Academy Hospital.

The board of directors of the Palmer Lake Historical Society met Monday evening at the home of the president. Plans were made to have a food sale on Feb. 22, the anniversary of the opening of the Historical Museum and the Palmer Lake Community Library. Other projects to raise money for the Society were discussed.

West Germany Stops Shipping Arms to Israel

By ROY ESSOYAN

CAIRO (AP) — Prime Minister Aly Sabry said Wednesday night that West Germany has agreed to stop shipping arms to Israel. He told the National Assembly that in return Egypt would support reunification of Germany.

The expression of support for German unity was interpreted to mean that Egypt would not recognize Communist East Germany, whose president, Walter Ulbricht, is to visit Cairo on Feb. 26.

There was no immediate reaction or confirmation from Bonn to Sabry's announcement.

Israeli officials in Jerusalem said if Sabry's announcement was confirmed, Israel and the Jewish people as a whole would know how to react. The Jerusalem Post said "the German withdrawal has not come as a surprise, but that will not mitigate the shock of such a German surrender to Arab threats of calling off diplomatic relations."

West German officials had said Ulbricht's visit to Cairo might amount to de facto recognition of the East German regime, and that Bonn then would probably break relations with Egypt as it usually does with governments that recognize East Germany.

President Gamal Abdel Nasser countered with a threat to break relations with Bonn because of the arms aid to Israel. Sabry restated this position, saying: "We state it here, frankly and clearly, that it will be we who break off relations with West Germany if the Bonn government does not take practical steps to halt its military assistance to Israel."

West Germany reportedly is shipping the Israelis $80 million worth of modern arms, including fighter planes and U.S.-made tanks. West Germany has not publicly acknowledged the shipments.

"We hope relations between our two countries will never sink again to the state of deterioration they had reached, and our traditional friendship remains," Sabry told the assembly.

Speaking on Germany's unity, he said that "reunification should be accomplished by peaceful means and through the free will of the people themselves without foreign interference."

Sabry said that a Spanish mediator, the Marquis de Nerva, had brought the agreement with Bonn. De Nerva told a news conference that he considered his efforts "a full success."

Ulbricht's visit to Cairo is expected to result in a $78.4 million credit agreement to help the Egyptians develop heavy industry. Nasser initialled the agreement 10 days ago when an East German trade delegation visited the Egyptian capital.

Negro Reindicted For Same Slaying

MONTICELLO, Ga. (AP) — A Negro youth whose case attracted worldwide attention when he was sentenced to death for murder at the age of 15 was reindicted Wednesday for the same slaying.

The U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals overturned the 1961 conviction of Preston Cobb Jr., now 19, last December on the grounds that Cobb's constitutional rights had been violated because Negroes systematically were excluded from the Jasper County grand jury.

Superior Court Judge George S. Carpenter on Tuesday overruled a defense motion to halt the second indictment on the same grounds.

The judge said he would hold a hearing Friday on a motion for a change of venue filed by Moore.

Cobb was convicted for the fatal shooting of a white man, Frank Coleman Dumas, 70, for whom he worked.

Computer Helpless Without Punch Cards

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A janitor has stumbled upon a drastic but effective answer to automation: Throw away the computer's punch cards and it is helpless.

A county janitor accidentally discarded boxes containing cards with the names and addresses of 70,000 present or former county employes, it was disclosed Wednesday.

It caused the county to miss the Jan. 31 deadline for mailing federal income tax W-2 forms. The punch card data was obtained from electronic tape, but it took so long the last batch of forms wasn't mailed until Tuesday.

Steel Union's Challenger Clings to Lead

By H.L. SCHWARTZ III

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Challenger I. W. Abel clung to a slim lead today as the United Steelworkers Union continued the long count in their hard-fought election. The key to victory appeared to lie in the big locals, as yet largely unreported.

In the background, steelmakers kept a watchful eye on the returns still hoping for a decisive result in the close struggle between Abel, the big union's secretary-treasurer, and the man on whose right hand he served for 12 years, President David J. McDonald.

Steelmakers are eager to get on with bargaining for a new contract, suspended earlier this year during the bitter campaign. A close election could wind up in a long court fight. The union can strike May 1.

There also was the possibility that an Abel victory would make McDonald a lame duck president when talks resume. He's said he would continue to negotiate no matter who wins and his four-year term runs to June 1.

The nation's business interests had cause for concern, too, for economists have said uncertainty in steel is the chief threat to continued prosperity in the year ahead.

The latest unofficial tally reported to The Associated Press by USW districts in this country and Canada showed Abel maintaining a shaky lead.

The separate McDonald and Abel headquarters, however, each had their man still ahead.

The latest tally:

AP — Abel 252,234; McDonald 237,760; Locals reporting 2,612.

Abel figures — Abel 180,396; McDonald 11,759; locals reporting 1,500.

McDonald figures — Abel 156,558; McDonald 203,098; locals reporting victory. But both men had large pockets of strength still unreported.

A spokesman for Abel said he would surely win, although not by as big a margin as his backers anticipated.

McDonald issued a statement saying he would make no prediction. He said the large, basic steel locals were unreported and that figures gotten by his headquarters showed him to be ahead.

McDonald called off a news conference Wednesday to which the Abel spokesman said: "Actions speak louder than words."

A cautious steel industry had no comment at all.

Each man was running well where he expected to. But the count was slow coming in from the Abel stronghold of Canada where more than 100,000 steelworkers were eligible to vote.

McDonald's untapped strength was scattered from Pennsylvania to California.

There are about 980,000 members in the USW's 3,300 locals and there was no telling how many voted.

In the only previous challenge to McDonald's leadership 50 per cent voted when unknown millhand Donald Rarick polled half the vote in 1960. There was some talk at McDonald headquarters Wednesday the vote, called heavy on election day, was actually lighter than believed.

Some districts said they were reporting only to international headquarters. This could add to a delay in establishing a trend since the international headquarters doesn't have to report the results back to the locals until May 1.

Locals have 10 days from election day to report thir results to international headquarters by mail.

The union's international tellers — elected officials — then begin the official count under the over-all supervision of the Honest Ballot Association, a private group.

The major issues in this election appeared, from campaign statements, to be McDonald's promise of good contracts versus Abel's belief the union hierarchy had grown away from the members.

McDonald, 62, became president in 1952 on the death of Phillip Murray, the union's founder. He had been a Murray protege.

Abel, 56, a former millhand, was elected secretary-treasurer on McDonald's slate and was re-elected with him two more times.

The union's top office pays $50,000 a year. The secretary's post pays $35,000.

'Best Defense Not Good Enough' Major Tells Meet

"The best defense is not good enough. An almost perfect defense will make aerospace attack so expensive to the enemy that war becomes impossible to conceive," related Major Bernard M. Smith while speaking at the February meeting of the Pikes Peak Chapter, Professional Engineers of Colorado, held Tuesday evening at the Ent Air Force Base Skyline Club.

Major Smith, who is chief of the Presentations Division at the Headquarters Air Defense Command Secretariat, centered his talk around the organizational relationships of the North American Air Defense Command and the U.S. Air Force Air Defense Command, both headquartered in Colorado Springs.

In reviewing the nation's defenses against ballistic missile, manned bomber and satellite attack, the major pointed out ADC's detection of the approching enemy with the Ballistic Missile Early Warning System (BMEWS) and the SPACETRAC network.

He said this country's tracking of manned bombers and and ballistic missile was more than adequate, but that our detection of satellites "has a long way to go."

Major Smith told the gathered engineers that ADC's main object was to detect the enemy approaching as soon as possible and intercept him as far from this country as possible. "We must engage the enemy as far out as we can and continue to engage him until he is destroyed."

The major ran briefly through ADC's arsenal of manned interceptors, covering the F-89 (used by Air National Guard units), F-101, F-102, F-104 and F-106. He mentioned the Y12A, which is currently going through its final stages of testing, with the decision for production now at the Department of Defense level.

The Y12A is capable of flying at more than 2,000 miles per hour and intercepting the enemy at altitudes in excess of 70,000 feet.

BMEWS radar sites in Alaska, Greenland and England are capable, according to the major, of detecting a one square meter target at 3,000 miles. He related that this is like seeing a rifle bullet 200 miles away.

One second after such a sighting, related Smith, NORAD, SAC and the Joint Chiefs of Staff will receive the alert message. He further stated that pilots can now start their engines, taxi, take - off and climb to 40,000 feet in five minutes.

SPACETRACK, since 1957, has tracked some 900 man-made satellites, according to Major Smith. If a weapon is launched from a satellite, it is detected by SPACETRACK and flashed to the center in Colorado Springs for analysis.

"Air Defense has come a long way," concluded Smith, "with the advent of century series interceptor aircraft, but continued progress at an ever increasing rate is vital to our success in the future defense against attack by missiles. The best defense is not good enough. Peace through perfect air defense is a must for security of our American way of life. Can we accept less?"

FAMILY SAVINGS

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — The average American family saved about $980 in 1963, according to Texas A&M home management specialist Wanda Meyer. Mrs. Meyer arrived at this figure by adding up all the nation's investments in savings accounts, savings and loan deposits, savings bonds and life insurance cash values for the year and dividing by the number of households in the country.

Palmer Lake Area

By Marian McIntyre McDonough
481-2323

Recent news from William McGreevy at a hospital in Paris, Farance, is that when the cinch on a camel's saddle broke in his recent accident in Arica, he was thrown to the ground, breaking the eighth dorsal lumbar Vertebra in his spine. There was no hospital in this part of Africa and he was forced to lay on a straw mat until he could be flown to France; where he underwent surgery. He will arrive in New York Feb. 16.

Friends of Mrs. Carl F. Duffner are sorry to learn that she is ill at the Air Force Academy Hospital.

The board of directors of the Palmer Lake Historical Society met Monday evening at the home of the president. It was voted to purchase a painting of Estemere House by the late Lloyd McFarling for the Museum. The main project this year is finishing the basement, putting in a furnace and lavatory. Plans were made to have a food sale on Feb. 22, the anniversary of the opening of the Historical Museum and the Palmer Lake Community Library. Other projects to raise money for the Society were discussed.

The members of Troop 17, Boy Scouts of America, Palmer Lake - Monument, Colorado, are holding their annual Scout Banquet in commemoration of 55 years of Scouting on Sunday, Feb. 7. This gala affair will take place at the Palmer Lake Town Hall, commencing at 3:30 p.m. A potluck dinner will be held following the Court of Honor.

It is hoped that there will be a large attendance. Plan to swell the crowd by being there with your entire family.

Those who have no sons in Scouting are to contact Howard Cloud Jr., 481-2579. Persons to contact if you have sons in Scouting are, the patrol mother or junior leader's Mother; Terry Loose, 481-2551 Albert Gonzales, 481-2307; Will Boyd, 481-2578; Robert Walton, Palmer Lake; Vyrl Higginson, 481-2950; Bob McDonald, 481-2451.

Mrs. M. Scott Carpenter spoke on International Relations at the Thursday meeting of the Extension Homemakers Club at the Palmer Lake Town Hall. Mrs. Rogers M. McDonough talked briefly on "Safety and Citizenship."

Mrs. Ruba Bradley, Palmer Lake postmaster, will attend a District Postmasters Dinner at the Swiss Chalet Saturday.

West Germany Stops Shipping Arms to Israel

By ROY ESSOYAN

CAIRO (AP) — Prime Minister Aly Sabry said Wednesday night that West Germany has agreed to stop shipping arms to Israel. He told the National Assembly that in return Egypt would support reunification of Germany.

The expression of support for German unity was interpreted to mean that Egypt would not recognize Communist East Germany, whose president, Walter Ulbricht, is to visit Cairo on Feb. 26.

There was no immediate reaction or confirmation from Bonn to Sabry's announcement.

Israeli officials in Jerusalem said if Sabry's announcement was confirmed, Israel and the Jewish people as a whole would know how to react. The Jerusalem Post said "the German withdrawal has not come as a surprise, but that will not mitigate the shock of such a German surrender to Arab threats of calling off diplomatic relations."

West German officials had said Ulbricht's visit to Cairo might amount to de facto recognition of the East German regime, and that Bonn then would probably break relations with Egypt as it usually does with governments that recognize East Germany.

President Gamal Abdel Nasser countered with a threat to break relations with Bonn because of the arms aid to Israel. Sabry restated this position, saying: "We state it here, frankly and clearly, that it will be we who break off relations with West Germany if the Bonn government does not take practical steps to halt its military assistance to Israel."

West Germany reportedly is shipping the Israelis $80 million worth of modern arms, including fighter planes and U.S.-made tanks. West Germany has not publicly acknowledged the shipments.

"We hope relations between our two countries will never sink again to the state of deterioration they had reached, and our traditional friendship remains," Sabry told the assembly.

Speaking on Germany's unity, he said that "reunification should be accomplished by peaceful means and through the free will of the people themselves without foreign interference."

Sabry said that a Spanish mediator, the Marquis de Nerva, had brought the agreement with Bonn. De Nerva told a news conference that he considered his efforts "a full success."

Ulbricht's visit to Cairo is expected to result in a $78.4 million credit agreement to help the Egyptians develop heavy industry. Nasser initialled the agreement 10 days ago when an East German trade delegation visited the Egyptian capital.

Negro Reindicted For Same Slaying

MONTICELLO, Ga. (AP) — A Negro youth whose case attracted worldwide attention when he was sentenced to death for murder at the age of 15 was reindicted Wednesday for the same slaying.

The U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals overturned the 1961 conviction of Preston Cobb Jr., now 19, last December on the grounds that Cobb's constitutional rights had been violated because Negroes systematically were excluded from the Jasper County grand jury.

Superior Court Judge George S. Carpenter on Tuesday overruled a defense motion to halt the second indictment on the same grounds.

The judge said he would hold a hearing Friday on a motion for a change of venue filed by Moore.

Computer Helpless Without Punch Cards

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A janitor has stumbled upon a drastic but effective answer to automation: Throw away the computer's punch cards and it is helpless.

A county janitor accidentally discarded boxes containing cards with the names and addresses of 70,000 present or former county employes, it was disclosed Wednesday.

It caused the county to miss the Jan. 31 deadline for mailing federal income tax W-2 forms. The punch card data was obtained from electronic tape, but it took so long the last batch of forms wasn't mailed until Tuesday.

West Germans, Nasser Face New Deadlock

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

For 20 years it has been West German policy in all cases except Moscow to deny recognition to any nation which also recognizes Communist East Germany.

It now has brought the West Germans into conflict with Cairo where President Gamal Abdel Nasser is expecting a visit from East German Communist chief Walter Ulbricht later this month. The West Germans fear it may be a prelude to formal dipolmatic recognition of the eastern regime by the Egyptians.

Such a break probably would be more expensive to the Egyptians than to the West Germans. But such is Nasser's pride in Egyptian nationalism and in his own position as an Arab and African leader that occasionally he seems to cut off his nose just to spite his face.

One such act came last December when he accused the United States of holding up approval of his request for additional aid under the surplus food program and, in effect, told the United States it could go to hell with its aid.

The point at issue was U.S. displeasure with Nasser's support of Congolese rebels which he interpreted as an attempt to dictate policy of the United Arab Republic and as an afront to U.A.R. dignity.

An annoyed U. S. Congress nearly took him at his word and he still is not certain to get the American food which last year was valued at nearly $160 million.

In the case of the West Germans the issue is Nasser's irritation with West German military aid to Israel.

He has threatened to recognize the East Germans if the aid is not cut off.

The case goes beyond the Germans because it is feared a diplomatic rupture would affect not only West Germany but Cairo relations with the whole of the West. A number of nations are said to have been urging Nasser to avoid it.

The Germans have described Nasser's threat as diplomatic blackmail but are not themselves agreed upon how to meet it.

In association with other European nations, the West Germans are participants in a program to deliver $80 million in modern armaments to Israel.

The issue indirectly affects the United States also.

The United States has sought to maintain an arms balance in the Middle East as one way of avoiding a new outbreak of the Israeli-Arab War. But in its desire to maintain good relations with the Arab states it always has preferred that Europeans supply the arms to Israel.

Exchange Clubs Slate Crime Prevention Effort

Sunday marks the start of National Crime Prevention Week. Exchange clubs throughout the nation have made a practice of sponsoring this annual event by performing the functions of alerting the nation's population to the increase in crime and demonstrating year-around crime prevention activities.

On the local level, the Colorado Springs Exchange Club plans to promote observance through publicity by news media, posters and displays, and radio and television programs.

Ernest O. Tullis, local attorney and Exchange Club chairman of publicity for the event, has arranged a 30 - minute TV program to be presented at 8:30 p.m. Monday on KKTV.

The program will take the form of a panel discussion in which six local high school students will quiz a number of law enforcement officers of the region along the general theme lines of "How to Lend a Hand to Arrest Crime."

Panel members to take part in the discussion will include: Police Chief Cecil McKissick; Earl Sullivan, sheriff; Judge David W. Enoch; Ray Harper, Pueblo police chief; Robert Hervat, Pueblo County sheriff; and Tullis, who will act as moderator.

The program will be introduced by Gov. Love, who will make a short comment relating to statistical data now available on crime activities during 1963.

In addition Exchange Club members will distribute posters and displays to local business firms for display in prominent places throughout the stores.

Spearheading the collective movement toward reducing crime, the National Exchange Club initiated National Crime Prevention Week at its 38th annual convention in 1947.

The annual observance is scheduled each year during a full calendar week in February, including either Lincoln's or Washington's birthday.

Each day during the week is designated for a special observance. Beginning with "Go to Church Sunday," Monday is designated as school day, Tuesday, know - your - policeman - day, Wednesday, Exchange Club day, Thursday, youth activities day, Friday public forum day and Saturday, county or farm day.

Angle Parking Installed Near Ent AFB

Angle parking was installed Tuesday on East Willamette Avenue between Foote and Farragut Avenues, at the west entrance to Ent Air Force Base.

City Traffic Engineer Don L Smith said the angle parking would accommodate 46 vehicles and is so located to provide one 14-foot driving lane on each side, one for eastbound vehicles and one for westbound.

Ent AFB has recently lost some off-street parking because of the construction of a civilian building, and Smith said the center of the street parking would offset this loss to a certain degree.

The parking area and vicinity have all been properly signed.

Smith said that as soon as possible his department will improve lighting of the area by installation of a large street light at Logan and Willamette Avenues, and increase to 6,000 lumens the existing street light at Foote and Willamette Avenues.
